FASHION REVUE WILL BE FEATURE OF FT. DALLES FROLICS

Twenty - Four Beautiful Young Ladies Will Display Styles— Many Novel Features

One of the novel features of the coming Old Fort Dalles Frolics, which is on the boards for September 13-14-15, will be a fashion show, at which all the latest conceits in ladies garments will be displayed by 24 of the most beautiful ladies of the town. Every merchant of the city will contribute garments for the show and they will run the gamut from the very plainest to the highest conception of the dressmaker's art. This feature will be on at the public auditorium on Friday evening, beginning at 8:00 o'clock.

The Legion parades, designed to be an attractive feature of the Frolics, will take place each day of the show. In the auditorium there will be high class vaudeville shows, in which some of the best and most expensive talent in that line will appear. There will be several acts of this kind each evening. There also will be many musical features during the show these being renditions by well known violinists, pianists and other instrument players. Some of the best vocalists of the country will on hand, and contribute their offerings toward making the Frolics a great success.

In the gymnasium will be played all the old-time gambling games. Real old-time faro, monte, chuck-a-luck, hazard, as well as poker tables will be in evidence. The whisker contest promises to be one of the greatest features ever attempted by any body of men. Members of The Dalles Legion post are growing beards, and at this time they range all the way from a mere fuzz to a House of David adornment.

The other car was from Oswego, and the driver promised to make repairs on the local car, but so far has failed to show up.

SENATOR VEST'S MASTERLY TRIBUTE TO A COMMON DOG

No Finer Commendation of Man's Best Friend Ever Given— Masterly Effort

Probably the finest tribute ever paid to dogs was that embodied in an address to a jury in Missouri by Senator George C. Vest many years ago. The circumstances surrounding this bit of oratory are these: A feud broke out between two neighbors and one shot the other's dog. The dog was of that type which might be bought for $10 a dozen almost anywhere, yet the owner sued the killer for $200. The defense maintained that the dog—a mongrel hound—was virtually without value.

The courtroom was crowded for the trial for Senator Vest was known not only as a lover of dogs, but as a fluent orator as well. His address to the jury was a masterpiece of its kind. It is recorded that there was not a dry eye in the courtroom at its conclusion. The jury awarded the owner of the dead dog $500—and some of the jurors even wanted to hang the offender.

An extract of the address which has been widely circulated and which hangs, framed, in the homes of many dog lovers follows:

"Gentlemen of the Jury: The best human friend a man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps, when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads. The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deceives him, the one that never proves ungrateful and treacherous, is his dog.

"A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground where the wintry winds blow and the snow drifts fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer. He will lick the wounds and sores that he may encounter with the roughness of the

Let the Waves Roll On

Visitors From Astoria—

Jake Davidson and wife went to The Dalles on Tuesday for the purpose of meeting some friends from Astoria, who will make an extended visit at the Davidson home.

He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces, he is as constant in his love as the sun in its journeys through the heavens. If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying, to guard against danger, to fight against enemies, and when death takes the master in its embrace and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all friends pursue their way, there by the grave-side may the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad but open in watchfulness, faithful and true even in death."

Mrs. Bothwell announces that at all times during the winter musical season there will be students ready to play at a moment's notice at any public or private entertainment. There will be a small fee charged and the money is to be paid to the student rendering the musical number. Advanced students assisting Mrs. Bothwell in her beginners' class also will be paid by the hour.

Arbitration Fails and Strike May Be called This Week

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and Conductors has been in conference with the managers of western railroads relative to a raise in pay and a change in working conditions. Arbitration has been going on for some time, the trainmen refusing to accept an award made, which would have given them a 6 1/2 per cent raise in pay. The unions took a referendum vote last week.

Should a strike be called at this time on western lines it would severely cripple the movement of farm crops from the northwest and cause the loss of millions of dollars to farmers. Because of this critical situation it is thought that government action will intervene in case the vote among the trainmen is favorable to the strike.

New Roof on Residence—

Frank Dyer had a new shingled roof put on his residence last week. Frank says that building paper has its uses and place, but that as a roof covering it is a failure. The new covering has been painted an emerald green and is a great improvement to the Dyer residence.

The Albright Commission commission company of Portland has an advertisement in this issue of The Times. Bobby Davidson has taken a step forward. He is about to discard his old wheat carrier and will soon have a new Ford truck in operation. Bobby has made connection with a Portland commission house and will receive market cattle quotations daily, thus being able to apprise ranchers of the market prices on cattle, hogs and other livestock.

Stakeley Raising Melons—

Dick Stakeley does not confine his ability to the raising of wheat alone on his Tygh Valley ranch. He has a fine patch of watermelons, some of which he says will weigh 35 pounds, each one being finely shaped and full of the nectar which makes good melons a demand.

HOUSEHOLD WORK IS REDUCED BY USE OF CURRENT

Heat, Light and Power Simplify Work on the Farm and Take Drudgery From Women

Secretary Hoover in his speech accepting the nomination for the presidency referred to some of the indications of American progress one of which was the fact that during the past eight years 9,000,000 more homes have been equipped with electricity.

Naturally most of these homes were in cities and towns, but during the past four or five years great strides have been made toward extending electricity to the rural districts as well.

In a majority of the states of the Union, as well as in many sections of Canada, a practical program of rural electrification is being worked out. This program is generally pursued through the cooperation of agricultural colleges, farmer organizations and electric companies, and no problem of the electrical industry is today receiving more attention than that of bringing electric service to the farms and farm homes.

While the resulting benefits have been general, they have perhaps meant most to those farm women whose daily burdens have been lightened through the introduction into their homes of electric light, heat and power. Every new rural electric line which threads its way across the countryside means emancipation from drudgery for many farm housewives.

Will Furnish House—

Linn & Son have secured the contract to supply the lumber for the forms and other uses of the new bridge. That enterprising Wapinitia lumber, which is cutting a grade of lumber, which is in demand by ranchers all over this section.

Badly Affected Elbow—

Harve Morris is suffering with an affliction which somewhat resembles "nurse's knee." A while back Harve struck his right elbow against a hard object. He paid no attention to the hurt until it began to pain him, then went to The Dalles to have the injury given medical attention.

Called to California—

Mrs. Oscar Renick was summoned to Los Angeles, California, last Friday by a message which stated her father had suffered a second attack of paralysis. The lady will remain in the southern city until her father shows improvement, or until his condition is such that she can return home.

"Dead Man's Curve"—

"Dead Man's Curve" on the Wapinitia cut-off was the scene of another auto wreck last Saturday. A Portland man named Boyle, driving at a rapid rate struck the curve with the result that his car turned over, throwing the occupants, three men and a woman out. Roy Batty took the women to Ben's service station where a doctor attended her, he finding she had sustained some bruises and a slightly sprained back.

Added to Road Crew—

Mose Addington has added a couple of men to his road crew, they being "Budge" Greene and Fressie Martin. Mose is getting the highway in shape for the winter rains by cleaning out ditches and patching the roadway where it has broken by the heavy wheat vehicles.
