GROWING TIMBER

Farmers Owning Small Tracts Will Find It Advantageous to Market Crops Together.

CASE IN NORTHWEST CITED

When Care is Exercised in Selecting and Cutting a Woodlot May Be Made Source of Income for an Indefinite Period.

With the help of the Forest Service and the county agent, a number of farmers who live in Hangman Valley, Wash, just north of the Palouse Division of the St. Joe Forest, are cooperating this year in the sale of about 300,000,000 feet of timber.

Last fall the Forest Service was requested to aid these farmers in disposing of a considerable amount of timber on their claims, It developed that there were approximately settlers who owned about 300,000,000 feet of timber which they desired to dispose of as a unit in order to attract some company capable of handling the entire proposition. They were, however, unable to agree upon a satis factory price. The project had been worked up by the local county agent, a former Forest Service man, from whom the request for help came. Not Needed for Crops.

The Forest Service agreed to make an appraisal of the timber and to assist in drawing up a contract and sale conditions. The appraisal was made last spring and a price fixed of about $3.50 per thousand feet. Although the land is well adapted to agriculture, it will not be possible for th. owners to put all of it into cultivation for a number of years. Consequently it is to their advantage to devote it to growing timber until such time as it is needed for raising crops. The stand consists of yellow pine of a good quality and contains a large number of trees just below merchantable size which will make rapid growth when the old timber is removed. It is distinctly a case where These facts were explained to the News, members of the association and they quickly saw the advantage of handling

Farm Woodland After Thinning,

ed. In order to save the young growth they agreed to sacrifice 30 cents per thousand on the stumpage price. Co-operation is Favored. Farmers in general who own small bodies of timber will find it profitable to co-operate with their neighbors in marketing their grown timber. In many cases the individual amounts are too small, as in the above instance, to make it profitable for their owners to of nature is contagious, like the gladadvertise for bids or for sawmills to come in. When care is taken in select-Ing and cutting timber a woodlot may be made a source of income to its owner for an indefinite period of years. PREVENT SPREAD OF DISEASE

Of Greatest Importance That Car casses of Dead Animals Be Buried or Burned.

When it is considered that the spores of anthrax may be distributed to live stock through the feces of cats, dogs, hogs, chickens and flies it is more readily apparent that carcasses of animals dead of disease should be burned as speedly as possible. Most of these disease carriers come in close contact with the larger domestic unimals and thus the direct transmission of germs from their body surfaces is possible and also it is known that they are more than likely to contaminate water courses. It is possible that many cases of anthrax may be at tributed to the common house fly.

# OUITE EXPENSIVE OATS

The actual cost of producing a bushel of oats in Missouri this year was 75 cents, which does not include 7 cents a bushel for hauling to the elevator. The rent was figured at $6.83, cost of planting at $6.08 and the cost of harvesting at $7.71 per acre, or a total cost of $20.68, which yields 27% bushels.
