INCONSISTENCY

We sometimes wonder if all mankind is inconsistent, whether there are none who consider things with an unprejudiced mind and who are broad enough to "give the devil his due." There are people who seem to delight in having the papers tell of the lapses of others, but who are miffed and filed if the editor speaks of them in any manner not according to their lights. There are others who get all worked up if anything is said which might reach the ears of certain others, even though the mention is actual truth and was written with no idea of placing the subject in a wrong light.
 A short time ago a certain man was mentioned in a paper in a jocu-lar way. Later he went to the newspaper office in an angry mood, stopped his paper and berated the writer for the mention. Among other things he said the article was not taken amiss so far as he personally was concerned, but certain things were said that he did not care for the members of the concern he worked for to learn of.

 There is a great deal of inconsistency in what he said. While we do not believe his duties are such that he should be bound to his desk at all times, and that a little recreation should be enjoyed, still in the case at bar the man should not have been afraid his actions might have called for censure on the part of his employers, should they have found out his slight dereliction to their interests.

The article was not written for the purpose of appraising the head office of anything not according to Hoyle on the part of the employe, but merely, rather, to give him a pat on the back for performing the duties of his office in a meritorious manner.

OUT TO WIN

In many schools there seems to be a feeling that, when competing against other institutions of learning the main thing is to win. It is not considered that such events are provided to foster a social feeling, to more firmly fraternally amalgamate students into a general body, one that will tend to uplift and up-build our schools.
 School rivalry oftimes reaches a point that to win against another is the main object. That is all wrong.

 Contests between schools should be considered in the light of social visits. They are a means of intercourse that should bespeak a fraternal feeling; should seek to elevate to a plane that rivalry, other than merely friendly one, should be done away with.
 Many cities and towns have been estranged from others by the acts of students in carrying a grudge against some other school, all because of certain defeats in school games. That feeling has been carried for years and in many instances have been carried to an extreme.
 Such is all wrong. Neighboring places should be neighborly. The affairs of one become a part of the other. No place can exist by itself.
 It needs the cooperation of its neighbors and there is no one thing which fosters taht cooperation so much as friendly relations between schools.

Tom Vernon, erstwhile bootlegger and moonshiner, has violated his parole and is now serving a six months suspended sentence in the Wasco county jail. Tom agreed to keep away from both this and Hood River counties, and only make short visits to Sherman county. It seemed as though the old saw about a criminal seeking the scene of his crime worked true in Vernon's case. Either that or some of his customers were overcome with a consuming thirst and called upon him for the wherewith to alleviate it, that caused him to violate his parole.

One day last week we asked the "oldest settler when the wind stopped blowing on Juniper Flat, if it ever did. He replied, "I have lived here fifty years and it has never stopped at all in all that time, if memory serves me right."

"One swallow does not bring spring, but one swallow of the stuff sold under the guise of whiskey will make a gray digger fight like a rattler." We've tried it and know by experience.

"The way of the transgressor is hard." Verified in the case of the five moonshine sellers at Shaniko, who were taken in by the minions of the law last week.

April showers were few and far between, but at that our hills are covered with all kinds of flowers—mostly blooming weeds.

THE CORRAL
 By M. J. W.

And now comes a National Music week. Every body sing. Except you Archibald. Your voice is like Caruso's, only better. The stiller the better.

Wherefore art thou, Romeo?
 Kathleen Mavoureen what, slumber still? "If you can't sing, whistle." That's the big slogan.

Besides, Kathleen, there's induc-ments, as the following tete-a-tete between mother and daughter tend to show.
 (With enlargements on the original verse.)

Whistle For It
 Whistle, daughter, whistle
 And you shall have a cow,
 I can't whistle, mother, Because I don't know how.

Whistle, daughter, whistle,
 And you shall have a pig.
 I can't whistle, mother,
 Because I am too big.

Whistle, daughter, whistle,
 And you shall have a goat,
 I can't whistle, mother,
 Because it hurts my throat.

Whistle, daughter, whistle,
 And you shall have a goose,
 I can't whistle, mother,
 Because a tonsil's loose.

Whistle, daughter, whistle,
 And you shall have a duck,
 I can't whistle, mother,
 Because it brings bad luck.

Whistle, daughter, whistle,
 And you shall have a cat,
 I can't whistle, mother, That's all there is to that.

Whistle, daughter, whistle,
 And you shall have a barn,
 I can't whistle, mother,
 And I don't give a darn.

Whistle, daughter, whistle,
 And you shall have a man, (Wh-r-r-r-r, wh-r-r-r-r-r.) I just found out I can.

Goldsmith tells us of some chap-who "cast off his friends, as a huntsman his pack, For he knew when he wished, he could whistle them back." Good whistling, that. Think how handy when you'd want to borrow a few bones.
