"Your Money Goes Farther at Hill's"

A storm, such as old timers here have never before witnessed in winter months, much less, this season of the year, broke into our beautiful Indian Summer Friday night, November 18. For the first 24 hours it was in the form of a heavy snow, falling continuously, changing to frozen rain or sleet Saturday evening, continuing until about three o'clock Monday afternoon in Maupin the snow and ice reached the depth of 18 inches, but of comparative weight as ice. On the flat it was about 2 feet and at the timber line 3 feet deep.

A peculiarity of the storm is that while the lower regions experienced the snow and ice, above Mecca, and in the Cascade mountains to the west the storm took the form of rain, which accounts for the rising of the streams to extraordinary height. While from the north, mercury dropped only a few degrees below freezing point. Many flocks of wild geese seem to have been taken unaware of the coming storm and all week have been seen passing to the south.

The roads are rendered impassable by the heavy packed crust, yet not sufficient to hold horses or cars. Melting process is from underneath.

Telegraph communication is severed beyond Sherman and Fallbridge to the north. Part of the time telephone service has been had between here and The Dalles.

Railway service has been discontinued since Saturday. Sunday morning's Oregon Trunk up train, being stalled above Nena, the passengers were transferred to Bend Tuesday. It is said that a number of trains are blocked on the main lines along the Columbia river.

Raymond Crabtree, F. M. Conner, C. E. Alexander, Roy Batty and M. L. Arnett on the flat had sheds break in with the snow Sunday and Monday. The only loss to stock was Mr Arnett's cow. L. B. Kelly made his way by team to his ranch Sunday, arriving in time to brace his big barn and prevent its breaking in.

Ice and driftwood lodging on the timbers reinforcing the White river bridge near Tugh Valley formed a dam, driving the current south of the bridge, for a time endangering the bridge and Barney Allen's house on the south bank below. Powder from the road camp was secured and removed the debris, letting the river return to its regular channel. The bridge, however, is unsafe for travel.

It is reported that snow is 3 feet deep in The Dalles, and a number of buildings have fallen in with the weight, also that water was cut off for 24 hours, during which time two residences burned.

Sunday and Monday Maupin was out of water, due to trouble with the pumping apparatus.

So far, food for man and beast has been sufficient, as per reports arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Kelly, Mrs. F. D. Stuart and Crystal, W. H. Staats, W. C. Bolton, Mrs. H.

Anderson and Viola, F. R. Kaiser and son are local people detained away from home.

The local teachers were unable to meet their appointments at the institute held in The Dalles, so held school Tuesday and Wednesday.

Thanksgiving day, passed quietly among local people and Mrs. Pruitts fine birds are still among the living.

Chester Rice walked down the fore part of the week for medicine for E. M. Hartman. On his return he borrowed a bicycle at the L. B. Kelly place to make the balance of the trip on top of the snow.

The Times apologizes for the belated abbreviated appearance this little sheet, but cannot promise much improvement until travel and mail service can be resumed, meanwhile we are thankful for a supply of blank newspaper.
