

Brief Resume Most Important Daily News Items.

Events of Noted People, Governments and Pacific Northwest, and Other Things Worth Knowing.

ter of Marshal Foch, died Tuesday at Ican contribution to economic revival. the family mansion at Toulouse. France.

Ten of the counts in the indictment of Harry F. Sinclair for contempt of the senate were sustained Monday in the supreme court of the District of When you deal with economic rehabili-Columbia President Coolidge will be notified. formally of his nomination as the republican presidential candidate at ceremonies to be held in Washington. D. C. Thursday night, August 14, in Continental Memorial hall.

the largest commercial center north that sort can be rendered. of Pekin, has been destroyed in part according to advices. The damage to $1,000,000.

Recurrent earthquakes of great intensity have been registered at the seismographical observatory in Tashkent, Russian Turkestan, during the last four days. The center of the shocks is believed to be in the Pamirs on the Indian border.

Rev. Francis Nugen, 22, pastor of Oregon, was drowned near that place hope to all." early Tuesday while working with a crew of men rolling logs into the river. He came to Peoria from Idaho a short time ago, is married and has one child.

Tammany Hall Monday chose George Washington Olvany, general ceed the late Charles F. Murphy, and voted its "undivided and loyal support" to the Davis-Bryan ticket and party.

expects to maintain its policy of re- the time is opportune." fusing to consider cancellation of war debts of European nations, calculations of treasury officials are being FRANK MURDERERS made on the theory that not more than one-fourth of the principal of the $10,500,000,000 owed us will be paid back during the next 30 years.

Albert B. Fall, ex-secretary of the cessary measures for the economic rehabiliation of Europe may be counted upon. Secretary Hughes of the American state department said here Plan Agreed On in Case Ber-Monday, speaking at the Pilgrims din-

"It does not matter that this aid is not given by the government," Mr. COMPILED FOR YOU Hughes continued. "I may give it as my conviction that had we attempted to make America's contribution to the recent plan of adjustment of a governmental matter, we should have Conclusions Raise 'High Hopes of been involved in a hopeless debate and there would have been no adequate action. "We should have been beset with demands, objections, instructions, Mile Foch, $2 years old, eldest sis- This is not the way to make an Amer-

Ber.

> "You have the Dawes plan and you have had the participation of American experts with the liberty of constructive effort, which was essential because it was undertaken in the only default by Germany under the Dawes way in which success was possible. tation you doubtless have in mind such contribution as America may be able to give in disinterested advice and later in participation in the absolutely essential loan. "The important, indeed, the indispensable thing is that methods should be contrived and that your disposi-Kalgan, province of Chihli, China. tion should be such that assistance of

"All discussions will be futile unby a flood along the Yangho river, less the arrangements ultimately made satisfy the investing public. We the city was unofficially estimated at appreciate the difficulties but we believe that the Dawes plan opens the path of confidence and prosperity. For that reason we are deeply interested

> In its prompt execution. "My confidence that a way will be found to surmount all the existing difficulties lies in the fact that failure would invite chaos. There is no gain to anyone in that. On the other hand, going forward with reasonable measthe South Methodist church at Peorin, ures to put the plan into effect gives present by those countries which sign Mr. Hughes led up to his specific ed the treaty of Versailles. reference to the deliberations now in progress in London in an effort to find a way to put the Dawes plan it to mean that she still has the right into effect by saying that he was to separate action should Germany "off duty tonight" and that his status default. Premier Herriot announced was that of "a sympathetic and unsession judge, as grand chief to suc- official observer." He was also, the secretary continued, returning in an informal way the visit of the prince of Wales to the United States and the "progressive and forward-looking took the opportunity to reaffirm Presiplatform" of the national democratic dent Coolidge's desire that there should be further conferences for Although the American government limitation of armaments "as soon as

PLEAD GUILTY France is ready to draw from Satur-

Chicago .--- The fate of Richard Loeb concede that the document agreed and Nathan F. Leopold Jr., kidnapers upon empowers separate action by Albert B. Pan, exact on guilty, and singers of the hands of Franks, was placed in the hands of France. In fact, neither the present John R. Caverly, chief jus tice of the criminal court of Cook county-when they pleaded guilty Monday.

Copyright, By The Dobbs Marrill Co.

THE FAIRY

Economic Restoration of European Nations.

London .- The committee on sanctions of the inter-allied conference agreed unanimously Saturday on two important principles to govern the action of the allies in event of possible

reparations plan, namely, to insure investors in the loan to Germany of priority on all German resources in event of such default, and to preserve

the rights of the countries signatory

With this agreement, in the opinion of the American, British and French

delegates, a long step has been taken upon which such high hopes have been raised for the economic restora-

At the opening of the conference

Wednesday it was generally recognized that the proposed loan to Germany was the crux of the Dawes plan,

and after only four days' deliberations

it was possible for the committee to agree that in any contingency, including default and resultant sanctions, the holders of the loan should have priority claim to the assets of Germany. With this is coupled an agreement that the protocol to make the conference action effective shall reserve all the rights enjoyed at a distinct victory for her, and takes his satisfaction with the great progress which has been made and his adherents construed this as calculated to silence any claims by his opponents

The Americans and British share

in the French enthusiasm over the fact that the unanimous agreement has carried the work of the conference so far forward, although they do not share the inference that Versailles.

day's understanding.

toward the success of the conference

to the Versailles treaty.

tion of Europe,

<section-header><section-header>

CHAPTER VII-Continued.

The morning was far gone when the woodsman finished his task at the France hails the latter decision as feed-pens.

As he stood leaning against the fence, the events of the day before the log. The leaves were flattened and crossed his mind-the heelprints on the dusty deck of the concealed houseboat; the ivory-handled six-gun; the spark of flint that had transformed the peering eyes of the preacher when he faced the desperado's knife. From this, his mind reverted to the words of that the premier bartered away the Belden about what he had seen in the rights of France under the treaty of little park.

A face rose before him-a face compelling in its easy suavity-that, in spite of its studious severity, seemed to have a strange fascination for Texie. He knew she had let him walk home with her from the festival-a privilege that meant more in the Flatwoods than anywhere else in the world. A deep breath came up out of his breast; his hand gripped the fence The Americans and British do not rall hard.

the barn-lot, turned and followed the But many an insistent task lay waittrail back under the trees, ing. The thought roused him. As he Past the log it led, away to the raised his arm to put on his hat, the north? down the face of the wooded MacDonald government, nor any pre- swent got at the cut in his shoulder bluff and into the narrow road that

LOCK

Illustration by

The act was purely involuntary, but a sight met his eyes that instantly drove

He ducked out of sight in a flash,

caught a distinct view of a slouch hat,

a rough flannel shirt, open at the collar, a glare of dark eyes that smoldered in a face dark and scowling and covered with a stubble of black beard

Texie's startled whisper, as she had of hazel. He raised his head ever so still warm, but the man was gone.

boot in a spot of moist ground at the foot of an oak. After that it was easy,

There were two sets of tracks. To his surprise one set led back toward the cliffs above the homestead. He followed it. At a point along the bluffs that commanded the nearest view of the cabin under the crimson rambler

the mussed leaves and broken weeds

beneath a clump of bushes at the very brink of the rocks showed where the renegade had concealed himself. Three half-burned matches, with which he had probably lighted his pipe, indicated that he had remained some time,

Jack glanced down at the tiny cabin,

-the desperado of the festival,

Irwin Myors

glowering at him.

less a resemblance.

The woodsman had finished his task at the barn and feedpens that evening and returned to the cabin, where, deeply thoughtful he was half mechanically building a fire in the cook stove when his quick ear caught the sound of a light step coming along the path from the orchard. He laid down the kindling and turned toward the door.

The light step had stopped, and Texle stood outlined in the doorway, her eyes dancing alive over the thought of having taken the alert woodsman by surprise, the round wonder of her throat and cheeks touched to a softer blush by the waning sunevery other consideration out of his light that slipped in under the crimmind-from behind a log a man was son rambler.

The man dragged off his hat. The girl glanced over the cabin; lifted her and the woodsman stooped to his task eyes,

-carelessly; without so much as the "Jack, you're the best housekeeper flick of an eye to betray that he had seen anything at all-but he had in the Flatwoods."

The floor creaked with the weight of him as he came to the door. He had to stoop to pass under the lintel, and his massive shoulders spread almost from jamb to jamb.

"It nin't me," he suid in his slow way. "There's a wonderful fairy about these hills som'er's that slips in when fastened the bandages about his shoul-I'm off in the fields, and no matter how upside down I've left things, she jist touches 'em with them small hands fairies has got, 'r mebbe says 'r sings some wonderful charm to 'em, and when I come back, there they are, all spick and span. Some folks says ther ain't no fairies, but I know ther' isone, anyhow."

"Why Don't Y'u Try Some Day t'-Trap Your-Fairy?"

The girl's expressive face was alive and eager.

"Why don't y'u try some day t'trap your-fairy ?"

The heart of the big woodsman rose to his eyes. For a transcendent moment the man in him, sprung from generations of soldiers and gentlemen, supremely dominated the bound boy. He drank in the wonder of her hair, fused to make any comment whatever when he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Schmid at El Pasco, Texas on charges growing out of indictments returned by a special grand jury in the District of Columbia.

The federal power commission has postponed until next fall action on subsidiary of the Electric Bond & Share company of New York, for a for life. license to construct a power dam 90 feet high and 21/2 miles long across ing to restore them to society," exthe Columbia river between Pasco and plained Mr. Darrow. Okanogan, Washington.

A Constantinople court has decided that poker is not a game of chance, follows: according to the London Daily Mail's correspondent in the Turkish city. After hearing a gambling case, in case for the defense are fully aware which defendants were alleged to have of the responsibilities involved. violated the law by playing poker, the court held that there had been amount of attention, and the theory no gambling because chance did not enter into the competition.

Federal officers Monday night raced a passenger train from Grays harbor to Centralia, overtook it in their automobile there, seized oplum and yen shee valued at $150,000 and arrested three men charged with shipping narcotics from Aberdeen. The men under arrest are: Yah Yip, Chinaman; Kock Wah, Chinaman, 37; and H. Samuels, 26, American overseas veteran.

Latin-America for the first 11 months of the fiscal year passed the billion and a half mark and exceeded figures for the 11 months ending May, 1923. by nearly $42,000,000, according to R. of the Oregon Growers and E. E. P. O'Toole, chief, Latin-American divi- Bragg, industrial accident commission, bureau of foreign and domestic sioner, Sunday visited the Elkhorn commerce. The value of American district, where excavations are being merchandise sold to Latin-American made into the side of a huge pyramid markets jumped some $75,000,000, or which explorers believe hold the refrom $5$5,000,000 to nearly $560,000,- mains of some ancient peoples. Work 600. Our purchases of Latin-Amer- has progressed in two tunnels about from 50 to 200 feet high, over a radius ican products declined in value, how- 30 feet. Excavators have located inever, dropping from $957,000,000 to side the pyramid marks which indicate these displays have been visible for $923,000,000.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, reiterated his intention of asking the death penalty for the two college students. Clarence S. Darrow and Benjamin the application of the Washington Ir- Bachrach, attorneys for the defense, rigation & Development company, a announced in court their purpose to see their clients safely incarcorated

"We have had no intention of try-

In behalf of his motion to change the plea he addressed the court as "Your honor, Mr. Bachrach and my self and all of those concerned in this

"The case has attracted an unusua has been advanced that the defense wishes to restore the defendants to society.

"We are of the opinion that thes two young men should be permanently isolated, and it never was our intention to attempt to restore them to freedom.

"It is our intention merely to see that these two defendants are safely incarcerated for the rest of their lives," Mr. Darrow said. "Therefore I move to withdraw the plea of not The trade of the United States with guilty and to enter pleas of guilty for both defendants."

Ancient Relics Sought.

* Salem, Or.-W. I. Staley, secretary

they were made by-human hands.

vious government, nor any considerable section of public opinion has ever recognized the legality under the treaty of Versailles, of the present occupation of the Ruhr.

Rebels to Fight Hard.

Buenos Aires .- The officially heralded decisive action by which the Brazilian government expects to put an end to the Sao Paulo rebellion will find the rebels well prepared, according to unconfirmed dispatches reaching Buenos Aires from near the scene of the struggle.

With approximately 20,000 wellarmed and munitioned men, the rebels are said to be awaiting with confidence an attack by the federal forces. It is asserted that the rebels hold all the strategic points in and about the city of Sao Paulo and also have artillery placed on what are known as the English Bluffs, which command the roads leading to the city and from which the Portuguese a century ago used to watch for hostile Indians.

Farms Gain $1,500,000.

Spokane, Wash. - Stocks of 1923 wheat on hand in eastern Washington and northern Idaho are worth $1,500,000 more today than if they had been sold at the low price level, because of the recent rise in prices, according to Walter J. Robinson, manager of the Washington Wheat Growers. He estimates that there is be tween 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 bushels of wheat held over. The new crop is not being sold, Mr. Robinson said.

Lava Fountains Flow.

Honolulu, T. H .-- Lava began flowing in the crater of Halemaumau Saturday afternoon for the first time since the severe eruptions in May, Lava fountains, including Old Faithful, began shooting their geysers of several acres. Reflections from miles.

and stung him,

He had intended to haul in some shock corn from the bottoms. He frowned toward the wagon; plucked the blouse loose about his shoulder; finally went up into the woods to inspect a string of rail fonce that would have to be repaired before the stock cattle could be turned out of the lower lots into the upland pasture.

He had spent some time readjusting fallen rails and straightening crooked panels when a tiny spot of color in a corner of the fence caught his eye. For some reason it arrested his instant attention. In a moment he was down on his knees parting the weeds and tangled brambles where a yellow orchid had just unfolded the mysteries of its enchanted slipper to the sun. He rose to his feet after a time, but stood gazing down at the flower-a spot of gold in its mean setting.

The Leaves Were Flattened and Still Warm, but the Man Was Gone.

Stopping a few minutes later to ease his shoulder a bit, he happened to threaded Eagle bollow He followed it within sight of the rude hovel at the head of the hollow into which Loge Belden and his sister had lately moved; stopped; studied the place critically for a moment ; finally turned, climbed the bluff and, with an uncomfortable feeling of hidden eyes upon him, returned to his task at the

The forenoon was gone by the time he finished it. As he trudged back, the corner where he had found the yellow orchid drew his eye irresistibly.

Raking away the dead leaves he dug it up, being careful to leave enough soll about the roots to prevent their withering, and carried it in his hands out through the trees and up among the tumbled ramparts of Black rock. In the tiny flower bed at the foot of the sandstone pinnacle where the three names were carved, he hollowed out a place in the rich leaf-mold and set the orchid with the others-all of them doubtless having come there at different times in the same way; rose to his feet and stood deeply pondering, as his gaze rested on the three names carved in the rock. That baffling resemblance, in spite of him, would creep back into his thought,

The bold frankness of the man's face settled to a deeper thoughtfulness; he looked down at the new orchid among the old, fresh and piquant as when he dug it out of the fence corner; glanced toward the red-roofed cottage, and set his feet to the rough path that led down to the fallow yard.

CHAPTER VIII

The Fairy's Secret, The furnishings of the cabin under the crimson rambler would have been a revelation to a stranger entering the door for the first time. A soft-ton rug from the Orient covered three fourths of the rough floor, stoppi just short of the cook stove, whi with its array of utensils, occupied t other fourth. The bed was high po ed and canopled, dressed in the fin linen and hung with faded tapest The chairs were handsomely uphal-stered, while a center table of hand- in all my life. carved rosewood stood in the mid-section of the floor. Along the south wall an American siance over the fence into the woods, flag of slik hung draped, and under its | altar?

the plump soft mystery of her throat and bosom, and his hands instinctively reached toward her.

"I'd give the world-!"

He stopped; the transcendent moment passed. He dropped his eyes and crushed his hat rim in his powerful fingers.

The girl bent her head and a deep thoughtfulness filmed the brown of her eves.

"Jack-!"

He felt the slight tremor in her voice and half guessed what was coming.

"That face las' night-it ha'nts me." Involuntarily he glanced up at the high brink of the cliff, where, under a clump of bushes, lay some mussed leaves and a pinch of pipe ashes.

"Don't let it," was his slow answer. "There's the pilot of the Obenchain, now, looks a pow'rful sight like Lark Sharp, and they ain't a mite of kin in the world."

She pondered the answer and seemed much impressed, even relieved, as he fancled.

"How's Pap Simon t'day?"

"Por father! He ain't hardly left the house sence that-night. He's wrote and wrote, and looked at papers in 'is safe I didn't know 'e had, and this afternoon he had Zeke Polick up with his notary public seal." A shadow flitted across her face. She laced her smooth fingers ; gripped them. "Thatterrible letter! He's read it and read It. Pore Ken-!"

The man reached his arm up over the door; absently felt a spray of rose vine, its buds swollen big with the mystery that was soon to be revealed. The girl glanced at the hand among the rosebuds and slowly turned to the frank and thoughtful face.

mo	'And m	dream	ny fa n con	ther ne t	's	and
	(TO	вя со	NTIN	UED.	.
			iy St		1.1

The Bride-And you acted so cool and collected. Oh, Jack, how could you begin deceiving me even at the