I Ask You

"Abie, what you mean by blaying mit matches on de zidvalk? Come right away in de stove and blay mit 'em."

Hollis In From Ranch.

Hurstel Hollis came in from his ranch Monday, walking to the highway and then catching a ride to town. He has been repairing fences rebuilding houses, cleaning out the well and installing a new pump. He nearly ran out of grub, so made the trip to town to replenish his larder.

Thir!

The poor devil lisped. He was out with a girl. He murmured, "I love to thee a girl thigh." And she slapped him.

ELEVEN YEARS AGO

From the Time January 4, 1813

The many friends of John Mayfield of Wamic, who was married to Miss Bessie Martin at The Dalles last week, are congratulating the newlyweds, who will make their home there.

About 40 friends of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Shepflin enjoyed a dance at the Shepflin home last Saturday night.

A chinook broke on us Monday which took the snow and left a spring-like atmosphere, which continues at present.

Cecil Woodcock, who spent a part of the holidays at his home here, returned to The Dalles Friday. He was on the train on the Deschutes line, a car of which jumped the track, so he went to Maupin and came home from there.—Wamic Corr.

The new Hotel Kelly is nearing completion and will soon be ready for occupancy.

The New Year dance given in the Shattuck hall Saturday night was largely attended, and proved one of the best of the season. Many took advantage of the masquerade feature of the dance to appear in regalia. Mrs. T. A. Connolly, representing "Columbia," took the first lady's prize, while Van Mead was awarded the best gent mask, he representing a page boy.

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

Th sight of an old fashioned cutter passing through Maupin Tuesday recalled days of our youth, when "catching on" bobsleds was a diversion of all youngsters. All that was lacking to make the rig synonymous with our early age was a string of sleigh bells.

The modern preacher must be a master of all trades. Some of them turn to carpentry, others work on ranches while still others have been known to labor on railroad sections. Rev. Everett Hazen does none of those things, but occasionally cuts the hair of some of his flock. The reverend gentlemen makes no distinction in the color of the hair amputated, his shears working equally well in red as other colored locks.

Jess Temple and Phil Starr are huskies who falter at no job of work. This was shown Sunday night when they took the road truck to the Criterion hill for the purpose of scraping snow from the roadway. When the truck broke down and a walk of 12 miles faced them, they altered not, but took their feet in their hands and proceeded to grill toward home. It is by such men that wars are won.

Bill Staats likes to enjoy the heat of a fire in cold weather. It is said of him that when he was keeping store in Maupin, travelers, who knew of his predilection for comfort, would say: "When we get to Staats' store we'll find plenty of heat, and Bill will be sitting near the stove."

Doctor Elwood and Alvis Martin are workers for charity. Not alone in the sense that they "dig down" in their jeans at every request for alms, but in a manner that bodes good in another way. After the recent snowfall and sleet each loaded himself with a shovel and did heroic work in cleaning off the snow from the walks from their residence to the Tillotson garage corner. The Times benefited as a result, our walk being cleared from snow. Thanks gentlemen.

A certain school director objected to The Times force seeing the basketball game on complimentary tickets last Friday night at the gym. When confronted with the question as to who was responsible or the game and who guaranteed expense of the visitors, he shut up like a clam. Verily a little authority is a dangerous thing when vented in some people. And again the sponsor of the game asked us to give it publicity and voluntarily handed us the tickets. And we gave the game an advertisement without charge, believing that by so doing we would help the home team.

The recent snow caused a few building owners gobs of trouble. The warm weather which followed melted the snow on the roofs and in some instances the resultant water backed up in eave troughs and proceeded to find an outlet within the walls. Then some floors received a washing not down in the usual order of things in some of the buildings.

SPECIAL OVERHAUL PRICES

As this is the dull season of the year and we desire to keep our shop force busy, we have decided to offer special inducements to car owners who want their cars overhauled and placed in shape for next year's use. Come in and let us tell you just what we will do the work for you. Remember our prices will be lower than those charged in the busy season.

The Farmers' Non Partisan Defender in Washington

You need this valuable newspaper in your home, because: You will receive FRESH NEWS every week, that is edited for farmers by men who know agriculture.

THE NATIONAL FARM NEWS gives the farmer and the rural town man an all-agricultural survey of the week's news, with a leaning toward the economics of production and marketing. The editorial staff is in close touch with the marketing machinery of the Agricultural Department and all the heads of the various cooperative marketing associations that are located in Washington.

WASHINGTON is the great clearing house of farm news. Every day brings the National Government into more intimate relationship with the country's basic industry—farming. Congress is just at the beginning of its real farm legislation. The wild scramble of blocs and panaceas that marked the past few years has subsided. But from now on there will be a steady, constructive program developed for the permanent improvement of farming.

Washington is the headquarters of the United States Department of Agriculture. This vast governmental agency is constantly at work on farm problems. It concerns itself not only with production, but with the business side of agriculture.

Washington, too, is the headquarters of many other branches of the Federal Government whose work touches in many vital ways the business of the farmers.

Most of the big farmers' organizations recognize the strategic advantage of being close to the governmental wheels. They maintain headquarters at the National Capital. Washington is the center of farm news.

In addition to its news, The National Farm News carries some carefully conducted departments. For the housewife there is the women's page, where interests and matters pertaining to the household are discussed.

In addition to these features is an excellent legal department. Advice on knotty problems may be had for the asking, given by competent lawyers engaged in daily practice.

Then, too, there is a "Question and Answer" department for agricultural information. You may send in any question and it will be answered as quickly as space will permit. The Congressional Library is here and it has the largest collection of books in America.

The National Farm News is equipped to perform a real service for the farmer and to meet a real need in his business.

The subscription price is only $1.00 per year.
