The city has in view the creation of a public cemetery. A committee of aldermen has been appointed to purchase a site near town. Tuesday night's meeting was adjourned to Wednesday night when resolutions were adopted favoring the purchase of the water system from the railroad company. It has been figured that the system can be made to pay interest on the bonds and running expenses from the start. It will take $6,750 to buy the system without the pumping plant which will not be needed. The balance of the $10,000 bond loan will be used to convert it into a natural gravity system. A spring sending forth sufficient of the purest of water has been secured on T. Yocum's farm one and a half miles east of town. This water will be piped into town, and it will give us one of the best city water works in existence. The council will ask for another loan to be used in street and drainage improvements.

We are at work on an edition of The News which will be more or less illustrated with Estacada scenery. It will also contain special advertising and descriptive reading matter of the county, city and the business firms of the place. It is the intention to make it as representative as is possible with the cooperative support extended us. The efforts to make the number one which will be creditable to ourself and its patrons will only be limited by what the material at hand. It was our intention to get this out several weeks ago, but unavoidable delays have occurred.

Three capitalists from Grants Pass were here last week looking over the wood working factory, and the advisability of putting in a sash and door factory in connection with the present plant. The gentlemen are manufacturing fir sash and doors at Grants Pass and thought such a factory would do well here.

The Estacada Brick & Tile Co. is having a ditch dug along the foot of the hill at the factory to drain the water off. Why wouldn't such a ditch extended from Second St. around the foot of the hill keep a great deal of the water out of town?

Now that it is all over, who was it that suggested it, started it, gave it the first necessary support and encouragement that resulted in such a marked success? AcAllen, Corbett, Scott, Good, Meyers, Richardson and the numerous et al.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Barr went to the city Saturday evening and remained till Monday evening transacting business and enjoying themselves.

Mrs. H. Cooper spent a few days in Portland this week visiting her sons A. B. and R. J. Cooper. Her sister, Mrs. A. J. Winder and daughter Iva accompanied her and will spend some time in the city.

Last Saturday was Estacada Day at the exposition, it would seem for the railroad company sold over 200 tickets for Portland at its Estacada office on that day. As a rule the people all along the line turned out just as numerous. It pays to advertise.

A large quantity of earth and rock came down the canyon side Tuesday forenoon and piled up against one of the big steam shovels at work on the canal at Cazadero. No damage done, but it will have to be cleared away before excavation work can be resumed.

The damage by fire to the Hotel Estacada has been repaired. Parts of new floor joist and some floor had to be replaced. The fire place was given a stone and cement foundation from the ground up, which will insure it against another such accident. Smoke from underneath the floor came up and filled the parlors and other rooms but not enough to do any great damage. It is said that the insurance was allowed.

Our Drainage System

Some work has been done this week to relieve the business part of town of the surplus water that runs and settles in the streets. Side ditches have been dug to drain the water off. We believe that a great deal of the water that is allowed to run through town and soak into the principlly traveled streets could be diverted and run elsewhere. The money spent on the streets is well expended.

Jones-Shankland

A very pretty wedding took place last Sunday, October 15th, at the home of Mrs. Nancy C. Shankland just north of town when her daughter, Miss Effie M. Shankland and Mr. Frank Jones of Sellwood were united in marriage. Rev. J. W. Cragg of Portland pronounced the ceremony which united the young people for life. Only the nearest relatives were present. The bride was gowned in a pretty cream colored dress trimmed in lace with all-over lace. The home was decorated very nicely with Oregon grape and evergreens, roses and carnations, with ferns in vases about the rooms. A number of useful and pretty gifts were presented to the pair. After the ceremony dinner was served, a beautiful vase of carnations forming the center piece on the table. Mr. and Mrs. Jones left on the 4 o'clock car for Portland, and from there they went on a pleas-
