Journal's Stand Now Decidedly Yellow

Journal Would Now Double Cross Oregon Voters by Boasting Haney's Candidacy

After Frederick Steiwer, republican nominee at the primary election for United States senator, has been called for months The Oregonian's hand-picked candidate, it has been recalled that the Oregon Journal was the very first newspaper in the whole state to suggest Steiwer as a man of senatorial calibre who would make a formidable contender. The first newspaper encouragement for Steiwer to enter the race came from the Journal. It gave a most laudatory article to Steiwer July 12, 1925, this being the first newspaper mention of Steiwer's name in connection with the senatorship. At once a number of up-state papers referred by name to the Journal as having spoken well of Steiwer as a possible candidate and these papers encouraged his boom. Other articles, signed as was the first, by the Journal's political editor, appeared in that paper, each one helping along the boost it had started for Steiwer. Numerous other papers of various cities of Oregon joined in editorial indorsement of his candidacy. Steiwer announced his intent to seek the nomination October 17 of last year, and four days later the Journal started an editorial with the sentence: "Mr. Steiwer, of Pendleton, who announced his candidacy for the senate, is a genial and able man." More newspapers throughout the state then endorsed Steiwer as a good senatorial timber and a number became enthusiastic for him, giving him warm editorial support. By the end of February, 1926, a large group of Oregon papers were committed to Steiwer. It was not until March 13 that The Oregonian came out for him, five months after the Journal had said editorially he was a genial and able man and eight months after the Journal had set the feet of Steiwer on the path to the senate. For campaign purposes the Journal now says Steiwer was hand-picked by the Oregonian. The Journal deserves the credit and not the Oregonian.

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

Dave Donaldson says the average fisherman does not know how to catch the big ones. All he needs is a pole long enough to fish both sides of the river at once.

Carl Dahl is still harping on the ratio and proportion question. He says "the ratio of bootleggers is greater than the proportion of good booze they peddle."

According to a prominent Maupin educator school may be divided into two divisions. One section attend for the athletic instruction received, while a rather small proportion attend for real education.

CRITERION GIRL TELLS OF HER VISIT TO FAIR

(By Elizabeth Rutherford)

I cannot imagine a more beautiful scenic trip than the one over the Columbia River highway at this time of the year, when it is gorgeous in its autumn colors.

We arrived at the Club Home about 6:15 in time for dinner that evening. The next afternoon a trip was made to the state buildings, and a visit to Governor Pierce in his office in the Capitol.

That afternoon when Mary Gesh won fourth on her pig, and Ada Knighten third on her lamb, the Wasco county bunch were a proud crowd. Later, Mary was decorated with a white ribbon, won as "showman."

Much time was spent in the main exhibit building, and in the O. A. C. building that housed the club work, the college display as well as many other interesting projects. The well-filled stock barns were a source of delight to every girl and boy on the grounds. The exhibit of chickens, rabbits and pigeons was said to exceed that of any previous year.

Among the events enjoyed were the night horse shows and the Legion Drum Corps contest, in which Salem won first. In addition to the Legion drum corps from eight different posts were the McMinnville High school band of boys and girls, the Allied Veterans' Kiltie Pipe band of Portland, the Cherrian band and the G. A. R. fife and drum corps.

On Friday night the four chosen as the most outstanding club members in the state were entertained at a banquet by E. L. King, superintendent of the Southern Pacific Lines, on his private car at the fair grounds.

The four members who won medals, ribbons, trips and school tuitions with their work were: Ruth Laster, 16, of Portland, 1st in canning, 1st in home making, 3rd in sewing. Ruth has been in club work for five years. Lois Bailey, 13, of Grants Pass, won 1st in canning, 1st in sewing division 2, 3rd in sewing division 3. Roy Harms, 18, Aurora, won 1st in the milk goat division, 2nd Ches-

HINTS FOR FARM AND HOME

Suggestions of Value to Housewives and Ranchers

Pig Starters

An excellent ration on which to wean young pigs consists of skim milk and corn or skim milk and shorts, fed in the proportion of 3 to 1. If the skim milk is not available, a mixture of 5 parts corn meal, 4 parts middlings, and one part tankage fed in a thin slop is very good. Good, succulent pasture is always in order. It will aid materially in putting growth on the young pigs, and will lessen the grain expense. After the pigs have been weaned and are eating well, the most difficult part of their care is over. The feeding and management from then on will depend upon whether they are to be kept for breeding or fattened for the market.

Warm Bees

In regions of extreme winters it is advisable to winter bees in cellars rather than outdoors. In such climates the bees are compelled to generate sufficient heat to overcome the cold. This calls for the expenditure of much more food and vitality than are required when they are kept in a good cellar during the months of extreme cold.

Scorch Stains

For serious scorch stains the following procedure may be used: Moisten a piece of cotton cloth in hydrogen peroxide and place over the stain. Cover with dry cloth. Iron with medium hot iron. If the hydrogen peroxide soaks through the dry cloth, replace with another cloth. Be very careful to see that the peroxide does not come in contact with the iron as it will rust the iron very rapidly. Brown stains will then be left on any garment which the iron touches. For the same reason, do not iron the fabric from which the stain has been removed until the hydrogen peroxide has had must be used carefully on colored fabrics because the dyes may be bleached out. However, it can be used successfully on any kind of white fabric.

Cannot Tax Sheep In But One County

Decision in Tax Case of Interest to Oregon Sheep Men.

The following from the Oregon Woolgrower may prove of value to sheepmen of this state, as it has a bearing on taxes levied against sheep grazing in counties other than the one in which they are owned:

In the case of Falconer vs. Horner, an injunction was sought against Horner, the assessor of Wallowa county, to restrain him from collecting taxes on transient sheep which had already paid a full year's assessment in Umatilla county. This assessment had been made before the 1925 law took effect and the assessor of Umatilla county was within his rights in so doing. The assessor of Wallowa county assessed the same band in August, and endeavored to collect 40 per cent of the year's taxes, to this Falconer objected as he had already paid a year's taxes on the sheep. The judge decided for Falconer, and as other growers have undoubtedly paid taxes, and are entitled to refunds, it might be well to bring your case to the attention of the Association. Steps can then be taken looking towards a refund.

Went to Shaniko.

Last Friday evening Phil Starr, our trusty clerk at the Wilson store, went to Shaniko to attend the dance. He was accompanied by his wife and two daughters, Minnie and Bessie, Florence Cavan and Regina Muller. They report that they had a good time while there and hope to be able to attend more of the dances the coming winter.

Entertaining Baseball Fans.

Verne Fischer, the trusty mechanic on the East side, is entertaining baseball fans over his radio these days. Quite a number of people have been listening to the world series games between the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees.
