HEARTSTRINGS

The heart is said to be the most sensitive organ in a human body. It is true that all emotions, whether joyous or sad, affect the heart. Only those who have experienced it are able to realize the palpitations of joy in a mother's heart when her new-born infant is laid in her arms. There is no language capable of expressing the ecstasy of the lover when he receives the kiss of betrothal, nor words to tell the joy at the recovery of a loved one from a serious illness.

Then the heart is responsive to sadness. How it is filled with gloom and heaviness when one near and dear is called away; when something to which we have become sentimentally attached is taken from us and a void caused by such bereavement. It makes no difference whether it be a human, a cat, dog or even a toy belonging to some little one. The heartstrings are wrenched tears bidden by the loss fall thick and fast—all prompted by the affected heart.

We had a little dog. Intrinsically she was not worth a single dollar, but her affection for us, which was reciprocated by all members of The Times family, endeared her to each of us. She was the friend of all; kind, playful and obedient. But the long hand of death stretched out and took her to the dog heaven and consequently this office is garbed in mourning. Our heartstrings have received a shock and Judy is grievously missed. A passing shadow causes us to turn in expectation of a loving head being laid upon our lap, of a wagging tail and a loving kiss upon our hand. But when we turn to respond there is nothing there and we heave a sigh and drop a tear. Our tortured heartstrings will heal but the memory of the household pet and companion will remain forever.

NO ROOM TO KNOCK

Nothing retards the growth, prosperity and advancement of a town like a "knock" from someone who lives in it, and nothing injures a country as much as having it placed in a false light by its editors, authors and public speakers.

So far as Maupin is concerned, we have always preached the doctrine of "move out of town if doesn't suit you." There is no law forcing a man to live in a town he doesn't like and he should keep this in mind when he feels an urge to "knock" that town, or any of its people or institutions. So far as the country at large is concerned, the man who is unpatriotic enough to criticize it or its institutions does not deserve the protection the flag affords him.

When we celebrated the Fourth of July this year we celebrated the birthday anniversary of a nation that gave $2,000,000,000 to help rebuild Europe after the war, and in addition marked off as paid three billion dollars of honest debts that were due us. We give more each year for charity than all the other nations of the world combined, and more to religion than Great Britain gives in five. That ought to prove we are not "money grabbers" as other nations contend, and ought to be sufficient to silence the "knockers," just as our local "knockers" will be silenced if they will take a look at a few other towns before they start in to "knock" their own.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

Once a lion was telling a leopard why he roared in the jungle. "Doing business openly and with plenty of advertising," the lion said, "is the way I got my reputation. I earned the name of king of the beasts by blowing my horn. Always let the other fellows know you are around and they will respect you and never bother you." A rabbit hiding nearby heard the advice and decided to try it. So he filled his lungs with a great breath and started out to terrorize all the other animals by roaring like a lion. A wolf, learning of the rabbit's whereabouts by his roar, hopped onto the rabbit and ate him up.

If you haven't got the goods there is no need in advertising. And if you don't advertise it's a pretty good sign you haven't got the goods.

There are three times in every Maupin man's life when he ought to whistle—when he is feeling good, when he isn't feeling good, and when he starts to say something mean about some other fellow.

One of the hardest things a growing girl has to decide is whether she would rather be a "perfect thirty-six and poor or fat and wealthy."

Ask any Maupin woman what is the most useless thing around the house and she will tell you it's a man at canning time.

Who says safety first doesn't pay? The man who invented the first safety pin made $2,000,000 out of it.

Picked Up About Town

Carl Pratt seems to be not affected by the hot weather, for his latest anent to the rising thermometer is: "If we don't have some hot weather soon I suppose along about January wood dealers will be telling us to lay in our fuel supply early."

Bob Wilson says "some people enjoy trouble so much that they spend their lives piling up estates for others to fight over."

Bill Staats broadcasts this epic: "The man who ventures nothing may not gain anything; but he is certain not to lose what he has."

"Many a man who is willing to try anything once," says Raiph Kaiser, "winds up by trying it once to often."

"Half the fun of going home to a vegetable dinner," says 'Dad' Richmond, "is in knowing what you are going to have."

Bates Shattuck moralizes thusly: "What I have never been able to figure out is why folks who stay at home from church are the very ones who ought to go."

"Teeth are nice things to have," asserts Bill Beckwith. "If you had no teeth what would you grit when your wife makes you mad?"

George Tillotson says he has received so many pictures of girls who apply for teaching positions in Maupin schools that he would like to hire them all—that is if their faces lived up to the standard set by the photographer.

Hot weather was the cause of 22 deaths at the Carl Pratt home on Sunday. A hen mother and her 21 chicks fell prey to heat waves. Carl figures that he is out just $22.00 with no way to charge up the loss.

Doc Haley, who is at the Legion hall this week, is a firm believer in physical culture. In order to work up a sweat Sunday he ran around the hall for an hour garbed in a heavy winter overcoat. At that he said he felt fine when he had completed the exercise.

You Can't Laugh This Off

It has been figured out that if the sum of $1.00 had been deposited in a saving bank at 6 per cent on the day of Christ's birth, the interest on it up to the present day would pay off all of the national debts of all of the nations in the world. And interest piles up just as fast today as it has at any time in the history of the civilized world.

Did You Know that the only reason more people are not saving is because they have not learned how fast interest on money mounts up? Why not start on the one road that leads to Comfort and Happiness—the Thrift Road?

Our time is yours if you will ask for it—Drop in and let's talk over the benefit of a saving account—A dollar will start one.
