Body of Jones Enroute

A telegraph addressed to Mrs. N. J. Jones of B. street has been received saying that the body of her son, Terry Jones who died of pneumonia in France, is being sent to her.

Funeral services will be held in The Dalles and the body will then probably be sent to Wamic, where he was reared and from where he enlisted, for interment. Mrs. Jones is at present visiting in California, but she will probably return before the time for the body to arrive, which will probably be in about two weeks.—Chronicle.

Narrow Escape

Mrs. John Delletiglie was painfully burned Saturday morning when starting a fire in her range to prepare the noon meal. Thinking the fire was not making the desired progress, she lifted a lid to add a little kerosene, and a rush of flames almost enveloped her, burning her face, hair and arms severely. The immediate application of cooling lotions prevented any permanent injury.
