MANY TENTATIVE CANDIDATES

Since the death of Governor Patterson many candidates for his office have appeared in the offing.
Many who have aspired to the office in years past are again getting into chape for a campaign for the governor's job, and their friends have begun a quiet investigation among the politicians of the state.

Among those prominently mentioned for the governor's position is Chas Hall of the Coos Bay section.
Mr. Hall was a pre-primary candidate three years ago but withdrew in support of Mr. Patterson before the primary election. The Times knows of no man better qualified for the office than Mr. Hall. He has made a success of his own business; knows the needs of Oregon and as he has served several terms as state senator from his district is in touch with matters pertaining to state government. He is capable, honest and would, if elected, give Oregon an administration to be proud of.

The Times hopes it will be given a chance to champion his election, knowing that by so doing it would be working for the success of one of the squarest shooters and strongest business of the state.

DISPARITY IN ASSESSMENTS

There seems to be several angles in our method of making assessments. For instance: The county will advertise and sell a plat of real estate for a nominal sum and then turn around and re-assess it for many times the amount received for it. A case pertaining to that method is cited by a correspondent to The Times, who says:

"Dear Editor:
'One lot holder in Maupin is wondering how they get it. A lot sold by the county last year for $12.00 is this year assessed at $80.
'Perhaps they take an average.
In ages to come perhaps this assessment will be in order. We will, hope, and perhaps if the future don't bring forth results, die in despair.

"Perhaps seems to have quite a little to do with it. Perhaps it is better to sell for less and pay more while we are buying. Perhaps we will, and perhaps they won't."

"A LOT HOLDER."

MARY A. BROWN

Mary A. (Abbott) Brown was born at Oceola, Indiana, in 1861. died at The Dalles hospital December 19, being 68 years of age at time of death.

Mrs. Brown was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Abbott, and lived with her parents at their Indiana home until 1881, when she came to this section with them. Her father was one of the earliest stockmen to settle on Wapinitia Plains.

Decedent was married to J. S.
Brown in 1897, and with him carved out a home from the sage brush and rocks, until at this time the Brown ranch is one of the best in eastern Oregon.

Leaving behind to mourn her loss Mrs. Brown is survived by two sisters, Mrs. W. F. Forman of Juniper Flat and Mrs. Washburn, of Indiana.
One brother, J. P. Abbott, also survives. A foster daughter, Mrs. Jennie Gabel, living at The Dalles, also is left among the mourners.

At a nearly age Mrs. Brown united with the Methodist church. She had always been a willing worker in church affairs, and through her efforts, with those of others, the church at Wapinitia was enabled to exist. At the time of her death she was president of the Ladies Aid of the Wapinitia church.

Mrs. Brown was stricken at her home on Thanksgiving day. The following Sunday she was taken to the hospital at The Dalles, and from her arrival there continued to sink. She was a victim of paralysis, which gradually sapped her strength until the final summons came, which was on the date above recorded.

Mrs. Mary Brown was one of God's noble women. No call for aid or assistance was passed up by her. She was ever willing to extend succor to the afflicted and her purse was always open in aid of any church need. As a neighbor she was held in high esteem; as a business woman she was known and admired for her astuteness and fairness. As a wife she was all that the name implies. Her death has created a crater in the Brown home that nothing can fill, and the grieving husband, while almost inconsolable is buoyed up by the knowledge that she has gone before and awaits him in a better land than this. Mr.

Brown has the sympathy of this whole section in the loss of a loving wife and faithful helpmate.

Mrs. Brown's remains were laid to rest in the Kelly cemetery on Sunday, December 22, her body being accompanied to the grave by a large number of grieving friends and neighbors. The floral offerings were many her bier being complet-ly hid in a profusion of flowers.
The services were held at the Wap-initia church, Rev. Chas. M. Smith officiating. A choir composed of W. H. Staats and wife, Meadema Wilson and Woodcock, and three Wapinitia ladies, rendered appropriate hymns at the funeral services.

In the death of Mrs. Brown The Times has lost a close friend. She always was ready and willing to help us in the matter of news items and her interest and good words did much to further our interests.
With the many other friends of the departed lady this paper grieves deeply and we extend our sympathy to her husband and the other members of her family.

Springlike Weather

Christmas day was as much like spring as any day in April. The warm chinook wind dissipated the snow, dried off the roads and made being outdoors as pleasant as though the flowers were blooming on the hillsides. Of course such weather might be but a weather breeder and bring such a change that would make the coal and wood dealers smile.

Ate Turkey With Morris

E. A. Cyr and wife were dinner guests of George Morris and wife Christmas day. George had secured a large turkey which his wife fixed up as only she knew how, and then invited the father and mother over to help consume it. Did they do so—ask Kelly, he knows.

New Years Dance

The local Legion post will attend a funeral, along with many others, at Legion hall next Tuesday night, the occasion being to celebrate the demise of the old year and also also welcome young 1930. The Colored Knights orchestra will discuss music.

A few hand-painted enlargements left and will be sold at reduced prices. Some local views. See them at the Maupin Drug Store.

Broadcasting Will Aid World Harmony

A future in which races throughout the world will use English as a secondary language is envisaged by General James G. Harbord, who was Chief of Staff of the A. E. F. and now is President of the Radio Corporation of America, writing on radio as an instrument for promoting international understanding and peace.

Since the greater and most appealing part of the world's broadcast entertainment is offered in English from America and the British Isles, radio has provided the strongest incentive in history for many races to master a common tongue, General Harbord points out.

"We must not forget," he says, "that the nations' confusion of tongues has in itself been one of the most fruitful sources of international division and misunderstanding. People distrust what they do not understand; let them develop a common medium of communication and still another cause of distrust will fall by the wayside of human progress."

Radio and its allied science, television, will prove as valuable and perhaps more valuable than all diplomatic conferences in assuring universal peace for the future, General Harbord believes.

PHOTORADIO MAKES
STRIKING ADVANCE

Photoradio has made such strides recently that it promises more than ever to fulfill some day the forecast of Owen D. Young at a dinner given in 1923 to General James G. Harbord, President of the Radio Corporation, that it eventually will make it possible to flash whole pages of newspapers across the ocean.

The most recent developments are the simplification of photoradio apparatus, greater speed and the reduction in rates between New York and London which just has been announced by W. A. Winterbottom, Vice-President in charge of communications of R. C. A. Communications, Inc. The reduction was made possible by the simplification and the greater speed.
The new rate is figured in centimeters.

The "heart" of a high speed facsimile transmitter but is approximately 32 a square inch The old rate was 3320 a square inch.

The accompanying cut shows the group of lights, called the "doughnut light," which center illumination on a point on the picture or printed matter placed on a roller across from them. This light beam is reflected from the picture or printed matter into the photocell box behind the lights. The "doughnut" is on a carriage which moves across and back in front of the roller. After every trip the carriage makes from one side to the other, the roller turns ever so slightly.

As the spot of light from the "doughnut" passes back and forth the lightness and darkness of the points it touches change the intensity of the reflected beam. The reflected beam produces electrical impulses, which are amplified, sent by radio to a receiver hundreds of miles away and changed by the receiver to electrical impulses again. These electrical impulses cause a neon light to glow at intervals timed perfectly with the beam of light reflected from the picture on the transmitter. The glow of the neon light is reproduced on photographic paper, placed in the same position on a roller on the receiver that the original is in on the transmitter. Thus an exact duplicate of the original is made.
