World Travel Made

Easy for Scholars

Round the world in five minutes! Across oceans, rivers, prairies, mountains; on the way, cities, temples and cathedrals to be visited. All can be done in the grounds of the Chateau de Bures, a school near Paris. The "world" occupies sixteen acres and its essential parts are of real earth and the oceans and rivers of real water. The Atlantic ocean is three feet deep.

A crossing from Paris to New York can be made in a few seconds on a tiny steamship. Once aboard the ship the schoolboy becomes explorer. From New York he sails to the West Indies. down the coast of South America, round Cape Horn and across the Pacific. A journey eastwards from Paris takes him overland through Europe. Like Gulliver in Lilliput, he can stride over moutain ranges and rivers. pay a passing visit to Australia, and, by a series of hops, skips and jumps over the South Sea Islands, reach Siberia, China or India. A flying leap over the Alps, a visit to Leningrad or Cannes and in a minute or two he is back again on the shores of the

In addition to models of cities and temples, an attempt has been made to create the atmosphere of the East. A tree marks the entrance to a sunken garden "way down east." A flight of steps leads to temples, statues, and symbols of Buddhism,

Barber Probably Is

Still Looking It Up Shakespeare and Chestina, a colored cook in a North side home, had one thing in common, a wide scope of language. The difference was that when the English bard used one of the thousands of words in his vocabulary he find a slight knowledge of its denotation; when Chestina used a word she did so because it sounded well, and impressed both herself and others with her learning. One day she overheard the "missus" talking with a friend. At one point in the conversation, one of them used the term "indecorous," giving it the preferred pronunciation with the accent on the third syllable. Chestina promptly appropriated it to her own

The next day she was telling the "missus" about her previous night's engagement with the new barber around the corner, who, it seems, had tried to entertain her with a story slightly "off color."

"Well, what did you say to him? Did you get angry?" the amused employer asked.

"What I mean, I got mad! And what's more. I told him he sure was Indechoir," she answered,-Indianapolis News.

How "30" Originated

Charles Payne Smith recently gave the following information as to the men and telegraphers, in the Typographical Journal: The drst press association, organized in Civil war times, was composed largely of morning papers published near the eastern seaboard. Each paper sent into the central office items of local interest, which were there edited and telegraphed to all members. It happened that the first message sent to the association totaled 30 words, and this figure, with the words "good night" and the signature of the sender, were placed at the bottom of the sheet by the operator. At that time piecework was the rule on all papers. The daily grist was usually set up, corrected and in the forms by 10 o'clock, but the compositors were compelled to wait around at their own expense until the foremen announced "30" was in. So "30" became a by-word among printers, symbolizing the end.

Cared

A bachelor who had a fondness for children was a favorite with the little girl next door. The little miss was much concerned recently when her bachelor friend was confined home for occasion she chanced to drop in while her elderly friend was dropping some placed his finger in his other ear. "Do you have to hold the other ear shut so that it won't run out the other side?" his visitor asked. This remark created such hearty laughter that the bachelor said something seemed to "pop" in the vicinity of his ear drums, following which medical attention was no longer needed.-Indianapolis News.

Tact

Strange how many mistake the appearance of power for power itself. Many seem rather to want the trappings of power, the titles and the gold braid, than power itself. Thomas Bailey Aldrich, novelist, once said: "The ability to secure your own way and impress others with the idea that they are having their own way is rare among men; among women it is as common as eyebrows."

Tact is more powerful than a battery of machine guns-or a tractor. It takes a high order of brains to get your own way and make others think they are having theirs .- Grove Patterson, in the Mobile Register.

World Needs Wisdom

THE MAUPIN TIMES

Thank God for the o'.d folks! They supply the balance to necessary in not only this but overy day and age. Youth may rall at the older generation for being "old fogles" and "behlad the times." But snowy crowns bring a seasoning of reasoning which the snap judgment of youth lacks, Old age can back back and profit from years of experience, while youth, though fired with enthusiasm and ambition, has yet to undergo the ordeal of fire. This "pep" in youth is, of course, a component part of life, but we also need that sageness and maturity of opinion which comes only with advanced years.

One generation, in effect, acts as a check on the other, yet it cannot be denied that youth has in the past, does now and always must, depend on its elders to impart wisdom and good advice. Especially today, when youth is inclined to be reckless, should the admonition and guidance of the old folks count for the value that it real-

Life is as the cycle of seasons which needs its autumn as much as its spring. Spring is a beautiful expression of budding life. But autumn is none the whit less beautiful-and necessary. Though youth, like spring. gives us love and roses, it remains for autumn to produce the harvest. In other words, it is age which gives the needed mellowness to the green sprouts of rash youth.

Again we say, God bless the old folks !- Pathfinder Magazine.

Troubles in Plenty for Court Officials

The master mind in control of state and social functions at the court of St. James occasionally must solve some extraordinary problems, according to Percy Armytage, who reveals himself as that astute functionary in his book, "By the Clock of St.

In making arrangements for the coronation of King Edward, Armytage found he must discover close to Buckingham palace a house large enough to accommodate the attending maharajah of Jaipur with his suite of 200 and that there must be accommodations in the same house for a cow. The house must also have a well since he was informed that neither the maharajah nor his servants would touch water that had flowed through pipes.

Such a house finally was found and then he turned his attention to obtaining the cow. She must have short horns and be pure white. When the maharajah came and found all this provided he took it as a matter of course and calmly gave instructions that the cow must not be killed at any time after his departure, but must die a natural death. This she was permitted to do after being maintained in luxury and idleness for many years.

His Wise Words

"Instead of heaping together the little ills of life and making mountains of them," said old Festus Pester, "we should try to slide through existence as easily as possible, consistent with honor and dignity-he who talks and runs away may live to talk another day. We should bear in mind that women, politics, weather predictions and nine-tenths of everything else are always uncertain, and not fix our faith too strongly upon them. If we have cares and ilis and miseries and disappointments and are humbled and ignored and derided let us remember that there are always others and they are generally in town."-Kansas City
