The Birth of a Nation was well patronized Friday evening. The picture was put on in six changes to the twelve reels and was presented on the canvass in very good shape. There were several who came to hear the radio concert more than to see the picture, but on account of climatic conditions were disappointed. The operator stated first that it would not work just right in dry weather, but before he started to give the concert it rained and he stated that would short the aerial. What was it that Barnom said?

Years ago when the sugar refiners had a dull season they were making experiments to in some way increase their business and they were very successful, they "invented" the cranberry, but we've been thinking that wizard Burbank might yet cross it with the sugar beet, so we could eat it without making a face like Dad used to when he took a dram.

There is no special proclamation on for next week so we can think as we please.

Car Over Grade

Tuesday evening while making the descent of the Bakeoven grade, K. L. Hauser and Manual Karlen went over a four or five foot embankment off the straight way below the upper bridge. Mr. Karlen was driving a Ford coupe and as he bet over to switch on the lights, he moved the wheel, heading over the bank. The machine rolled over for about 125 feet before making a stop, completely wrecked. Mr. Hauser was thrown before the last turn of the machine, suffering several broken ribs and painful bruises. Mr. Karlen's head struck on a rock, rendering him unconscious for several hours. Both were badly cut with glass. S. N. Morris who was coming up the grade found the men short

Cars Derailed

The O. W. down freight Saturday afternoon had several cars of lumber for the east derailed at McClellans between mileposts 54 and 56. Five cars were damaged and had to be transferred, it being back from the river no damage was done to the lumber. The afternoon passenger waited here until a special train arrived from The Dalles at 7 p. m. over the O. T., taking the transferred passengers, mail, baggage and express on to Bend. Sundays trains operated over the O. T. line while the wrecking crew were clearing the track.

ly after the accident and brought Mr. Hauser to the Kelly hotel, and returned with help to lift Mr. Karlen into his car and bring him to town.
