WITCH TEG'S SON

YACO, the son of old Witch Teg. who lived on the mountain side, wanted to be rich. He did not want to live in a cave with his Witch Mother, though she did everything within the power of her magic arm to make him

It was not, however, in the power of Witch Teg to give gold to her son, or to any one else. Stones she could change into animals or mountains into rocks and trees, and it was whispered she had changed more than one into the shape of a wild animal.

So when her son asked for gold that be might become rich and live in a palace Witch Teg knew she could not grant his wish.

There was one thing she could do, and that was to help him get money, and this she did by changing the big rocks around her mountain cave into fat pigs which Yaco drove to the market and sold for gold.

Soon the gold began to plle up in the corner of the cave, for Yaco's pigs were the finest in the market and brought the highest prices.

'Soon I will be a rich man, mother," said Yaco one day, "and I shall live in a palace, and when you see me riding in my coach with four prancing horses you will be proud of your son." Witch Teg listened with downcast eyes, for she began to understand that this selfish son had no thought of her, but would leave her as soon as he was rich enough to satisfy his greed.

If Yaco had seen his mother's eyes his answer to her question would perhaps have been more guarded, but he didn't, and so when Witch Teg asked, "And how shall I be able to see so fine a person as you will be when you drive out in such style? You cannot drive up the side of the mountain."

"Oh, you can sit at the foot of the the work. mountain some day and I will drive past," replied the ungrateful Yaco. You will not expect me to notice you, of course, for I could not have a witch for my mother, you know, and live in

"No, no," answered the witch, "that would never do." But she did not intend that her selfish son should leave her to live in a cave while he rode about in a beautiful coach ashamed to own her for his mother, One morning when Yaco started for market the pigs he drove before him were the plumpest and finest he had ever driven down the mountain and Ynco thought of the gold he would bring back to add to his store.

before the sun was up and while the mountain was yet misty in the early morning, had gone part way down the mountain and, stretching out her bony arms and hands, had caused water to run over the rocks and form a brook

If he had he would not have guessed the reason, but his witch mother was making sure her son could not leave her. She knew that all charms are broken when the one upon whom the spell is cast steps into running water. Yaco she had formed from an ugly black rock that stood by her doorway, and now she would let him take his form again. Slowly down the mountainside Witch ber.

Teg watched ber son driving his pigs. For a minute Yaco stopped when he saw the water. Then, seeing it was not deep, he drove the pigs in. Beand instantly he became one of them, only big, black and ugly-just the shape he had been when Witch Teg changed him into the son of a witch. The village folks at the foot of the mountain point out the black rock and call it the Witch's Son because it is shaped like the head of a man, but they do not know that once it was Yaco, the son of Witch Teg, who was ashamed of his witch mother.
