TEXAS GIRL A SHERIFF.

Upholds the Majesty of the Law Among Cattle Rustlers.

On a ranch in Texas there lives a young woman who for months past has been engaged in a calling for which it has always been supposed only men were "cut out."

CLARA DRISCOLL.

She is a deputy sheriff in Mexico County. Her name is Clara Driscoll. She is no untaught lass of the "wild and woolly" southwest, but is a highly educated, extremely wealthy young woman, who numbers among her intimate friends the wealthiest and best known people of the North. Almost every year sees her in Chicago and New York. Miss Driscoll is a lithe, active and handsome girl. Her father is the owner of the great Palo Alto ranch of 400,000 acres, in southwestern Texas. The ranch is eighteen miles from Corpus Christi and a little more than 100 miles from the Rio Grande. When young she was sent to France, where she spent three years in a convent. Returning home she became known as the Diana of the Southwest for her daring horseback riding.

As a deputy sheriff she has had numerous experiences with cattle rustlers and bandits and has proved her worth as an officer of the law.

One of her experiences had to do with the rustlers, some of whom a short time before had shot and killed a trusted foreman on her father's ranch. It happened at a time when she had taken an unusually long ride and had started to return to the ranch over a more southerly route. It was midday. Entering a cove of low trees, she saw ahead the outline of a river bank. As she came nearer she detected a thin column of smoke rising from below the bank of the dried river bed. Thinking it was a part of her father's men, she rode up until she could get a better vision. There below, crouching over a fire they had built, were two Mexicans, villainous-looking fellows; near at hand lay their rifles. They were so absorbed in their occupation that they did not hear her approach. Her keen sense detected the odor of cooking flesh, and for the first time she noticed the carcass of one of her father's yearlings lying further on.

Then, as she thought of the fate of the former foreman, who had fallen a victim perhaps to these same men, she realized her peril. As an officer of the law it was her duty to arrest them at any cost. She drew her .11-caliber Colt's navy, and, covering them, she dashed down over the river bank. The men, taken unawares, threw up their hands. They were commanded to move away from the fire, while she secured their rifles; then, woman like, she saw that they appeared desperately hungry, and she allowed them to finish their roasting, and even ate with them.

This strange repast ended, the comely deputy mounted her mustang and marched these men ahead of her back to the ranch, where they were secured until a ranger took them in charge and saw them safely in Corpus Christi jail.

How to Keep Cool.

Experience has shown that there is but one way in which the discomfort of very hot weather may be mitigated, and that is by thorough physical activity to start and maintain a wholesome perspiration. Absolutely the most uncomfortable way in which to pass a hot day is to be sluggish, and by that means pile up, so to speak, latent heat in muscles and tissues. The vaso motor nerves and the secretory nerves of the sudoriferous glands are the thermostats of the body. Anything which starts an abundant perspiration carries off latent heat and minimizes the discomfort suffered.—New York Times.

RHEUMATISM ROBS LIFE OF PLEASURE

Rheumatism does more than any other disease to rob life of pleasure and comfort. It is so painful and far-reaching in its effects on the system that those afflicted with it find themselves utterly unable to enjoy bodily comfort or any of the pleasures of life. Some are bound hand and foot and suffer constantly with excruciating pains, swollen, stiff joints and muscles, and often distorted, crooked limbs, while others have intervals of freedom, during which they live in constant fear and dread of the next attack, when, at the least exposure to damp weather, or slight irregularity of any kind, the disease will return.

The cause of Rheumatism is a sour, acid condition of the blood, produced by food lying undigested in the stomach, poor bowel action, weak kidneys and a general sluggish condition of the system. External applications, such as liniments, oils, plasters, etc., do not reach the cause and can only give temporary relief. The blood must be cleansed and purified before a cure can be had. S. S. S. attacks the disease in the right way—it neutralizes the poison and filters out every particle of it from the blood, stimulates the sluggish organs and clears the system of all foreign matter. It cures the disease permanently and safely because it contains no harmful minerals to derange the stomach and digestion. Book on Rheumatism and any advice you wish, without charge.

I had been troubled with Rheumatism for two years, had been under the treatment of physicians, and tried everything recommended to me, but all to no avail. My knee and elbow joints were so stiff that I could not use them. I was unable to do my household work, and was truly in a pitiable condition. S. S. S. cured me after using it for awhile, and I unhesitatingly give it the credit it so much deserves.
