Have Valuable Bead Collections.
Probably the choicest and most valuable beads in the world are those possessed by the natives of Borneo. In many cases they are very old and have been kept for centuries in one family. A rich chief may possess a collection of old beads worth many thousands of dollars.

In No Danger.
"The radio-microscope," we read, "is so sensitive that it will respond if anyone in its neighborhood should blush." In the present state of society there is no great fear of its being overworked in this connection.—London Punch.

Cuticura for Pimply Faces.
To remove pimples and blackheads smear them with Cuticura Ointment. Wash off in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Once clear keep your skin clear by using them for daily toilet purposes. Don't fail to include Cuticura Talcum.—Adv.

Shawls Came First.
The shawl is the mother of all clothes. Before scissors were invented all humans, who wore anything at all, wore shawls. The colder the climate the larger and heavier the shawl. In the tropics the shawl was of fig-leaf size. The summer shawl is our sheet. The toga, and finally the clothes of today emerged from the original shawl. Even as late as our Civil war men wore shawls for overcoats.

Worth Trying, Anyway.
Honestly, in looking around we reach the conclusion that this country wouldn't need one-tenth of the liver medicine it consumes if the folks always made it a point to do a decent day's work.—Exchange.

Laughter from "76"

There were as merry soldiers in the days of the American Revolution as there are now. One of the most laughable figures in the Continental army was Doctor Skinner, a wagish surgeon whose huge fur cap and long beard made him the butt of the soldiers everywhere. When asked by a teasing comrade why he wore such a lengthy beard, he answered: "It is a secret, sir, betwixt my God and myself, that human impertinence shall never penetrate." And this same doughty surgeon, who was always ready to pick a quarrel in private, took excellent care of his precious person on the battlefield. "Every man has his sphere of action," said he, "beyond the limits of which he ought never to emerge. Mine amidst the tumults of war, the conflicts of battle, is in the rear. There I am always to be found! I am firm at my post!" And nobly he lived up to his principle!

One night when an alarm sounded, Colonel Lee rushed forward to learn the cause and met Doctor Skinner in full retreat. "What's the matter, doctor?" called Colonel Lee. "Whither so fast? Not frightened, I hope?" "No, colonel, no!" replied the doctor hurriedly. "Not absolutely frightened, but, I candidly confess, most terribly alarmed!"

Among other merry wags in the Continental army was an Irishman named Levingstone. He belonged to Marion's brigade. One very dark night he was separated from his companions and, as he was wandering around, he was suddenly surrounded by a troop of horsemen, and a pistol was pressed against his breast. "Declare instantly to what party you belong," shouted a harsh voice, "or you are a dead man!" Levingstone peered through the darkness, but could not make out the uniforms of the troopers. "I think, sir," said he cautiously, "it would be a little more in the way of civility if you were to drop a hint, just to let me know which side of this question you are pleased to favor." "No jesting!" roared the trooper. "Declare your principles or die!" "Then," shouted Levingstone, "I will not die with a lie in my mouth! American!—to the extremity, you spalpeen! So do your worst!" "You are an honest fellow!" laughed the horseman. "We are friends, and I rejoice to meet a man faithful as you are to the cause of your country!"—New York Evening Post Magazine.

ing Poland, so our flag is woven of every thread of our national struggles. Because it alone represents all the principles which our forefathers upheld, because it is a constant reminder of duties heroically performed and of errors and defects retrieved through suffering and sacrifice, because it testifies to a century and a half of enlightened progress and prophecies all the hope and assurance of our future, it still has power to direct thought and concentrate emotion, to make the hot blood throb in the heart of every citizen.

Its white stands for purity, its red for valor, its blue for justice. Together they form a trinity of social virtues which it is our inherited privilege to honor and uphold and promulgate over the whole earth. As a nation we are pledged to let no human power dim the brightness of that galaxy, but to establish it forever in the observance of order, in the obedience to law, in the recognition of human right and in the immortal love-fulness of world-brotherhood. We have rebaptized it the emblem of democracy's fairest flower and the flaming meteor of resistless destruction against all tyranny.

RAISING BLAZES.

Commemorating the Brave Deeds of the "Embattled Farmers." This Shrine Inexpressibly Dear to Every American Heart.

Robert Morris True Patriot.
On the day that Robert Morris signed the Declaration he was the wealthiest and greatest merchant in Philadelphia. He purchased goods in England and sold them here at a large profit. His ships were on the ocean. He had a hot-house and an ice-house, the first in America. No price he might have asked would have gone unaccepted or unpaid by the British government.—James B. Morrow in the Detroit Free Press.

CREED FOR AMERICANS

I BELIEVE in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag and to defend it against all enemies.

Sacred Emblem of Unity

The Stars and Stripes is not the flag of a ruler or an individual. When General Grant was a candidate for the Presidency he saw a flag with his name attached to it and exclaimed, "Take down that flag or take my name from it; the man has never yet been born whose name is great enough to put upon the flag of my country."

It is the flag of all the people. It is the emblem of our unity, safety and faith. Into whatever parties we may be divided by varying political convictions, as a single person we take our stand under the one flag. It is not the badge of a particular policy, but of a complex agreement of privileges and checks.

The flag is the only thing we have about which to twine our national sentiment. We have no royal family; we have no hereditary aristocracy; we are pledged to no political party. Of any country we have the least race pride; we can scarcely be said to have any distinctive art or music.

As the grave of the martyred Kosciusko is made of a handful of earth from every battlefield of long-suffering Poland, so our flag is woven of every thread of our national struggles. Because it alone represents all the principles which our forefathers upheld, because it is a constant reminder of duties heroically performed and of errors and defects retrieved through suffering and sacrifice, because it testifies to a century and a half of enlightened progress and prophecies all the hope and assurance of our future, it still has power to direct thought and concentrate emotion, to make the hot blood throb in the heart of every citizen.

Its white stands for purity, its red for valor, its blue for justice. Together they form a trinity of social virtues which it is our inherited privilege to honor and uphold and promulgate over the whole earth. As a nation we are pledged to let no human power dim the brightness of that galaxy, but to establish it forever in the observance of order, in the obedience to law, in the recognition of human right and in the immortal love-fulness of world-brotherhood. We have rebaptized it the emblem of democracy's fairest flower and the flaming meteor of resistless destruction against all tyranny.

Rochambeau's Splendid Service

A study of parallels serves to establish the fact, seemingly forgotten, that Rochambeau rendered no minor aid, but was the immediate instrument of Providence for the triumph of the sacred cause of freedom, just as Pershing and his army were the final weapons of Foch to smite the oppressor, writes Margaret B. Downing in the Catholic World. From the military standpoint, then, there can be no controversy over the success with which the commander-in-chief of the French allied army executed the benevolent intentions of his king, Rochambeau, however, too often figures in the American mind solely as a symbol of the friendship of France, gained through painful, weary efforts of Franklin, Jefferson and other great fathers of the republic. It is full time that he should be known for the splendid, virile, unusual traits of character which his contemporaries have ever accorded him. He was an upright, religious man. He is a figure to fill the canvas, no matter who takes up the brush to paint him. Washington shows him as the honest colleague and dependable ally from the moment he set foot on American soil. In his greeting to the commander of the Colonial forces, the French general wrote: "I send you a copy of my instructions as well, for I feel that if we are to co-operate usefully I must have no secrets from my general." In the late days of February, 1784, when Washington, another Cincinnati, was busy with the cares of husbandry about Mount Vernon, and Rochambeau, honored by his king, also for the nonce rested on his sword, he wrote that immortal eulogy to his former associate which may be found graven on the statue of the French hero in Jackson square, Washington. "We have been contemporaries and friends in the cause of Liberty and we have lived together as brothers should, in harmonious friendship."

There is one splendid saying handed down by the loyal Clasen. When France danced madly in the red stream, after she had executed her Bourbon king and his Hapsburg consort, Rochambeau, last marshal of France under the dynasty, gathered his bewildered army and offered his services to the awful tribunal. His old friends and aristocratic kindred reproached him for making peace with the enemy, and hinted at unworthy motives. Then the hero of Yorktown and of a half-century of wars, drew himself up laughingly and flung his sword on high, he exclaimed: "France! whoever rules her, my best and my all."

Occupations of the Signers.
Among the signers of the Declaration the physicians were Josiah Bartlett of New Hampshire, Lyman Hall of Georgia, Benjamin Rush of Pennsylvania, Matthew Thornton of New Hampshire and Oliver Wolcott of Connecticut.

The Connecticut delegation was one of varied occupations, embracing a physician, a sailor, a shoemaker and a "statesman." It also contained a lawyer, Samuel Huntington.
