Garage Sign Changed.

Coincident with the painting of their garage building Wood & Tillotson have changed the sign, which formerly extended over the roadway to the front of the building. Heretofore the board hung too low, and several passing truck tops have collided with it, and to avoid accident the garage firm made the change.

Fire Department Called Out.

The burning of a rubbish pile in the lot just back of the John Foley residence this morning, called out the fire department. The fire had spread to the dry grass adjacent to a woodshed. A stream of water was soon played on the burning rubbish and grass and extinguished without much trouble.

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

Everett Richmond is authority for the statement that he would find it easier to drive a truck than to operate or new linotype. He knows all about a truck, but a typesetting machine gets his "nanny."

"I've often noticed," says French Butler, "that about the time a man is fixed for life he has worried himself to death."

Billy Heckman is a close observer of fashion. His latest is that "too much clothing is said to be fatal to residents of the Dutch colonies in Africa. But our modern American flappers are safe."

"My idea of a brute of a man," asserts Leonard Farlow, "is the fellow who won't shave when his wife tells him for the third time that company is coming."

Verne Fischer says "a jack is a little notched business that lies on the garage floor while your tire is flat 10 miles away."

"If there were more hands rocking the cradle," declares Bob Wilson, "there would be less rocking of the matrimonial boat."

"Thank the Lord for home; you can at least hang up your hat there without paying a check girl a dime to get it back," is the observation of Ben Fraley.

Frank Creager says "as a usual thing the honeymoon ends about the time he can't think of any new pet names to call her."

R. H. Kennedy, who set up our machine, says he will qualify as a fisherman just as soon as he is able to cast a spinner more than 10 feet from the bank.
