Pearls that come from the coast of Australia are of many shapes and colors. Those under ten grains are sold by the ounce; above that by the grain. Color has a deal to do with the value. The white pearls go mostly to Europe and the yellow ones to India. In Australia an ounce of good white pearls will fetch up to $500, but sometimes realize only a fifth of that amount. The yellow pearls may be rated on an average of about half the value of the white ones.

If the beard has any standing in the world today, it is undoubtedly because of the Jews, who held their whiskers to be sacred, and swore by them. Later, the Turks did the same. The sultan's followers used to comb their whiskers after prayers, catch the hairs that came out, break them in two and bury them, on the theory that in some mysterious way the hairs helped to make soft walking to the gates of paradise. This the Turks firmly believed.

"Nitrated peat" is a fertilizer produced by an Italian chemist from explosives containing ammonium nitrate. The explosive is placed in a measured amount of water, which dissolves out the nitrate, and after a short time is decanted as a saturated solution. This is mixed with peat powder and evaporated. The product contains about 43 per cent of ammonium nitrate, and has been shown to have fertilizing value nearly equal to that of sodium nitrate.

There are many eggs of small insects that are hatching all the time. The ray of sunshine, falling weakly upon the side of a tree or upon an old log, will hatch out many of these eggs, and the little creatures wobble through the frozen air for a few minutes before perishing. Possibly it is a tragedy with them when they are brought into the world too soon. At any rate they do not flourish; they do not mate and propagate their kind when hatched out in winter.

There is exhibited in the British museum a sapphire weighing nine carats and containing a bubble that appears and disappears with changes of temperature. It is believed that a cavity in the gem encloses a quantity of carbonic acid gas under great pressure. When the temperature is such as to correspond with the "critical point" for the gas, under the particular pressure to which it is subjected in its brilliant prison house, it liquefies and becomes visible as a bubble.

HARLEQUIN CABBAGE BUG INJURES CROPS

Attacks Cauliflower and Various Other Vegetables.

First Appearing Insects Should Be Killed Before They Have Chance to Breed—Clean Up Old Stalks and Rubbish.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The cabbage crop of many states suffers severe losses from the ravages of the harlequin cabbage bug. The affected plants wilt and die soon after attack as though swept by fire, hence the name "fire bug." This bug, which also is called "calico bug" and "terrapin bug," also injures cauliflower, kale, turnip, radish, and other cole crops, and after destroying fields of these, attacks various other vegetables. Several generations are produced each year.

Cleaning up the cabbage stalks and other remnants as soon as the crop is off, preventing the growth of weeds and the accumulation of rubbish, using trap crops of mustard, rape, or other early crop, burning over infested patches and fields, and destroying the insects by means of a hand torch and other mechanical measures, are the best methods of control, according to Farmers' Bulletin 1061, "Harlequin Cabbage Bug and Its Control," recently issued by the United States department of agriculture.

The first appearing bugs should be killed before they have a chance to breed, or if the fields become infested later the bugs should be destroyed late in the season so as to leave fewer to survive the winter.

Co-operation with others who grow cole crops is an absolute necessity in dealing successfully with this pest.

The new bulletin may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, on application to the department.

RIGHT TIME TO APPLY LIME

If Badly Needed It May Be Spread on Winter Wheat in Spring and Lightly Harrowed.

The best time to apply lime is when land is being prepared for wheat in fall. It should be spread on the plowed ground and harrowed in. Liming corn land that is to be followed by a grain crop with clover is also good practice. If lime is badly needed it may be spread on the winter wheat in the spring and lightly harrowed in. It will not be as effective as if it had been put on last fall but it will help some. If clover is to be seeded with a spring grain crop, lime can be applied when preparing the land for this crop.

The precise amount of lime to use in each case can be determined only by chemical means, and the various methods for determining the lime requirement of soils do not always yield uniform results, says the United States department of agriculture. For the farmer the response of the clover crop is the best test. By liming a field at two or three rates and leaving a strip unlimed the farmer can get clover to tell the story itself. As a general rule, which is useful as a starting point, two tons of ground limestone or one ton of burnt lime an acre will put most land in shape to grow clover.

DEVELOPMENT OF MARKETING

Improvement Must Continue to Come Through Better Methods and Procedure.

Marketing machinery is a product of evolution; any improvement must continue to come gradually through better methods and procedure and not through setting up instantly a perfectly efficient and automatically operated new marketing machine. Market experts in the United States department of agriculture point out that the worker in the field of marketing can assist in the development of better marketing practices just as the worker in the field of production has assisted, and is now assisting, in the improvement of general practices.

GET HONEY FROM DANDELION

Not Considered Strong Enough Argument to Continue Growing Plant Too Freely.

Beekkeepers have found that the dandelion furnished the bees some honey in 1919. But in general this would not be a strong enough argument to continue growing the plant as freely as some do grow it.
