Personalities

Walter Sharp was in from his Juniper Flat ranch Tuesday morning.

Marcus Shearer and family visited with his parents on Three Mile on Sunday.

Bob Wilson went to The Dalles on Monday after his wife, who had been on a visit to Portland.

L. C. Hennehan and wife visited at The Dalles on Monday, driving home in a new Studebaker auto.

Rev. W. A. Matthews and wife were in from their Simnasho home a short time Tuesday morning.

George McDonald entertained his mother last week, she returning to her home in Portland Saturday morning.

Signe Fischer has recovered sufficiently from her recent illness to again be on the job at the Rainbow restaurant.

E. E. Houghton, father of Mrs. Aaron Davis, is visiting with his daughter and family, coming over from Dufur.

"Shorty" Miller has qualified as "musician" at the Rainbow—he playing the new electric phonograph for the cabaret dances.

Jack Berthala has been improving lately, having suffered a couple of broken ribs in an auto accident, and is seen about town some.

Vincent B. Tapp, an old-time mail carrier to Wapinitia, who has been living at The Dalles for some time, has returned to the Flat and is occupying his old ranch.

Glenn Powers, at one time employed at the Shattuck store, is here for a visit with relatives. Glenn has been on the sick list for some time and comes to this altitude to convalesce.

"Butch" Copple has accepted a position with the San Francisco street way company as motorman, and left for the California city Monday evening.

Mrs. Bobbie Davidson is visiting with her folks at Hood River having gone to the Apple City last week. In the meantime Bobbie is enjoying all the pleasures (?) of a bachelor's life.

Cleaned Our Shop—
Joyed a real treat. Curtain will go "Dad" Talcott put in a couple of days this week cleaning up the shop wherein The Times is printed. The room is now in a condition whereby one does not have to walk in dust up to his knees when coming here on business.

"WHY GIRLS LEAVE HOME"

New York Life Depicted At Legion Hall Tomorrow Night

The Wigwam Players, than which no small dramatic company travels our highways, will be at the Legion hall in this city tomorrow night. Their offering this time will be a story of New York life, entitled "Why Girls Leave Home." The play is intensely dramatic and as the Wigwam Players are known to be truthful delineators of dramatic stories, those of our people who witness this performance will have en-up at 8:15 and prices will be 25 cents and 50 cents.

HALLOWE'EN ENTERTAINMENT BY TYGH VALLEY H. S.

Dance and Supper in Gymnasium—
Prizes Given for Best Characterizations

The Tygh Valley High school will hold the floor for Hallowe'en and will sponsor a dance and supper at the gymnasium on Saturday evening of this week, being November 3. Three prizes will be given—to the man who best sustains his character, to the woman who does the same and to the best character couple.

The dance program will include quadrilles, two-steps, waltzes of an old time violinist. Supper will be served, and this, with competent floor management, good music and a prevailing Hallowe'en spirit will all go to make the event a most pleasurable one.

New Studebakers—

Bates Shattuck and L. C. Hennehan have each purchased a new Studebaker auto and have them in their garages. Bates' buy was fitted with leather upholstery while Lew contended himself with a car trimmed in plush. Both gentlemen turned in Studebakers on the new cars, which goes to show that, like Studebaker wagons, the cars bearing that name when once used are always used.

Uses Combine Engine—

Clifford Allen is an inventive person. Recently he hitched his sausage grinder to his combine engine and ground out a quantity of fine sausage. He is now contemplating rigging up a contrivance whereby he will utilize the power of his windmill as a butter maker, hitching the churn to the mill.

Shepfin's Buy Home—

Julius Shepfin and wife have purchased the small cottage formerly occupied by them and owned by Frank McCorkle, located near the school grounds. They will make some repairs to the building and will then move their household belongings to Maupin and make this place their home.

Lack of housing and of proper care of farm machinery means a loss in dollars and cents. By housing arm machinery, its life is doubled and the annual repair bills cut in half, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Machinery should also be painted and the polished surfaces greased to prevent excessive rusting.

Don't overwork your alfalfa patch! Alfalfa that goes into the winter with considerable growth will come out in better condition in the spring. Too late pasturing or cutting may kill a stand. For new seedlings that have not made much growth, light dressings of straw held to reduce the chances for winter injury.

Pine Grove News

Linns' mill will continue to supply lumber for the new bridge at Maupin. It has been figured that Linn & Son will deliver 100,000 feet to this one job.

The McFarlane mill is nearing completion and will be the biggest saw mill unit set up in southern Wasco county. Fred Ault and Julius Shepfin are logging for the mill, and piling poles are being cut and yarded for the bridge at Maupin.

W. B. Keen went to Portland to attend the funeral of his brother, who lately died at that city. Mr. Keen had contracted a severe cold at the Clear lake dam site and had decided to go to his home at McMinville to doctor up. The death of his brother decided the matter.

Clear Lake Dam Notes

The Wapinitia Irrigation company crew at Clear lake is still trenching into the sub-base to complete the cut-off wall of the dam. The timber for the base work is being cut and peeled. Sandy Lumber company trucks are bringing in material for facing the structure. William Hickey, Engineers Reese and Stevens have charge of the general plans. Robert E. Ellinwood, son-in-law of E. E. Miller, has been on the job from the start. A rotary pump and gas engine is employed constantly to keep the seepage water out of the trenches while the men are at work. No serious accidents have occurred. The job is covered by the State Industrial Insurance protection. Robert Ellinwood fell into a trench, wrenching a shoulder. Some Portland ladies visited the site last Saturday. While looking the work over one of their number, Miss Leone E. Raymore, slipped off some peeled piling into the creek, nearly breaking her leg. Lumber is being skidded into the "hole" by Julius Shepfin's team. Those well trained horses think nothing of going down a 45 degree angle hill or drawing logs through the lake channel belly-deep in water.

The weather continues to be kind to the project, being cold and snappy. It is understood that anyone who fails to get up at the first call for breakfast will be tarred and feathered—John Confer to furnish the goose feathers for the ceremony. Geese are scarce and no one has been tardy, so the rule so far has not been enforced. One of the workers, in his hurry to comply with the 6 a. m. breakfast order, got his trousers on backward. He promptly started for McCubbins gulch instead of the mess house. Keen said he was didn't know whether he was going or coming.

Joe A. Graham and crew are marking out the line of the north end change of the Skyline trail where the dam work will necessitate a change in the route.

Joe O'Brien, bull cook at the camp at Bear creek up to Thursday last, reported several riders, whose cattle were still out in the upper bush, to be rounding up the strays. Many cattle have been brought in and renewed rides are expected to result in a close clean up of the missing stock. While it has been known that cattle have survived in the mountains over winter, the odds are 10 to one that they will starve to death. A lone bull who foraged along the creek breaks when the water cut away the snow, made it through several winters ago. A cow, too thin to travel with the main bunch, was found by Dee Woodside and others a few seasons ago. She had taken the back track to Clear lake, ate up the cache of hay at Wm. Moore's trap camp and later died there in 15 feet of snow. Even the elk and deer, so wonderfully equipped to withstand the snow, come down to the west fringe of the forest along the Warm Springs and White river breaks to browse on the brush during the winter.

J. S. Brown and Harry T. Lewis are baling alfalfa hay to fill orders that constantly come in.

"Doc" Wilkins and crew are still at Elk creek on the new road.

FOR SALE

Chopped alfalfa hay in ton lots at $20.00 per ton. One electric light plant, also team of horses for sale or trade. Two Hampshire boars, pure bred.

Affords Liberal, Practical Farm Education

The 18th Annual Pacific International Livestock Exposition, Portland, Oregon, November 3-10, affords a liberal education in every phase of the farm industry.

Exhibits feature America's finest pre bred Beef and Dairy Cattle, Horses, Sheep, Hogs, Goats and Foxes. Prize money totaling $100,000.00 will be awarded. Combined are the Dairy, Land and Manufacturers' Products Shows, Wool and Mohair Show, Northwest Hay and Grain Show, and great "Truth in Meats" demonstration. For entertainment there will be America's greatest and most brilliant Horse Show.

We, here at the Maupin State Bank know that a visit to this great farm classic will result in gaining a knowledge of improved farm practices. It is for this reason, therefore, that we join with Pacific International in urging the farmers in this section to attend the Exposition.
