A TIP TO MERCHANTS

Income taxes have been paid for this year, and it is interesting to know that several million who had to pay something last year were fully exempt, and had nothing to pay this time. Reduction in the tax on autos and tires and many other articles, enables the American people to spend over $250,000,000 for other things this year, since that much has been lopped off of income taxes. It is but natural that this vast sum will find its way into the hands of the retail trade of the entire country. It will be felt everywhere, and Maupin should not be an exception. And it is also true that those who will spend the money that otherwise would have gone as taxes will buy the things they see advertised. In other words, the merchant who makes a bid for this extra trade, and these extra dollars, through the columns is apt to get it. Here, then, is a tip that any live, wide-awake tradesman can profit by. Advertise for the extra dollars, instead of letting someone else take them from you by the same methods.

GOOD ADVICE

Mussolini, new ruler of Italy, may be a fire-eater, but he gave the whole world some good advice recently when he instructed the officials of his country to "mind their own business." The United States could profit by that advice just now and cease dipping her nose into Mexico's affairs, so long as Mexico is not interfering with us. The advice to "mind your own business" could also be accepted with profit by every individual citizen of this and every other country. Minding your own business is good common sense, and good law. Sit down and ponder over the mischief that is made and the hearts that are rendered unhappy right here in your home town of Maupin because somebody is minding someone else's business instead of his own. In this day and age there is so much to learn and do on one's own account that there is no real place for the busy-body. And Mussolini is right when he intimates that the same rule applies to nations as well as individuals.

TAKING A STRAW VOTE

Citizens of Maupin who keep posted on national affairs doubtless have noticed with interest the "straw vote" on the Volstead, or prohibition amendment, now being conducted by a large group of daily papers throughout the country. And they also note, no doubt, the bitter attempt being made by several members of congress to bring the argument before that body in such a form that some kind of action will be taken toward amending it.

We have never before used the columns of this paper for a discussion of the merits or demerits of the prohibition act. We have always felt, and still feel, that it is a matter for each individual to thresh out for himself, and that each individual is entitled to his or her own opinion. Congress has passed a prohibition amendment, and bitter arguments among our citizens will not be apt to effect it either way. If those newspapers conducting the "straw vote" feel that they can change it, then they are entitled to whatever comfort such a feeling will give them. One thing, they do not force anyone to take part in their "straw vote," so no harm can result from it.

But, be you wet or dry, you must feel more or less interested in a nation-wide survey of opinion on the subject and, like millions of others you will doubtless watch it closely, even though you may not have taken an actual hand in the voting.

The federal government has called in all $10,000 bills. Maupin residents getting any of them in change should not forget to mail them in to Washington immediately.

We know of one Maupin business man who confines his financial troubles to his wife—when ever she asks him for money.

Amateur gardeners around Maupin are now busy getting the tools in shape so their wives can do the work a little later on.

Well if prohibition hasn't done anything else it has solved the problem of what to do with dandelions.

We are almost around again to the season of the man with the hoe and the politician with the hokum.
