Cockerels intended for roasters should be kept on free range and made to grow as large frames as possible. Plum birds are in great demand, and there may be a difference of 5 cents or more a pound between thin and plump birds.

It is better to keep dirt out of milk than to strain it out. Small-top milk pails are a great help in doing this. They are easy to use, cost little more than ordinary pails, and keep a large part of the falling hair and dirt from the cows out of the milk.

Too much concentrated feed for the dairy cow after calving may cause digestive troubles and hinder the reduction of swelling in the udder. From 4 to 7 pounds a day is enough just after calving, the amount depending on the size of the cow, her production, and the condition of the udder. With good producers not less than three weeks should be taken to get them on full feed.

Freezing improves the flavor of parsnips and it is considered desirable to leave the roots in the ground where they grew until they become frozen. The roots, if allowed to remain until they start growth the following spring soon lose in quality and flavor. The period for use can often be extended by digging the roots as soon as the frost is out of the ground in the spring and storing them in a cool place.

Pick Ups About Town

A quarrel and an incipient scrap between two erstwhile friends, a friendly wrestling match between a couple of other men, the appearance of the proprietor of the place, the calling of the city marshal, a passing of a few words not commendatory, and the drawing of a crowd proved to be the exciting epoch of the past week. The proprietor was within his rights, while those who reviled him might have had reason for their tirades, at the same time a shot or two of the stuff that bids fair to cut down Maupin's population can be blamed for the occurrence.

Tom Henneghan has the constitution of Paul Bunyan's famed ox. Tom can throw his coat and do a day's work with any man. Lately he ran against an adversary that proved too much for him, so he took to his bed and for five days hibernated like a bear. His cold threatened to run into pneumonia and Tom suffered greatly therefrom. He is on his feet again and says that hereafter he will eschew all chances of again contracting cold with possible gripe following.

Bill Schilling owns a Cole Eight automobile. Since coming to Maupin Bill has varied the appearance and uses of the machine. He rebuilt it as a passenger car; then thought it would make a good wrecker; again made up his mind that a runabout was the thing. Just as he had the hulk about worked over Bill discovered a flat side on the crank shaft. He put in a new one, put the mill together, had Jesse Addington crank her up and now says he expects to take The Times man on a trial run. Bill says that if the boat does not sail 100 miles an hour we will be given the car. Well, if a former ride is any criterion, we expect to have to continue to wear out our shoe soles, as we know the Eight can do better than the speed set.

Auction sales prove attractive to a great many people, in fact there are those who never miss an opportunity to attend one if within travel distance. The Roy Batty sale of last Saturday was no exception. More people were there than at any such affair since the Flat was a hole in the ground and was covered by sea water. Many attended for the novelty while others were drawn out by the thought they might pick up some article at a low price, not considering whether or not they had use for same. At any rate the sale was a success, the luncheon especially good and the coffee better than many restaurants serve.

French Butler intends to spend the coming winter in San Diego, where he "can regain his health." Of course Butler has been losing flesh, but it was on the table rather than from his body. French longs for the hustle and bustle of the southland town, has sold his business at The Dalles and will soon load his car with gas, pack his belongings as well as his wife in the car and wend his way to the southern California city. Here's hoping he will have a pleasant journey and an enjoyable winter.

Seed Lawns Heavily

A mistake commonly made in starting a lawn is that of using too little seed. A thick stand of grass at the beginning. A good mixture for northern lawns is 4 parts Kentucky bluegrass, 1 part redtop and 1/2 part white clover. This should be sown at the rate of not less than 3 pounds to 1,000 square feet. Sowing should be done in early fall in the North, where this mixture is adapted.

FOGE LINE AND PARAGRAPH

The dairy cow will be less likely to get milk fever at calving time if she is given plenty of water and salt and fed a minimum quantity of concentrated feed for several days before and after calving.

In Oregon ground limestone is best applied after plowing and then harrowed in before seeding to grain and clover, even though the grain may be fall sown and the clover winter sown. A commercial spreader may be used if desired, though a homemade spreader described in a recent station bulletin, No. 237, is satisfactory.

The doctor responded with the usual treats and all departed after wishing he and his wife many years of happy married life.
