WILD HORSES.

Roam Nevada Desert and Hundreds Are Captured for Use. The traveler from Reno to Haw-thorne, Nev., on the Carson and Colorado Ranway, often wonders at the large herds of horses seen in the desert along Walker Lake, below the Walker Indian reservation. These horses are wild; not range animals gone wild, but wild horses. They are as wild as the horses that once covered the plains with the buffalo and antelope.

If the passenger could cross Walker Lake and travel among the treeless hills on its western side, he would see hundreds and thousands of these wild horses in the course of a few weeks.

Walker Lake is 38 miles long, 5 miles wide, 380 feet deep in the deep-est place, and, having no outlet, it is alkaline and salt. No boats are permitted on Walker Lake, which is within the Walker Indian reservation.

Up until last winter the wild horses on the Nevada deserts were shot or polsoned by the occasional herdsman Now, however, they are protected, the legislature of Nevada having passed an act to this effect at its last session. The wild steeds are great rangers They travel many miles in a day and pick clean the scant herbage-consist ing mainly of bunch grass and sagemaking it impossible to run cattle the region, even in seasons when the climate permits herding stock.

As they are swift of foot, it was often difficult to get a shot at them, and a favorite method to accomplis their destruction was to poison the scattered water holes they visit when far from Walker Lake.

Now that the herds are protected by law, they have grown very bold, and come up the Carson valley within sev eral miles of Carson City. They are quite often seen along the Carson River and in the Walker Indian reservation, where they are seldom troubled by the lazy Indians.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and nucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for ilst of testimonials.
