Our Daughter

We have been repeatedly asked if we were ashamed of our little daughter, born December 14th, because we failed to make mention of her in either of the last two issues of the Times. No, it is that we like to avoid personal publicity ourselves and viewing the fact that we have failed to hear of in time to mention many another infant would be quiet. But we are proud of the little girl, who with any other lesser parental traits, has so far shown remarkable health and vigor, rinkles her brow in meditation and has a dimpled chin.

Mr. Barkum, the miller, is spending the holidays with home folks in Portland.

G. L. Evans sells suits and household furniture. You can find him at room 208 First National Bank Bldg., The Dalles, Ore.
