Mrs. Eliza Stone, with her son, Roy, and her daughter, Mrs. Anderson, with the latter's son, were guests at the W. H. Staats home Friday night. The visitors were en route home at Troutdale, after a fishing trip to Diamond Lake.

Road Builder In Maupin.

Henry Thaut and wife of Golden-dale, Washington, are guests at the home of Ernest and Mrs. Beeks. Mr. Thaut is a road contractor and is just completing a graveling contract on the North Bank highway in Klickitat county, Washington, his span being between Centerville and Warwick. That stretch is part of the link between Lyle and Golden-dale.

Engine Broke Down

The engine attached to the U. S. Endersby threshing outfit broke down Saturday just as the crew was pulling into the John Ayers place to thresh the last job of the season. In crossing a small furrow the jolt caused an axle on the engine to break. Joe Riggles went to The Dalles Sunday morning, and had the break acetylene welded, after which he took the engine home.

Objects To "Juniper Flat"

A Times reader took us to task the other day for calling the upper country "Juniper Flat." He said the name did not sound just right and suggested that we hereafter we refer to that section as "Wapinitia Plains." We cannot see but what one name is as good as another. Shakespeare said "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet," and as the upper section has been called "Juniper Flat" for so long, these many years, why not continue to so designate it. We will admit that "Juniper Flat" is not as euphonious as "Wapinitia Plains," but how about "Dead Dog," "Horned Toad," "Bakeoven" and other flat sounding names of particular places?

ELEVEN YEARS AGO
From The Times August 27, '15

Dr. M. V. Forrest of Florence, Oregon, a former resident of this city died at St. Vincent's hospital late yesterday, following a brief illness.

The forest fire which started a week ago in the mountains near Clackamas and also near Shellrock Mountain, continues to grow larger. About 150 men are fighting it and more are going there all the time.

A number of men are busy this week constructing a platform 40x100 feet in size along the railroad track, between the river and Hunt's Ferry Warehouse.

Rumor has it that Frank Pierce and Blanche Pachett were married on the summit of Mt. Hood, and that a dance was given in honor of the event at the Summit house that night.

L. D. Kelly and family and Dr. Hatfield and wife were at Missoula, Montana, Saturday, and made the trip from there to Yellowstone Park, arriving Tuesday. They will be home about September 10th.

W. H. Williams and family made the trip down the mountains Monday. Mr. Williams said they got out just ahead of the fire, and that he thinks there a number of people from this side who will be unable to get out until next week unless they come around by Sandy.

Grandma Peterson of Wapinitia started from Johnnie West's to see her little grandson, Henry Nelson, who is very sick at the present. While on her way she became lost and wandered around in the field for some time. She was finally found and taken to her destination.

STATE OWNERSHIP URGED BY COUNCIL

near of Wasco county who is interested in the welfare of the state. As for myself, I represented Wasco and Hood River counties in the House in 1911, and Clackamas county in 1913, and was Progressive candidate for governor in 1914.

The Oregonian says we are not electricians. Neither are our highway engineers, we, as well as they, will have to employ electrical and other engineers to attend to the technical work. I have a fair understanding of irrigation from practical experience and theoretical study.

I realize the responsibility that the handling of so much money entails. I will not vote for any project either for developing electric energy, or irrigation unless I am satisfied that it will repay the cost with interest in 30 years. I will vote against any questionable private development of an irrigation project. I will not favor additional irrigation projects at this time unless very feasible, or where they will save or increase the usefulness of present land settlements. If a market could be found for the electricity, I would favor developing one unit on the Deschutes river. There is plenty of water available for use on Juniper Flat, if a little capital were available. If this measure goes through arrangements could probably be made to supply water to that territory.

The city of Tacoma has a municipally-owned electric plant. So as Los Angeles and Seattle. An ice factory in Tacoma pays $53.20 for electricity that would cost $173.88 in Portland, Oregon; a dairy in Tacoma pays $16.40 for electricity that would cost $32.55 in Portland; A Tacoma hospital pays $12.40 per month for what costs $27.50 in Portland; a Tacoma resident pays $1.89 for what a Portland resident pays $3.85. Yet Tacoma in 12 years accumulated a profit of $1,200,000, and is building a new plant with it Not a cent of tax money has been used.

We need cheap power to encourage manufacturers and to pump irrigating water on our lands. This is the only way to get it.

The electric companies are sending out propaganda trying to tell us of tax money they would lose if they went out of business. With the saving Tacoma is making in her electric bills, can not her citizens afford to pay a little more taxes?

But as I understand it, it is not intended to put them out of business but to create a competition that will compel a reasonable charge.

The Creator made the mountains and put the water on them, and He did not do it as a special favor to the hydro-electric trust. The power is the heritage of all the people and should be conserved for their benefit and uses. Frank M. Gill.
