Published every Thursday at Maupin, Oregon

Subscription: One year, $1.50; six months, $1.00; three months, 50 cts.

Entered as second class mail matter September 8, 1914, at the post office at Maupin, Oregon, under the act of March 3, 1879.

The usual Christmas slogan, "shop early," is again confronting us in the newspapers. The slogan is all right, but to the average publisher of country papers the saying should be paraphrased to "pay your subscription so the publisher may have the coin with which to do a little Christmas shopping."

A contemporary asks "what has become of all the old-fashioned red flannel underwear that was once worn by our forefathers?" Worn out long ago, brother. Besides the red dye once used in such goods is now in greater demand as a beautifier on flappers' faces.

One of the queer things in life is that some people who do not take a home newspaper are the loudest in their condemnation of it, while those who help sustain it with their patronage feel it is a good thing for themselves and the community.

It is claimed the cause of the murder near Condon on last Friday was a case of unrequited love. Bosh, and again, bosh. "Puppy love," and that, added to a low mentality, was most likely the real cause.

One of our subscribers remarked the other day that "when you hear a feller shoutin' the most about how to improve the town, you kin pretty near bet that he means fur somebody else to put up the spondulicks."

The moon is said to exert a great influence on the tides. At the same time some autolsts seem to be under the moon's influence, for many of them suffer as a result of too much moonshine.

Christmas cheer is in the air. But we're afraid the cheer may be turned to chill in this print shop if some of our delinquent subscribers do not come through and pay up.

We have seen pictures of sand storms on the desert, but the wind storms of the past few days in this valley caused as much anguish as any shown on the screen.

They Work To Your Style.
The Modern Barbers, 410 East Second street, The Dalles, are leaders in ladies hair cutting in this part of the state. They study the particular style of each customer and when they have completed a job all the good points of each face are brought into relief. The cleanest shop in this part of Oregon.

Home Over Sunday.
The Junior member of The Times firm, E. R. Semmes, who is pounding the keys of the typesetting machine on the Dufur Dispatch, spent Sunday at home, returning to Dufur on Monday morning.

Bought Service Station.
Lee F. Jackson, at one time the meat market man at Tygh Valley, has purchased the Hillcrest service station, at the corner of Loughlin and Clay streets, The Dalles, and from now on will dish out gas and lubricating oils to autoists.

Built Dairy Barn.
Job Crabtree lately completed a fine dairy barn and now has a place in which to house his dairy herd. Job has seven fine cows and since embarking in the milk business has found customers for all the milk he can furnish. The new barn has room for all his cows as well as a place for considerable hay.

Christmas Misgivings

CHRISTMAS time is approaching, and as it gets nearer the need of a little money is apparent to many who would remember their loved ones and friends with remembrances of the season. To many the time is filled with misgivings, for the wherewith to purchase those presents is not at hand and some little ones will be torn with heartaches, all because Santa did not call on them.

Guard against such by arranging to keep a balance in the bank, ready to help out when the necessity arises. Bank with the HONEST merchants are in business to help you with your buying problems. You may reply, "They are in business to make money!" And, of course, they are. But the point is: They know that the best way to make money is to serve you honestly and efficiently.

to buy

One of the most valuable services a merchant can render you is to tell you when to buy. He knows the market. He is kept informed about raw materials and manufacturing problems. He gets all the advance tips on styles. He even knows pretty well what your particular circumstances are, and what your needs will be.

So, his advice—as offered through his ads in this paper—is worth money to you. When he announces a special sale, or displays a new line of goods, it is well for you to investigate.

There's always a right time to buy, and the ads in this paper will keep you posted. Read them and follow their advice!
