The Dalles, April, 23—The long delayed decision in the United States Court was handed down today by Judge Wolverton in the case of J. R. Keep and Morgan, against Wapinitia Irrigation Company, for the foreclosure of the Clear Lake and Eastern Irrigation Power and Lumber Company.

Wapinitia Irrigation Company won the suit in all points. The complaint of Keep and his benchman was dismissed and completely denighed and the counter claim Wapinitia Irrigation Company, asking a restraining court order against Keep was granted in full by Judge Wolverton granting Wapinitia Irrigation Company permanent injunction against Keep to stop further molestation of the project development. It is a long hoped for victory of the farmer and Wapinitia Plains people are rejoicing over the victory.

Adjudication of White river water shed is now progressing favorably in Judge Wilson's court in The Dalles, conducted by water superintendent Cockran of La Grand. All the claimants have been urged to come in and set up their claims and produce their evidence necessary to establish the same.

The main contestants are Pacific Power and Light Company and Wapinitia Irrigation Company other in prominence are Lost and Gate Creek and Company, Round Prairie Company, and High Land Ditch Company.

The evidence will all go to the water board and final determination be made by said board.

In the event of exception to the boards finding the cases in contest may then be taken to the circuit court for appeal and the supreme court for review.
