ELEVEN YEARS AGO

From The Times June 21, 1918

A reception to the boys who will soon leave for training camps was given them at Wapinitia last evening. Those who will answer the call are Sam Apping, Louis Woodside, Earl Birchard, Lester McCorkle and an Indian boy, Tommy Keo.

A telephone communication to Wamic from the Summit told of a sheep herder being lost in the mountains. Nothing has been heard further and rangers are looking after the sheep.

Eighteen carloads of sheep were shipped from Maupin to Idaho within the last two days. Seventeen more carloads will leave for the same destination next week.

The last phone pole set for the purpose of carrying wires between Wapinitia and Maupin were set in front of the postoffice on Friday last.

Joe Chastain, Mrs. John McCorkle and Mrs. G. W. Vanderpool were chosen as a committee to purchase sewing machines for local Red Cross use. A canvas was made by Mr. Chastain and the sum of $87.00 raised, at a dollar a throw, for the purpose, 97 persons responding.

Building Bridge Approaches—

A crew of men is at work constructing approaches to the new bridge. The approaches are of dirt and will be covered with gravel and oiled. The road leading from the highway to the O. T. depot will be changed, but just what the grade will be is as yet undetermined.

Moving Telephone Exchange—

O. E. Bay and Charles Crofoot are at work transferring the phone exchange from the Beckwith residence to the Crofoot place. The work entails much knowledge of telephone lines and Bays supplies that, while Charlie is using his strength in pulling jack strap.

Attended Reunion—

O. B. and A. A. Derthick went to Linn county last Friday for the purpose of attending the annual reunion of old settlers in the Providence section, near Scio. The reunion was held at the old Joab Powell church, a meeting place the Derthick families attended when living there. They returned on Tuesday.

Game Warden in Town—

"Larry" Gramse, deputy game warden located at The Dalles, was in Maupin yesterday for a time. Larry has been keeping close watch on violators of the fish laws and has been active in apprehending several who failed to procure licenses before trying their luck in Eastern Oregon waters.

Over Wap-Mt. Ho'd Cut-Off—

Chas. Crofoot and wife went to Monmouth Sunday, taking their daughter, Velma, back to normal school. They made the trip both ways over the Wapinitia-Mt. Hood cut-off and found the going fairly good.

LET THE CHILD COOK

EVERYONE must eat to live. And the majority of people believe firmly that it is advisable to cook before eating. So what are you doing, Mrs. Housewife, to teach your children this ancient and honorable craft? Here's hoping that you aren't the kind who brusquely says when her little girl wants to help: "Run away. You're too slow. I'm in a hurry."

Of course it's generally quite true, but isn't it a truth that hurts? And how can the child ever learn to cook if she doesn't begin now? Good cooks rise from homely tasks.

Spread It and Do It

Even if the child is small, there are things which she can do. For instance, the little girl—or boy—of four is equal to spreading frosting on cookies, and, if they happen to be animal cookies, she can place the eyes in approximately the right places. By the time she is seven or eight, she will be able to master the whole process.

However, anything to do with the oven is always more or less dangerous, so probably it is best to start the child out on something simpler. A gelatin dessert is always good. Soaking the gelatin, dissolving it in the boiling water is one operation taking little time. After that there can be a pause for play. Then, later, comes the arrangement of the pieces of canned fruit or vegetables in the molds and the pouring of the semi-solid gelatin over it.

Salads are easy for a fairly young child to arrange, and, if they are planned to resemble some object, the joy of making them is even greater. The well-known candlestick salad is one of the delights of a child of four. To make it, lay a slice of pineapple on a bed of lettuce. Stick half a banana in the hole of the pineapple and top with a red Maraschino cherry. Make a handle of a green pepper curl at the base of the candle. Butterfly salad is another which the child will be eager to make. All she has to do is to cut a slice of Hawaiian pineapple in two and place it on a piece of lettuce with the rounded sides facing each other, then make a roll of pimiento cheese and put it between the pineapple pieces for the butterfly's body, and finally use strips of pimiento for antennae and dots of mayonnaise and bits of pimiento and green pepper for the spots on the wings.

Embryo Boy Scouts

But this doesn't mean that only the little girl should learn to cook. The chances are that her interest will head her that way without urging. Boys, too, should be able to cook at least simple foods; they may be led in this direction by pointing out that the Boy Scouts encourage camp cooking. Or you could allow your son to invite his boy friends in to dinner any time he will cook the meal. The family should discreetly retire to another room or go visiting during the dinner. Be sure that he has practiced the meal beforehand, and make it obligatory that the dishes be washed afterward. A good menu for such a meal would be: Canned Clam Chowder, Scrambled Eggs and Bacon, Buttered Canned Peas, Fruit Gelatin, Cookies. Another menu might consist of Creamed Salmon in Timbale Cases (we must have style!), Baked Potatoes, Peach Whip (made of whipped cream and mashed canned peaches), and Cocoa.

Another dish that your son will like to cook is baked beans with bacon, not really bake the beans himself, but at least open the can and heat them. First, he should crisp some bacon in a frying pan, then remove the bacon and add one-half tablespoon minced onion. Sauté until golden brown, then add contents of a big can of baked beans and the diced bacon. Stir until the beans are hot. Add salt and pepper if desired.

Another way to interest reluctant children in cooking, is to arrange a campfire in the back yard. Or you could set up your portable camp stove there and let the children practice cooking foods. If, by any chance, the food gets burned, the house and your own kitchen are near. And then, the next time you have a picnic let them prepare the meal while you act the part of a lady of leisure.

Food for Picnics

Camp Hash is a dish that will be called for time and again. To make it, heat two tablespoons fat in a skillet, add one large minced onion and one diced green pepper and sauté until brown. Add two tablespoons water and turn in contents of a twelve-ounce can of corned beef, six or eight sliced, boiled potatoes, two teaspoons salt and one-fourth teaspoon pepper. Heat thoroughly, allowing it to brown on bottom. Stir as little as possible. This will call for some self control on the part of your youthful cooks, but that's all part of the lesson.*

yearling wethers to the Portland yards last Saturday. The shipment numbered better than 800 animals and were passed on by Dr. Stovall, livestock inspector for this district.

Indian Ponies to Portland—

A bunch of Portland buyers shipped three carloads of range horses to the fertilizer works at the big town Sunday, the animals being gathered on the reservation. The Indians received prices ranging from $3.00 to $7.00 each for the horses. They will be killed and converted into fertilizer, feed for chicken and hogs, and also for fox feed. The last shipment makes six carloads shipped from this point recently.

New Welding Plant—

When at Portland Monday Ben Fraley purchased and brought back with him a new acetylene welding plant. His old one, purchased before the civil war, was obsolete and Bill Schilling nearly lost a limb by its giving out while working on the sand elevator last week. The new plant is the latest out and Bill is laughing all over at its installation.

Nasal Hemorrhage—

E. M. Hartman sustained a nasal hemorrhage last Sunday, his nose continuing to bleed all that day and a part of Monday. Dr. Coberth with a couple of nurses came over from The Dalles and the doctor succeeded in allaying the nose bleed. The old gentleman was very weak from loss of blood by the time the ailment was checked.

Took Trout to Madras—

Saturday last Andy Smith with a distributor of trout for the State Fish commission, took a load of 10,000 fingerling trout to Madras where they were turned loose in Crooked river.

Building Cabins—

The lumber having arrived carpenters are at work at the fish hatchery putting up a couple of cabins. One of them will be occupied by James Vaughan and wife, who will move in as soon as it is completed.

Bees, Swarm—

Yesterday a swarm of bees lit on one of the apple trees in the Resh yard and were given quarters in a box by Bill Williams. In the evening Bill took the honey makers to the East side and will provide proper separators and living quarters in a new hive.

Attended Legion Meeting—

The following members of the local American Legion post, with their wives, attended the meeting of the Tri-County Council at The Dalles last evening: Ernest Confer, Don Miller, Raymond Crabtree and Howard Nye.

Remember Wernmark's broken line shoe sale all next week.

Rural Carriers at Dufur—

The rural mail carriers of this district will hold a meeting at Dufur Sunday next, it being a regular meeting of the association. Carl Pratt, carrier on Route A, Maupin, expects to attend.

Telephone Line Projected—

It is said that a new telephone line will be built between Wamic and Maupin, work to be begun and completed this season. The line now in use is badly out of order and a new line is necessary if communication by phone is to be continued between the places mentioned.

B. F. Turner went to Portland Sunday and the first of the week attended a meeting of the Postmasters League, which was held in the big town. He returned home yesterday.

Auto Accidents

Thursday afternoon last a car containing a man and two women ran into a bank on the Criterion grade, throwing the passengers out. One of the women received a severe cut on a hand, Dr. Elwood being called to close the wound.

The same evening a man named Hammond, with his wife, coming from Klamath Falls and going to Portland, suffered an accident on the Maupin grade, their car turning over. As the car left the road the occupants jumped out, the man sustaining a cut on the arm which necessitated six stitches to close. Dr. Elwood took care of that accident also.
