PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

No, No, Percy, that was not a meteor you saw flashing by. It was John Confer in his brand new Ford car. John tired of his old motor and to be in style induced the Tillotson Motor company to sell him a new boat.

Over at Warm Springs river on Sunday Jesse Addington couldn't figure out what made the steam arise from some pools while others showed none. Temple told him to stick his hand into the water and find out the reason for the fog. Jess did, immediately pillin git out with the declaration that he had been scalded. He now believes that nature has her own way of heating water.

The merchant at Gateway seems to have it in for Chesterfield cigarettes. When asked for a package on Sunday last, he said he had none on hand but mentioned Camels, Omars, One-Elevens and Cubes.

A party of Maupin young people who attended the dance at Shady Brook last Saturday night, surely made a full night of it. On the way home at a seasonable hour their car went haywire and daylight found them blowing into Maupin, a tired but happy crowd.

After the first of May, when anyone desires to address George Tillotson, a letter bearing the inscription "Tillotson Motor Company" will reach him. The old firm of Wood-Tillotson Co., have gone into the discard and with the opening of the new garage comes the new name.

Oscar Renick keeps things at the Tum-A-Lum Lumber company's yard a hummin'. Besides filling orders for lumber, lime, cement, brick, wood, etc., he finds time to accumulate a few "hickys" by trimming a few fellows at pinochle.

Joe Kramer came up from the river last Saturday all worked up. He had been fishing and hooked something that proved too strong for Joe's rod and then proceeded to hide in the depths of the water. Joe went back with stronger tackle, but as usual, the big one got away.

The Shell people believe in flaunting their favorite color before the eyes of the populace. Part of one side of Butler's store building received a coat of brilliant yellow, as did the old Richmond signs and over that was inscribed letters which spell Shell Gasoline.

Bob Wilson is up in arms against the practice of icing head lettuce. It is shipped to The Dalles in refrigerator cars and from them unloaded in to an ice box, and shipped here partly frozen. After being exposed to the air a short time the lettuce begins to rot, and entails a loss to those handling it.

Monday morning Mrs. Willis Roberts received a message which told of the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Tracey Wilkinson, who was at Emanuel hospital in Portland, and who was to undergo a major operation. Mrs. Robert left for Portland on the evening O. T. train.
