How to Be Healthy

The Crusade of the Double Barred Cross Practical Talks on Disease Prevention

Prepared by the OREGON TUBERCULOSIS ASSOCIATION

(Practically every adult person is infected with tuberculosis. This infection need not be a source of danger. To keep the latent infection from becoming disease, bodily resistance must be kept at its best. This series of articles shows you how to keep healthy.)

A CLEAN MOUTH

By ARTHUR M. HUNTER, D. D. S.

A FEW years ago Dr. Mayo, one of America's foremost surgeons, said that the next step in preventive medicine must be made by the dentists. In line with this prophecy, the new campaign for mouth hygiene aims to teach three things:

1. How much damage is done to the general health of the body by an unclean mouth, with teeth badly broken down, large cavities or inflamed gums.
2. Proper methods of correcting mouth diseases.
3. How to prevent dental disease.

Very few persons realize that the three vital sources of life, food, water, and air, are affected by mouth conditions. No one can live without these three things. The government spends enormous sums to insure the cleanliness of food and water. Housewives see that cooking utensils, china and cutlery are washed so that the food may be served clean. All the details of bringing pure food to the mouth are carefully looked after, but when it passes the lips the food is abandoned and left to its fate, for most mouths are unclean, and food, however clean before, becomes quickly contaminated after it passes the lips.

How can the mouth best be kept clean and dental decay prevented?
Here are four practical suggestions:

1. Have the mouth put in good condition by a good dentist. Go to the best man that you can find. It is economy of health and pocketbook to go to him often. Three or four times a year should be the minimum.
2. X-Ray examinations of the teeth should be made to ascertain the condition of root-fillings, and the condition of bone surrounding the root-ends of the teeth, for it is these areas that may cause systemic disturbances which will lower resistance to disease. All teeth with the pulpa removed (nerves killed) must be held as suspicious characters until proven innocent. The lack of pain is not a safe sign of no infection. There may be a "blind" abscess which only the X-Ray can discover.
3. Get your dentist to give you minute directions as to the proper way to perform your mouth toilet. It is necessary to spend at least three minutes every night and every morning brushing your gums and teeth, in order to properly cleanse them. That amount of time and energy will give you big dividends in good health. Remember a clean tooth will not decay, and a clean mouth will not pollute the food.

Stop the use of free sugar because sugar will cause the decay of teeth more than any other one thing. Nature never intended that we should use sugar in a concentrated form, but preferred to give it to us in its natural state; namely, in fruits and vegetables.

I would like to paraphrase that well known quotation from Robert Burns, "Oh, would the gift the good God give us to see our mouths as the dentist sees them." The dentist not only sees the unclean mouth with inflamed gums, but he sees the long chain of events, namely, an unclean mouth, small cavities, large cavities, pollution of food with digestive disturbances, death of the tooth pulp, abscesses at the end of the root, absorption of the poison, lowered resistance against disease, and finally broken down health.

The late Professor Osler, who held a place at the head of the profession of medicine, said: "You have one doctrine to preach, and you have to preach it early and late, in season and out of season. It is the gospel of cleanliness of the mouth, cleanliness of the teeth, cleanliness of the throat. These three things must be your text through life. Oral hygiene—the hygiene of the mouth—not one single thing is more important to the public in the whole range of hygiene than that."
