OBITUARY

Emma Magill was born in Bennington, county, Indiana, January 24 1844, and died at Wamic, Oregon, on Thursday, September 15, 1927, having reached the age of 83 years, seven months, and 22 days. She was laid to rest in the Wamic cemetery Saturday last, the funeral being attended by numerous relatives and friends, the services being under the direction of Rev. Alfred Frischknecht.

Thirty-one years ago Mrs. Magill was compelled to take to her bed and for that length of time was an invalid. She bore her load with a degree of patience seldom experienced, always being cheerful, never complaining and taking life at it was doled out to her. Her memory was clear and it never caused her study to recall events of years ago. She was wont to call each of her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren by their names, remembered date of birth of each and incidents connected therewith.

Decedent was married to J. R. Magill at Farmington, Mass., on July 4, 1860, and later moved with her husband to San Francisco. The same year, 1874, her husband and family came to the Wamic section, where they resided until the end came. Mr. Magill preceded his wife about two years ago. To the couple seven children were born, they being W. F. Magill of Portland; Fred and George Magill of Wamic, the others, daughters, are Mrs. Anna Packard of Longview, Washington; Mrs. Edith Eubanks of Wamic; Mrs. Jessie McCorkee of Wapinitia, and Mrs. May Crofoot of Maupin. Besides the children two brothers, J. C. and Wm. Gardner, of Selway, Montana, and one sister, Mrs. Josephine Verleyes of Carson, Kansas, are left to mourn her departure.

There are 26 grandchildren and 26 great grandchildren who remain, all of whom are in deep grief at the taking away of the one who really founded a great progeny.

Grandma "Magill," as she was familiarly called, was a pioneer in every sense of the term. It was she who was called in the early days to minister to the ailing and it was she whose words of cheer made the lives of those who were opening up a new country easier to bear. Her life may be compared to a great poem, as it contained all that was great and good, and may well be considered a goal or which all should strive. Bearing her misfortune with the stoicism of a heroine, she never complained, trusted in the Lord and fully believed that in death she would be relieved of all earthly suffering and would find surcease of pain in a land prepared for the righteous. As age advanced she was more and more convinced in the infallibility of Christ and met the end with a smile.

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

Oscar Renick knows lumber when it is sawed as such. But there is a heap he may learn about the various species of oak—the poison variety especially. He came in contact with a bunch of that foliage one day last week and as a result is now wearing sundry bandages covered with sugar of lead.

Bob Wilson has the fever—not the buck kind but the deer epidemic. He has been stewing and fretting ever since the season opened and was fearful he would not get an opportunity to hunt the mountains and canyons for deer. His partner, Charley Crofoot, has been ill with quinsy, but at this writing is again able to sit up and take nourishment, as well as attending to the store, so Bob has hid himself to the high spots after deer.

Several cars containing Indians passed through Maupin Monday. The braves and squaws, not to forget the papposes, were bound for the mountains on an annual deer hunt. The Indians seem to have an aptitude for finding just where the deer stay, and each buck was optimistic regarding the number each intended killing.

Fish are biting like mad. Several local followers of Isaak Walton were on the river at divers times during the past week and each caught all he wanted. While the trout are not as large as fishermen would like, still some catches of fairly large fish were made.

Ollie Weberg is sore at the world. Just as he became settled in a job as school janitor he was summoned as grand jurymen and for the next few days will listen to evidence and decided whether or not some men

Some men are prone to exaggerate the number and size of the fish they catch. Not so Jim Chalmers. Our worthy blacksmith went fishing last Sunday. He fished hard. Upon his return from the river he was asked about his catch. "Just four," replied Jim. Not satisfied with the answer his interrogator looked into Jim's basket and saw—just four trout.

Phil Starr has been harvesting his crop this week. Said crop consisting principally of that vegetable which goes to make hamburger steak more palatable. Phil had a good crop, all large, and solid, and it may be truthfully said of our

A dance at Shady Brook without the presence of K. L. Hauser on the floor is like raisin cake without the raisins. K. L. will be much in evidence at the Community hall on the evening of October 1, and the fact that he will have something to do with the dance is guarantee that a good time is on tap.

Dr. Elwood says that all things are not equal and not as they should be. A friend presented our doctor with some fine trout one day recently. He took them to a restaurant, had them fried and he ate them with a relish. Now the doctor says that the joy of eating the trout is minus, for the restaurant people charged him for the meal.
