

All these closed cars have FISHER BODIES

THE mechanical performance of General Motors cars is tested and proved on General Motors' 1,245 acre Proving Ground. Before any new model is put in production, it must pass more than 135 different tests for power, speed, durability and general performance.

As to the appearance and comfort of General Motors cars, we invite you to be the judge. Every closed body is built by Fisher—the largest builder of automobile bodies in the world. The experience and the vast production of the Fisher Company mean more beauty, more comfort, and more luxury than you will find anywhere else at corresponding prices.

We invite you to check, on the coupon below, the cars that appeal to you most. Complete literature will be sent to you, without any obligation.

A WINNING PAIR

Hoover-Curtis, a winning pair in the political game this year. A combination that cannot be beaten; names to conjure with, but names of men who stand out before the whole world as being of the staunchest and most capable and cleanest of any pair of aspirants, to the greatest offices within the gift of the American people. Truly the convention at Kansas City was awake to the fact that none but the strongest men available should be chosen as candidates for the offices of president and vice-president of the United States. They're winners, and that will be shown at the election in November.

More of Harry Thaw is to be given to the world. His ex-wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, promises to make public many things regarding one of this country's most notorious characters not yet known. That's right, Evelyn, stir up your dirty mess and pollute the social atmosphere a bit more. Some people may like that stuff, but a big majority would rather you kept your dirty linen in the closet.

A horse meat dinner was recently served in Paris. Not horse meat alone was on the bill of fare, but donkey and mule flesh occupied a prominent place thereon. If the Parisian really desire some thing rich in the line of horse meat they should have imported some of Eastern Oregon's bunch grass fattened fuzz tails.

Herbert Harris, senior in chemical engineering at the Oregon State university, has just completed a series of tests with mercury which he claims has resulted in the production of pure gold. Why not try to perfect perpetual motion next.

In Key West some of the primary election inspectors were paid $80 each for counting the votes. Time was when a whole election could have been bought for that much money.

It is said that wool is now being made from pine needles. It has always felt that way to a sensitive epidermis.

Italy's new tennis champion is named Gasolini, and they say he does step on it.

FARM REMINDERS

Small grains and grasses are cut for hay in Oregon not later than the soft dough stage for highest grade product, says the experiment station. As a general rule, the right time for cutting most kinds of hay is just before it loses its green color.

Hay of good quality is frequently reduced in market value because bales are ragged in appearance or are so poorly tied as to be easily broken, Oregon specialists find. Any matty of moldy hay from the stack allowed into bales raises a question in the mind of the buyer or inspector as well.

Fluid in the abdominal cavity of laying fowls is not an indication of a contagious disease, says the poultry pathologist of the experiment station. This material is found not uncommonly when eggs of parts of eggs have been misplaced. Losses from this source are expected in connection with 10 to 15 per cent mortality usually accepted by commercial poultrymen as normal for the first laying year.

When farmers are in doubt as to what fertilizers are best for vegetable growing in their locality, it is better to send details concerning the soil and nature of previous crops than to send a soil sample for analysis to the experiment station, says A. G. Bouquet in a recent bulletin, "The Farm Vegetable Garden."
