The output of dairy products could be increased 20 per cent through the use of purebred sires without increasing the number of dairy cattle.

No Best Breed of Cows.
There is probably no best breed of cows for family purposes, although Jerseys or Guernseys are considered

HORSE SAVES LIFE OF FARMER Faithful Animal Rescues Master Who Was Pinned Under Overturned Plow.

Galena, Ill.—James Funston, a farmer, had contemplated the purchase of a tractor for farm use, but because one of his faithful horses saved his life he will continue to use horses to till his land.
Funston was using a cultivator on a hillside when the plow tipped over pining him underneath. The horse became tangled in the harness, but did not run away.

After being under the plow for an hour Funston saw one of the horses look back, then the animal walked to the side of the plow, pushed it several times with his nose and rolled it off his master. Funston had suffered a broken leg.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Washington, D. C. — Fourth class postmasters have been named in Oregon, as follows: Mabelle A. Grant, Harlan; Lelah I. Blodgett, Hult; George F. Allen, Point Terrace, and Henry O. Ilmar, Quincy.

Bend.—Instead of laying the dust lining parched throats, seven gallons of confiscated home-brew dampened the street in front of police headquarters here Saturday. The liquid had been obtained in raids which netted the city $200 in fines.

Sheridan.—Work has started on the new highway bridge at Willamina, according to reports from that town.
The old bridge will be set over to accommodate the public, while the new one is being built. The new bridge will be of steel and will span the Willamina river.

Salem.—There were two fatalities due to industrial accidents in Oregon during the week ending September 21, according to a report prepared here by the state industrial accident commission. The victims were Lant S. Wood-yard, messenger, Portland, and Louis Mackey, fire fighter, Medford.

Salem.—Announcement was made here Saturday that the suit brought by S. S. Johnson, Portland attorney, to prevent the secretary of state from placing the so-called 1925 exposition amendment on the ballot at the November election, will be opposed by those interested in the success of the measure.

Forest Grove.—Prune picking is in full swing here with one of the biggest crops in the history of this community. It was estimated that the crop will total nearly 4,000,000 pounds of dried fruit. One of the Oregon Cooperative Association's largest packing plants is located here and will handle the pack for this community.

Stayton.—Owing to the lack of houses in Stayton several families are living in tents, while some are occupying store buildings that have long been vacant. As there is a good demand for houses Mr. and Mrs. F. I.
Jones are planning to build either flats or an apartment house on the lot they recently purchased on the ditch.

Ashland.—Work of an experimental nature on a "dry land" dredging proposition for extracting gold from an old channel of the Rogue river, near the city of Rogue River, in the northern part of Jackson county, is progressing and is fulfilling the expectations of J. S. Taylor, representing a large British syndicate that is backing the mining.

Salem.—Governor Olcott, in a proclamation issued here, set aside the period, October 7 to 14, as fire prevention week. It was set out in the proclamation that Oregon, during the five years ending in 1920, suffered fire losses to the amount of $10,395,286, a sum of money that would build 2079 homes, costing $5000 each or many miles of good roads.

Hood River.—The Hood River valley apple harvest will be in full swing by the middle of this week. Numerous growers in the lower valley began harvesting their Newtowns last week, and the picking of all varieties will be under way Monday. Weather conditions are ideal for maturing of apples. Cold nights and brilliantly sunshiny days prevail.

Springfield.—Fire Friday night destroyed the J. H. Seavey storage warehouse near here and nearly 500 bales of hops that it contained. The loss is estimated at about $50,000. The Seavey hayracks represent fully two-thirds of the hop crop of this section of the Willamette valley and the fire loss will be a hard blow to the industry in this county.

Salem.—State officials spent most of Saturday in signing $5,000,000 of world war veterans' state aid bonds sold recently to an eastern banking syndicate. O. P. Hoff, state treasurer, announced that when these bonds are turned over to their purchasers the state will have contracted an indebtedness exceeding $48,000,000. There are yet $15,000,000 of the world war veterans' bonds to be floated.

Salem.—Fourteen traffic officers employed in the law enforcement division of the state motor vehicle department held a conference here Sunday and were instructed by Dr. W.
Carlton Smith, penitentiary physician, in the use of first aid kits. These kits were purchased recently by the state and have been assigned to the traffic officers. The state traffic officers patrol practically all of the roads in the state, and in cases of accidents will be in a position to assist the injured pending the arrival of physicians.

The SANDMAN STORY

MR OWL DRIVEN AWAY

MR. OWL made his home in the hollow of a tree in the orchard.
He did this for one reason—because it was near the field where there were plenty of mice, and then he liked the location; there were plenty of small birds around.
But the orchard birds did not care for Mr. Owl as a neighbor, and so when they found he had really settled there and intended to stay they called a meeting in a nearby tree to talk it over and see if they could not in some way get rid of him.
Plenty of ways were suggested but not one of the birds wanted to be the one to tell him to move.
"He is never up until we go to bed," said Mr. Sparrow, whose family had suffered from the bad manners of Mr.
Owl.
"I would gladly tell him," said Mr.
Blue Jay, "if I could meet him in the daytime, but I just cannot stay awake after dark."
"Huh!" exclaimed Jennie Wren, "if you told the whole truth, Willie Blue spoke up Mr. Kingbird, "I would tell him to leave the orchard quickly, but as you say, he never flies about in the daytime so I cannot tell him."

"Why not sit up one night, Mr. King-bird and watch for Mr. Owl?" said Mr.
Catbird. "You like to be called the watchman of the orchard; now is your chance to earn the title." Every one listened, for it was known to all the birds that Mr. Catbird was given a wide berth by Mr. Kingbird whenever he met him, and also that, though he did wish to be called their protector, he was really very unkind to the small birds, even while he did attack Mr. Crow and Mr. Hawk in the most fearless manner.
"Well, well, what is going to be done?" chattered Jenny Wren. "I can't waste all the day here, even if the rest of you can, I have work to do and I keep my house in order, too." Everybody began to chatter at once, for they all were afraid of Jennie's sharp tongue, when suddenly Jennie's quick eyes saw something moving in the tree where Mr. Owl lived. "Look!" she said, "there he is!"
Mr. Owl sat on a limb near the hollow in the tree looking very stupid.
"He can't see in the daytime," cried Jennie. "Come, let us drive him into his nest."
All the others followed Jennie, who was scolding as loudly and fast as she could, and around Mr. Owl they swarmed, chattering and screaming.
Poor Mr. Owl loved silence and this terrible din nearly drove him out of his hole. He turned his head and with a clumsy motion managed to get into his hole while the birds screamed louder than ever before over their victory.
That night when he came out of his nest, he found anything for his supper, Mr. Owl flew off to find a new home, for "no one could live in the midst of that chattering bunch and be happy," he said.
"I would swallow whole that chattering Jennie Wren if I could find her, but if I did she would keep right on talking, I expect, and then I would have to listen to her all the time, so on second thought I guess I won't hunt for her."

His Home in the Tree.

Jay, it would be that you would like to be rid of Mr. Owl because he is a bigger robber than you are."
Willie Blue Jay stood first on one foot and then on the other and winked and blinked, but he did not reply to Jennie's saucy but truthful remark.
"If I could meet him on the wing,"

THE FRIENDLY PATH

By WALTER I. ROBINSON
"SOMEONE must do it."
This is a good thought to remember when one finds himself burdened with public service or other work for the benefit or happiness of his fellows. Though it may be exceedingly disconcerting to realize that one is sacrificing considerable through devoting much of his time to civic or philanthropic service which he should devote to his own business or profession, he should recognize that there is likely to come to him the pleasure of great satisfaction in the amount of good he does.

This is the position assumed by one of the most public spirited men we have ever known.
Year in and year out for a quarter of a century this man has given a large proportion of his time to the work of formulating plans for a great park system, and in order to make a big city a more desirable place in which to live. Not being wealthy, the man is virtually dependent on the income from his profession.
Only recently it was our privilege to notify him that he had just had a new job added to his many tasks by being appointed a member of an important committee. He smiled one of his delightful smiles which told of the big heart within his breast and declared:
"That's fine. But, by Jove, don't you know I shouldn't mind if I'd get an appointment now and then which would mean a few five spots. Yet someone must do it or these essential improvements won't be done, so I might as well add a little more to my pack. Anyway no money could compensate for the happiness which I experience when I realize that I've helped even a little to make the city a better place in which to live."
Let us keep this sentiment fresh in our memories when the call comes to neglect our own affairs for the public good. If we do, we'll not only be better able to do a real service, but our pleasure will exceed our regrets.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL
Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

BELLE

BELLE is one of the many feminine names which began existence as a contraction and gained sturdy independence until it became a recognized appellative and is bestowed without reference to its prefix.
Since Belle signifies "oneth of Baa!" it is easily discernible that it is an offspring of Isabelle. In the days when Elizabeth of Hainault married Phillippe Auguste and suffered her name to be changed to Isabelle by the French, it is hardly likely that Belle was used, either as an endearment or a diminutive. But Isabelle became very popular in royal circles and the betrothed of Hugues de Lusignan, who later married King John, brought Isabelle to England.
It was there that Belle came into existence and into consequent vogue.
Of all the contractions of Isabelle—of which Nib, Ibbot and B are a few examples—Belle proved the most popular and lasting.
Belle is a popular form in this country and is bestowed without reference to Isabelle. France recognizes no such contraction, but Spain has an equivalent Bala.
The opal is the gem assigned to Belle. It will prove a talisman against evil, danger, and disease when worn by her. The evil designs of the pixie, which superstition claims is imprisoned in the stone, will be powerless against her. To dream of an opal means success. Friday is Belle's lucky day and 4 her lucky number.
The chrysanthemum is her lucky flower.
