

Catarrh

Invites Consumption

It weakens the delicate lung tissues, deranges the digestive organs, and breaks down the general health.

It often causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, and affects the voice.

Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Radically and permanently cures catarrh of the nose, throat, stomach, bowels, and more delicate organs.

SKIN DISEASES

Altoona, Pa., June 20, 1903.

I was afflicted with Tetter in bad shape. It would appear in blotches as large as my hand, a yellowish color, and scale off. You can imagine how offensive it was. For twelve years I was afflicted with this trouble. At night it was a case of scratch and many times no rest at all. Seeing the good the medicine was doing a friend who was taking it for Eczema, I commenced it, and as a result the eruption began to dry up and disappear, and to-day I am practically a well man. Only two tiny spots are left on the elbow and shin, where once the whole body was affected. I have every confidence in the medicine, and feel sure that in a short time these two remaining spots will disappear. S. S. S. is certainly a great blood purifier, and has done me a world of good. I am grateful for what it has accomplished, and trust that what I have said will lead others who are similarly afflicted to take the remedy and obtain the same good results that I have.

125 East Fifth Ave. JOHN F. LEAR.

While washes, soaps, salves and powders relieve temporarily, they do not reach the real cause of the disease. The blood must be purified before the cure is permanent. S. S. S. contains no potash, arsenic or mineral of any description, but is guaranteed purely vegetable.

Send for our book on the skin and its diseases, which is mailed free. Our physicians will cheerfully advise without charge any who write us about their case.

NERVE-RACKING MOMENTS.

A miss may be as good as a mile in some cases; in others the agony of suspense which precedes a narrow escape is almost as disastrous to the nerves as if the result bore out the apprehension. An incident of the nerve-racking kind is related by a young man who was employed by a large clock firm. One of his duties was to superintend the putting up of steeple and tower clocks.

There isn't much chance for adventure in the placing of a clock. It is prosaic business, although it does take one up to the heights; but now and then some little thing will occur which shows one how near the line of everyday living lies to that of tragedy.

I was in one of the large western cities, seeing to the construction of a clock which was being placed in the tower of the city hall. The job was nearly done when, one afternoon, I was standing on the roof beside the tower, inspecting the great dial face above me.

I have become accustomed to heights which a few years ago would have made me ill to think of, and I had stepped near the slightly guarded edge of the building without any more thought than if I had been on the sidewalk. Far below me were the brick pavement and the busy people of the street.

I was holding in my hand a screw-driver, a ponderous instrument used in adjusting some of the larger portions of the clock, and as I stepped near the cornice rail in some way I let the heavy thing fall from my hand. It struck on the rail and then bounced out of sight. The sickening thought of the passers-by flashed over me and I grasped the rail with both hands, and leaned far over in my attempt to follow with my eyes the fall of the implement.

A young lady was passing in front of the building, just in line with the falling screw-driver. I held my breath in an agony of suspense. It seemed hours instead of seconds before the screw-driver fell on the bricks only a few inches behind the girl, who was so unconscious of her danger. The noise of the fall caused her to jump and look about her, but she never knew what had caused the mysterious sound, nor how near she had come to death, for the instrument bounded off the bricks and landed harmlessly on the green sward that bordered the pavement. No damage had been done, save to my own nerves, but never shall I forget the horror of those seconds of suspense.—Youth's Companion.

Mails in 1747.

The change in postal arrangements in New York since "the good old times" may be seen from the following advertisement, copied by the Troy Times from Bradford's New York Gazette of December 6, 1747:

"Cornelius van Denburgh as Albany Post designs to set out for the first time this winter on Thursday next. All letters to go by him are desired to be sent to the post office or to his house near the Spring Garden."

During Hudson river navigation the Albany mail was transmitted by sloops, but in the winter a messenger, as above mentioned, was required, and it is probable that he traveled on foot. The winter average of the Eastern and Southern mails is given in the same paper and same date, as follows:

"On Tuesday the Tenth Instant at 9 o'clock in the Forenoon the Boston and Philadelphia Posts set out from New York to perform their stages once a Fort'nite during the Winter months and are to set out at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Gentlemen and merchants are desired to bring their letters in time. N. B. This Gazette will also come forth on Tuesday Mornings during that time."
