Vast Coal and Iron Resources in NEW SOUTH WALES

New South Wales has large deposits of iron ore (53,000,000 tons awaiting treatment) in close proximity to vast beds of a superior coal. Both classes of deposits are being worked more extensively each year. In 1917 the coal mined amounted to 8,292,867 tons of which 5,000,000 tons were used within the State—almost exclusively for industrial purposes, as the mild climate of Australia requires very little fuel to be employed for the heating of buildings.
The coal beds of New South Wales cover about 16,550 square miles—in three districts: Northern, Southern, and Western. The main lines of railways pass through the districts where the deposits are most easily worked. Newcastle, famous throughout the world, is a port near Sydney, and at the heart of the Northern coal district, which furnishes sixty-five per cent of the coal that is mined in the State. Two hundred and forty-four million tons of coal, valued at $480,000,000, have been mined to date in New South Wales. It is conservatively estimated that there are over 115,300,000,000 tons of coal still available to be mined in New South Wales. This represents an asset to the State of New South Wales of over $175,000,000,000.

Joys of Life.
One of the joys of life is planning a model home, but the discovery of the cost of building material and the disposition of the contractor to examine your plans and then follow his own takes some of the joy away.
