This Pretty Matron Had Headache and Backache, and Her Condition Was Serious.

PE-RU-NA CURED

MRS. M. BRICKNER

99 Eleventh Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

"A short time ago I found my condition very serious. I had headaches, pains in the back, and frequent dizzy spells which grew worse every month. I tried two remedies before Peruna, and was discouraged when I took the first dose, but my courage soon returned. In less than two months my health was restored."—Mrs. M. Brickner.

The reason of so many failures to cure cases similar to the above is the fact that diseases peculiar to the female sex are not commonly recognized as being caused by catarrh.

Catarrh of one organ is exactly the same as catarrh of any other organ. What will cure catarrh of the head will also cure catarrh of the pelvic organs. Peruna cures these cases simply because it cures the catarrh.

If you have catarrh write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK

The Unselfish Life.—No matter how many creeds a man believes in, unless he lives an unselfish life he is not saved.—Rev. D. W. Montgomery, Congregationalist, Washington, D. C.

What We Need.—The greatest need to-day is not more men, but more man. To be rich in deed and in truth is ultimately a consciousness.—Rev. James Montgomery, Methodist, Denver, Col.

Power.—Power has been purchased at the point of the sword and sustained often through tyranny and cruelty. The strength of the power of nations has been gauged by the roster of their armies and navies.—Rev. John Love, Baptist, Asbury Park, N. J.

Seeking.—For all that is best and truest and greatest in the heart of the man and the nation, one seeks in vain until he sees the Christ-spirit—until he sees Jesus, the Life, the Truth and the Way. Jesus only.—Rev. R. J. Burdette, Baptist, Los Angeles, Cal.

Gradations.—There are gradations of experience, gradations of happiness and gradations of reward. We shall be just as happy as our experience makes it possible to be, and that means attainment.—Rev. E. L. Powell, Baptist, Louisville, Ky.

The Church and Politics.—Church people must get down from the pedestal on which they perch, singing hymns and passing resolutions, and grip politics more sanely and firmly in order to win.—Rev. John Thompson, Methodist, Chicago, Ill.

The Pearl of Price.—Man's greatest battles should not be for bread that perishes or for wealth that must be left behind, but the most strenuous efforts should be put forth to secure the pearl of great price.—Rev. J. B. McClay, Methodist, Cleveland, Ohio.

The Purpose of Religion.—The purpose of religion of Jesus is pre-eminently practical, plain and definite; the universally accepted idea among the most intelligent classes is that it is not practical, not plain and not definite.—Rev. Frank Crane, Unitarian, Worcester, Mass.

A Nonentity.—No man makes a greater mistake than he who tries to be on good terms with every one. Such a man means nothing to the church, to the community, to the nation. He stands for neither truth, honor or righteousness.—Rev. William Hunton, Lutheran, Chicago, Ill.

God's Sunlight.—The sunlight which the plant absorbs is not lost, but comes forth again in fragrant and many tinted flowers. So the knowledge of the true God interpenetrates our being and makes us partakers of the divine nature.—The Rev. Hugh Johnston, Methodist, Baltimore, Md.

The Workers.—There is no harder worked people than their employers. The preacher, the minister, the President, the captain of industry, the lawyer, the mother, all who work, everybody who is worth while in the world are "working people."—Rev. N. M. Waters, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Youth and Age.—Youth is contagious, but you can no more catch it from a wizened up old pessimist sitting in yonder club than you can gather spring violets from a crusty glacier. Men become old men of the sea on the Sindhads of civilization because they stop growing.—Rev. Henry R. Rose, Episcopalian, Newark, N. J.

Moral Conditions.—Nothing can be further from the truth than that men are satisfied with low moral conditions. There is an element that will not be improved no matter what influences are brought to bear, but the average man and woman finds only the society of the righteous congenial.—Rev. C. L. Palmer, Episcopalian, Kingston, N. Y.

Railroads and Progress.

In his testimony before the senate committee on interstate commerce at Washington, on May 4, Prof. Hugo R. Meyer, of Chicago university, an expert on railroad management, made this statement:

"Let us look at what might have happened if we had heeded the protests of the farmers of New York and Ohio and Pennsylvania (in the seventies when grain from the West began pouring to the Atlantic seaboard) and acted upon the doctrine which the Interstate Commerce commission has enunciated time and again, that no man may be deprived of the advantages accruing to him by virtue of his geographical position. We could not have west of the Mississippi a population of millions of people who are prosperous and are great consumers. We never should have seen the years when we built 10,000 and 12,000 miles of railway for there would have been no farmers west of the Mississippi river who could have used the land that would have been opened up by the building of those railways. And if we had not seen the years when we could build 10,000 and 12,000 miles of railway in a year, we should not have today east of the Mississippi a steel and iron producing center which is at once the marvel and the despair of Europe, because we could not have built up a steel and iron industry if there had been no market for its product.

"We could not have in New England a great boot and shoe industry; we could not have in New England a great cotton milling industry; we could not have spread throughout New York and Pennsylvania and Ohio manufacturing industries of the most diversified kinds, because those industries would have no market among the farmers west of the Mississippi river.

"And while the progress of this country, while the development of the agricultural West of this country, did mean the impairment of the agricultural value east of the Mississippi river that ran up into hundreds of millions of dollars, it meant incidentally the building up of great manufacturing industries that added to the value of this land by thousands of millions of dollars. And, gentlemen, those things were not foreseen in the seventies. The statesmen and the publicmen of this country did not see what part the agricultural development of the West was going to play in the industrial development of the East. And you may read the decisions of the Interstate Commerce commission from the first to the last, and what is one of the greatest characteristics of those decisions? The continued inability to see the question in this large way.

"The Interstate Commerce commission never can see anything more than that the farm land of some farmer is decreasing in value, or that some man who has a flour mill with a production of 50 barrels a day is being crowded out. It never can see that the destruction or impairment of farm values in this place means the building up of farm values in that place, and that that shifting of values is a necessary incident to the industrial and manufacturing development of this country. And if we shall give to the Interstate Commerce commission power to regulate rates, we shall no longer have our rates regulated on the statesmanlike basis on which they have been regulated in the past by railway men, who really have been great statesmen, who really have been great builders of empires, who have had an imagination that rivals the imagination of the greatest poet and of the greatest inventor, and who have operated with a courage and daring that rivals the courage and daring of the greatest military general. But we shall have our rates regulated by a body of civil servants, bureaucrats, whose besetting sin the world over is that they never can grasp a situation in a large way and with the grasp of the statesman; that they never can see the fact that they are confronted with a small evil; except by the creation of evils and abuses which are infinitely greater than the one that is to be corrected."

Have You a Friend?

Then tell him about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Tell him how it cured your hard cough. Tell him why you always keep it in the house. Tell him to ask his doctor about it. Doctors use a great deal of it for throat and lung troubles.

"I had a terrible cold and cough and was threatened with pneumonia. I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and it gave me quick and perfect relief. It is certainly a most wonderful cough medicine."—KENA E. WHITMAN, Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

Dog-Matic.

The young person who stood before a picture of the head of a Spanish lady at the London Art Club exhibition read the number slowly, "One hundred and ninety-one"—and Punch overheard the rest.

"One hundred and ninety-one," she repeated, then referred to her catalogue. "Tete Espagnole," or however you pronounce it, what's that?"

"Why, spaniel's head, of course," explained her companion, with the assurance of a man who hoped he knew enough of French for that. "Must be numbered wrong."

The names of British celebrities are being given by the London county council to municipal steamboats plying on the Thames. Thirty have been so named, Shakespeare, Marlowe, Pepys, Fitz Allwin (first mayor of London), Carlyle, and Caxton being among those remembered. This was the idea of John Burns, the labor member of Parliament, and it has met with general approval from press and public.

Find Petrified Grain.

The drillers at work in a new deep well at Junction City, Kan., are finding all sorts of odd things. Recently the drill penetrated a stratum of what appeared to be petrified rye. The grains were surprisingly like that cereal, and some one has suggested that an ante-glacial elevator or storehouse has been discovered.

No Hurry About It.

The Sunday school class had just finished singing "I Want to Be an Angel, and with the Angels Stand." The teacher, observing that one little fellow had not contributed his voice to help swell the sacred refrain, said: "Johnny, don't you want to be an angel?" "Yes, ma'am," answered Johnny, "but not just now. I'd rather be a baseball pitcher a good deal first."

The Best Governed Town.

Judge J. W. Whitten, chief of the law division of the general land office in Washington, has completed a trip of 5,000 miles through Alaska, covering four months. In an address the other night on his tour the judge declared that, while Dawson, which is under Canadian rule, is, in his opinion, one of the best governed towns in the world, all places of business there closing from early Saturday evening until sunrise Monday morning, on the other hand, at Nome, the first American city across the boundary, the saloons and gambling houses are running in full blast on Sunday, and, though he was told that the place possessed a church, he saw no evidence of it.
