

This age of high standards welcomes the Camel quality

MODERN smokers are the most exacting ever known, and they place Camel first among cigarettes.

For Camel was created to succeed in the hardest-to-please age ever known. It was made to satisfy those who demand the utmost, and modern smokers have given it such popularity as no other cigarette ever had.

If you're downright hard to please, just try Camels. Tobacco taste and fragrance will be revealed as never before, for Camels are rolled of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos, supremely blended. This modern cigarette exceeds all other standards but its own. To light one is to find taste fulfillment. "Have a Camel!"

What-ho Vacation!
"Our vacation days are here
Happiest days of all the year."

Vacation is coming and I'm ready to swear

I'll go to the country and spend it there.

I'll flee from the classroom's rule and law

From English and science cut loose

And go where the strawberry grows on its straw

And the gooseberry grows on its goose.

And I'll rise at morn with the early bird

To the fragrant farmyard pass

Where the shepherd turns his beautiful herd

Of grass hoppers out to grass.

No more lessons, no more tests,

No more laughs at teachers' jests.

No more books and no more classes,

Will I miss them? Yes! the lasses.

Teacher's Pet! Do you?

Contest Weeded Out

It is to be regretted, that out of the vast number of candidates announcing their desire of entering the Maupin May King Contest so few were able to survive the rigid inspection imposed by the rules.

Three popular High school chaps were weeded out due to their obvious bewilderment and perplexity in distinguishing "plus fours" and golf knickers at the established distance.

Another very eligible candidate had to be disbarred since it was proven he had, on several occasions, worn a red necktie within the last 11 months.

Circumstantial evidence was too strong in the case of another likeable entrant. It was reported that he has been in the habit of purchasing a bottle of Listerine every Saturday night. The Committee felt that all regulations must be strictly adhered to.

This weeding out process has left the field clear to three contestants. Although it was primarily the intention to publish their full names and any other interesting data obtainable, a certain reticence and innate modesty urged them to request that we refer to them by other names than their own. For the sake of convenience we shall allude to them as Mr. A, Mr. B, and Mr. C.

1. Mr. A, when interviewed, frankly admitted that his chances for election looked very favorable due to his fame gained as an example of "What Palm Olive Oil Soap Did To Me." He is strongly in favor of abolishing tin earrings.

2. When the reporter called upon Mr. B., he was mistaken by this well-known man for an agent or representative of Fleischman's Yeast Co., and commenced to address him, "For three years I was unable to perform my own work, but after one cake of yeast after each meal every day I am now able to rise to any occasion. I feel I cannot say too much in praise of—" but here the reporter felt impelled to prevent any more personal disclosures, and informed him of the nature of his visit. Mr. B. says he has always admired women for their beauty and intelligence and expects their votes.

3. Mr. C. says "There is very little doubt in my mind as to the outcome of this gala affair. The populace, in the main, is with me to the last gasp. One of the many points in my favor is my thoro knowledge of "Etiquette," being as I was, Emily Post's inspiration on her famous book on that subject.

The foregoing men are all a-twitter and agog, one might say, in anticipation of the great honor to be conferred on one of them. They await only an elective majority of votes.

Will it be necessary to add, "Let your conscience be your guide" in voting?

FOOT FACTS TO INTEREST ALL

U. S. Department of Agriculture Issues New Bulletin on Leathers

Leather shoes have received much attention from scientists in the United States Department of Agriculture who are engaged in the study of leather and its uses. In studying the suitability of different leathers for footwear considerable has been learned about the selection of shoes and the care of footwear so that it will give the maximum service. The information has been incorporated in a bulletin, No. 1523-F.

An interesting discussion is presented on the different types of shoes and their construction.

The service to which a shoe is to be put is an important factor in selecting of footwear. Particular attention is given in this bulletin to a description of the different kinds of leathers used in shoes and their relative value.

To be comfortable, durable, safe, and attractive, shoes for everyday wear must conform to the natural shape of the feet and protect them, says the department. They must also provide a firm foundation for the body. The well-known Army shoe meets these requirements. Civilian shoes made along the same lines, but of lighter-weight material and more pleasing appearance, can now be obtained in most parts of the United States. They are well adapted for everyday wear in the city and country alike.

The proper care of footwear, coupled with its intelligent selection, means a reduction of from one-quarter to one-half in shoe bills and at the same time keeps the feet neatly and serviceably shod. Good care includes prompt repair. It is never true economy to wear down-at-the-heel, dilapidated shoes. Such shoes neither protect the feet nor properly support the body. What might be saved in leather may be paid eventually to foot specialists and doctors. If the necessary repairing is put off the shoe may be so badly worn that it no longer is worth mending and from $2 to $5 will be lost by neglect.

Further suggestions as to the care of shoes include attention to cleaning and renovating, drying, oiling and greasing, and waterproofing. Several formulas for waterproofing are given in the bulletin.

A copy of the bulletin may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Farm Reminders

Overfeeding and not underfeeding is the cause of many poultry ailments in Oregon, says the Oregon experiment station.

A poultry house in the orchard gives two incomes per acre—valuable fertilizer and shade for hot summers.

Some cod-liver oil mixed in with the dry mash keeps fowls in better flesh and promotes firmer egg shells.

High egg yields are obtained for a short time by feeding very concentrated feed materials and drugs but the hen is limited in her future usefulness.

Swarm prevention is an important spring problem in honey production, says H. A. Scullen, assistant entomologist of the Oregon experiment station. More ventilation, larger brood chambers, fewer drones, younger queens and the destruction of queen cells will discourage swarming. The beekeeper can prevent developing queen cells by thoroughly examining hives every 10 to 14 days. Ventilation is obtained by enlarging hive entrances, and younger queens may be introduced when queens older than two years are present in the hives.
