ESTACADA

Estacada is the young City at the end of the O. W. P. & Ry Co's railroad 36 miles Southeast of Portland. It is in the midst of a rich farming, stock raising and fruit country. Healthy and pleasant climate, 500 feet higher than Portland. Unlimited water power. A 15,000 horse-power electric plant is building near by, a wood-working factory is just completed, and the best of opportunities await numerous other manufacturing industries. Five country sawmills and planers afford lumber at reasonable prices. Land near by is rich, fertile and productive and sells at the right price. The city has a fine water system, and fire protection, telephone service and an electric light plant owned by the railway company. This is the first place that homeseekers, business men and manufacturers should investigate.
