HOUSEWIVES' HOME POINTERS

From School of Home Economics Oregon Agriculture College

Do you know that you are not really well fed, no matter how much meat and potatoes you eat, unless you have at least one green vegetable a day?

Baking soda often used with green vegetables to set the color and make more tender, kills some of the vitamins.

Rayon requires special care in laundering. As with silk it should not be rubbed directly with soap, but treated with a solution of mild soap dissolved in lukewarm water before put with the materials to be washed. It is then washed with a gentle, squeezing motion, wrapped in a soft towel to absorb excess moisture and ironed with a moderate hot iron.

The greasy condition of doughnuts is removed by plunging them quickly into hot water immediately after they are fried.

One heaping tablespoonful is equal to three level tablespoonsful, and one rounding tablespoonful is equal to two level tablespoonsful.

The lower crust of a berry pie will not be soggy if sprinkled with flour or flour and sugar before the filling is poured in.

Children enjoy junket made attractive with vegetable coloring.

Farm Reminders

Forcing or fattening feeds are harmful to the birds during the breeding season, according to the poultrymen at the college station.

Chicks are not removed from the incubator immediately after hatching by successful Oregon poultrymen. They are allowed time enough to dry off thoroughly before being moved.

Planer shavings as filler for bee smokers is recommended by H. A. Scullen, bee specialist at O. A. C. Other substances such as dry corn cobs, oily waste, and dry rotten wood may also be used.

Alfalfa is not successful when seeded too early in Oregon, says the experiment station. Plantings in late spring have always given better results than fall or early spring planting. It is essential to get the seed bed free from weeds and well settled for alfalfa.

North Junction Mutterings

F. A. Boscow, roadmaster on the O. W. R. & N. railway, with his wife and son, Billie, spent the week end at North Junction as guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCarty.

Lester Crofoot, who has been laying off for a matter of a week or so, suffering with the flu, has returned to his work at Cove Creek.

On account of the extreme high water last week continuous service was established at the telegraph office here, Clarence D. Hoffman of Portland being the third operator.

Frank A. Brown, track walker from Maupin, made a short call at North Junction Saturday last.

Frank A. Brown has turned in his old radio receiver and in its stead has purchased one of the new Hawwat receivers. He is now stepping out and getting the far distant ones. Read The Times and get the news.

Transplanting Early Vegetables

Transplanting of early cabbage and lettuce plants in Oregon will begin as soon as weather and soil conditions are suitable, says the vegetable department of the state college. By setting plants out in late February or early March the grower has an opportunity to harvest them early in May when demand is strong and prices good. The most widely used variety of cabbage is Golden Acre, a Copenhagen market strain, and of lettuce is, New York.

Jack—"Bill, I wancha drive careful, firs thing you know you have us in a ditch!"

Bill—"Me! Shay, I thot YOU was driving!"

Aunt: "So your fiance went away yesterday. Parting is very painful, isn't it?"

Niece: "I should say it is Auntie, Every rib in my body aches."

"Does your wife drive the car?"
"Yes, but I steer it."
