Colonel Arthur L. Hamilton, of the 7th Ohio Volunteers, 230 Goodale street, Columbus, O., writes: "As a remedy for catarrh and stomach trouble I can fully recommend Pillsbury's Vitos. My wife, Mrs. Hamilton, wife of the gallant Colonel, is an ardent friend of Peruna also."

WASHES OF FUN

She—is a telephone girl's occupation a profession or a business? He—Neither; it's a calling.—Chicago News.

"My dear girl, do you think it is right to let that young man spend so much money on you?" "Why not? I have no intentions of marrying him."

He (after the ceremony)—Do you really think I shall make a good mate, darling? She—Oh, you're all right! How do you like your captain?—Chicago Journal.

Kelly—Con Cooney won pinched this afternoon for intimidatin' a strike breaker. Welch—Ye don't tell me? An' phwat passed between thim? Kelly—Wan brick.—Puck.

Tax Assessor—Can you give me some idea of what your husband is worth? Lady—Really, I don't know, but I wouldn't take a million dollars for him.—Chicago Journal.

Great Author—Walter, this steak is as tough as leather. Walter—I've always heard you was an original character, sir, but I'm hanged if you don't say just the same as all 'em do.—Tit-Bits.

"Pop! "Yes, my son." "What is a screen for?" "To hide things, my boy." "Pop?" "Yes, my son." "Is that the reason they screen a ton of coal, to hide the weight?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Mamma—Now, Elsie, dear, what is a cat? Elsie—Dunno, Mamma—Well, what's that funny little animal that comes creeping up the stairs when ever you're in bed? Elsie (promptly)—Papa.—Illustrated Bits.

Mrs. Gwilliams (of the flat above)—Your children woke me up at 5 o'clock this morning with their noise, and I didn't go to sleep again. Mrs. Slight—Did they? The darlings! They are so full of life!—Chicago Tribune.

Enthusiast—I think you are just grand, Mr. Bandleader. Are you very busy all the time? Orchestra Conductor—Why do you ask, madam? Enthusiast—Oh, you beat time so splendidly. I have some rugs to beat on Saturdays and I'd like to engage you in advance to do them.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Mr. Pett Ridge, of London, at the annual meeting of the Invald Children's Aid Association, told of two little girls who were sent out of a board school to wash their faces. Said the elder to the younger, proudly: "My face is much dirtier than yours." "Of course," said the other. "You're a year older."—Daily Chronicle.

"Gerald, what makes your eyes so red?" "Are they red, Millie? Then it must be because I didn't sleep well last night." "Are you troubled with insomnia?" "You ought to take something to cure it." "But I don't want to be cured of it. I lie awake thinking of you." It was plain sailing for Gerald after that.—Chicago Tribune.

A small boy from the north who was visiting a relative in one of the southern States where convict labor is employed in public improvements, became very interested in the men and their black and white striped clothes. One day he went to a circus, and for the first time in his life saw a zebra. "Oh, auntie," he cried, "look at the convict mule!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

"Hang the luck! I lost a peach of an umbrella to-day." "Yes, people don't seem to have any conscience about swiping umbrellas. How did you lose it?" "Well, it was standing against the wall in the restaurant. I kept my eye on it—" "You bet; you have to! Well?" "And just as I was getting up, the fellow that owned it came along and took it!"—Cleveland Leader.

At the end of January Mrs. Wunder brought her nice new expense book to her husband. "I can figure up my January balance all right," she said, "but I'm either $10.05 behind or ahead. I remember what all the other items are for, but I can't recall whether I spent that $10.05 for something, or you gave it to me for household expenses." Mr. Wunder looked at the page for a moment, then handed back the book with a condescending air. "My dear," he said, "that 1905 seems to me to indicate what year this is."—Judge.

Among the visitors at an art exhibition were two old ladies from the country. They were examining with great interest a bas-relief of a young Greek shepherd, beneath which were inscribed the words, "Executed in terra cotta." "I wonder where Terra cotta is," ventured the elder of the two, turning to her companion. "Well, now, I ought to know," hesitated the other, "but I can't seem to place it just now." "Ah, well," rejoined the first speaker, as they passed on, "it must be a dreadful place if they execute harmless young boys like that there."—Philadelphia Ledger.

On one of the old turnpikes yet remaining in the South a big touring car had twice rashed through the gate without paying toll. The third time they made the attempt the negro toll man shut his gate and brought them to a stand. With indignation the half-dressed occupants of the car declared they were entitled to ride free. "Look at your own board," said the spokesman. "It says, 'Every carriage, cart or wagon drawn by one beast, two cents; every additional beast, two cents.' We're not drawn by any beast at all." "No; but here's where you come in, sah," replied the darkey, pointing to another clause as follows: "Every half-dressed hogs, four cents." "An' three times four is twelve," he added.

He Was Daily Prepared. "I suppose," said the city boarder as the farmer loaded his baggage in the wagon, "you have plenty of fresh vegetables at your place?" "Goah, yes!" answered the knowing granger. "Soon ez I got your letter I went ever tew ez an' bought a dozen 'sorted cans."—Columbus Dispatch.

The people are getting into the planola habit so thoroughly that no doubt there will be complaint in heaven because they can't play those harps with their feet.

DOMESTIC OF OLDEN TIMES.

How Modern Servants Differ from Sturdy "One of the Family" Type.

"The old-fashioned patriarchal system which permitted the 'help' to become an integral part of the family presented many objectionable features, yet the natural and logical result of such relations between employer and employed was to secure a better and more intelligent class of service," says Martha Baker Dunn in the Atlantic Monthly.

"It would not be a difficult business to collect a sheaf of testimonials from housekeepers who are able to remember the changes of the last fifty years, certifying that the thrifty, capable and reliable 'hired girl,' with whose virtues and usefulness so many New England households have in former days been happily familiar, no longer exists except in infrequent and sporadic instances.

"The younger class of girls who under the old regime went out to service now employ themselves in the shops, factories and similar establishments where their time after working hours is their own. They know the sweets of independence and the proud, if imaginary, satisfaction of being 'just as good as anybody.'

"The domestic ranks in the New England towns of to-day are largely recruited from a wandering tribe of more mature women, who vary the serial of matrimony by diversities into the field of working out. Some of them belong to the variety known as grass widows, some of them have either just got a bill or are just about to get a bill from their husbands, some have husbands who appear spasmodically and then pass once more into obscurity. During the intervals of these interrupted romances the heroines of them bestow a somewhat intermittent and perfunctory attention on households whose need is so urgent that the members thereof are willing to suffer and be strong.

"There was a certain neat, spare, gauntly decorous middle-aged woman who during my girlhood always spent a part of each day 'helping out' in our crowded household whose memory retains for me an abiding fascination. She exemplified a type which had in those days many representatives; a type of woman strong both in mind and body, with an untroubled intelligence born of necessity and experience.

"These women were apt to be sharp-cornered, full of individuality, incisive of speech and act, a surface ungraciousness which did not long conceal a repressed sweetness of nature, often the outgrowth of deep and conscientious religious feeling.

"It was always a gala day to me when 'Aunt Sophia' came to abide with us. It meant that there would be things doing, fresh interests added to life, interests more or less piquantly flavored with the newcomer's individuality. Aunt Sophia's sharp sayings, her idiomatic stories gathered from experiences in many households, the very unexpectedness of her standpoints, all helped to favor the commonplaceness of daily living, and though I have spoken of her and her class as creatures of untutored intelligence, in comparison with many of the flippant and shallow beings who inhabit our kitchens to-day, these old-fashioned domestics were admirably educated. Sophia read her Bible as eagerly as her proverbs of to-day reads Bertha M. Clay's novels."

Muff Originated in France.

When the muff came to us from France in the days of Charles IX, no lady could have worn a sealskin muff, for black was decreed by the king to be the badge of the common people and the court followers were restricted to the colors. Muffs have gone through more styles than it would seem possible to invent for such a simple article of convenience, says the London Chronicle. They have been long and narrow and again large and round. One of the most curious styles was that of Louis XIV, called the "chicless manchers," because they were made to convey little dogs in.

The muff when first introduced was the exclusive property of the nobility. These muffs were very small and consisted of a single piece of velvet, brocade or silk lined with fur and the openings fastened with rich jewels. Such arrangements came in during the early part of the seventeenth century.

We now associate the muff only with cold weather, but in the old days it was a regular part of a woman's dress and was carried at all times.

Thrums.

In the prosaic nomenclature of the railroad time-tables Thrums is Kirriemuir. It might better be called "Barriemuir," for the name and fame of Barriemuir wrap it round about as with a magic mantle. It is doubtful if any other living author is so firmly placed in the affections of his townspeople. The Scotch are clanish, and when a Scotchman draws to Scotland the attention of the world the Scotch will set him upon a pedestal of affection which is not at all vainglorious.

Kirriemuir, where Mr. Barrie was born, is a charming little, old town, 125 miles north of Glasg'ow, about half-way between Dundee and Aberdeen. It contains possibly 5,000 people—and Mr. Barrie's birthplace and his summer residence. The two latter probably count for as much as all the edifices which house the whole 5,000 other Kirriemuirers.—Four-Track News.

It Would Swell.

"Now," said the clerk, "this is a very good bath sponge."

"Oh!" exclaimed the customer, "that won't do. It's too large."

"LARGE? Why, it's rather small for a bath sponge."

"Perhaps, but I live in a flat."—Philadelphia Press.

No Use for Publicity.

"I'm taking my riding lessons in strict privacy."

"Why not in public?"

"So as to avoid the fierce white light that beats about the throne."—Pittsburg Post.

People like to be called enthusiastic, but how they hate to be called "gushing."

OLD Favorites

A Thing of Beauty.

Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness, but still will keep A lower quiet for us and a sleep Full of sweet dreams and health and quiet breathing; Therefore on every morrow we are wreathing A flowery band to bind us to the earth Spite of despondence, of the inhuman death Of noble natures, of the gloomy days, Of all the unhealthy and o'erdarkened ways

Made for our searching—yes, in spite of all! Some shape of beauty moves away the pall From our dark spirits. Such the sun, the moon, Trees old and young, sprouting a shady boon For simple sheep, and such are daffodils, With the green world they live in, and clear rills That for themselves a cooling covert make 'Gainsat the hot season, the midforest brake Rich with a sprinkling of fair musk rose blooms, And such, too, is the grandeur of the dooms We live among, the utter of our deeds, All lovely lines that we have heard or read, An endless fountain of immortal drink Pouring unto us from heaven's brink.—John Keats.

Just Before the Battle, Mother

Just before the battle, mother, I was thinking most of you, While upon the field we're watching, With the enemy in view— Comrades brave are round me lying, Filled with thoughts of home and God; For well they know that on the morrow, Some will sleep beneath the sod.

Oh, I long to see you, mother, And the loving ones at home, But I will never leave our banner, 'Till in honor I can come, Tell the traitors all around you, That their cruel words I know, In every battle kill our soldiers, By the help they give the foe.

Hark! I hear the bugles sounding, 'Tis the signal for the fight, Now, may God protect us, mother, As He ever does the right, Hear the "Battle cry of Freedom," How it swells upon the air, Oh, yes, we'll rally round the standard, Or we'll perish nobly there.

Chorus: Farewell, mother, you may never, you may never, Mother, press me to your heart again, But you'll not forget me, mother, you'll not forget me, If I am numbered with the slain.

MOVES THE BAIT.

Clock Mechanism Propels the Apparatus in the Water.

Numbers of contrivances to assist the fisherman and fool the fish have been invented at different times, but to a New York man belongs the credit for the latest. He has invented a device for fishing purposes which moves the bait about in the water automatically in any direction desired, an illustration of which is shown here. The body is shaped to resemble a fish and is of about the same dimensions as most fresh-water fish, being made of cork and divided in the center. Inside the body or float is a recess to receive a motor casing, and in the latter is secured a spring motor. The stop mechanism and release comprise a stop-lever, which is pivoted in a bearing on the top of the casing. The lever carries a pin, which registers with a circle of perforations in a gear wheel of the motor gearing, so as to prevent the motor from unwinding when not in use. Secured underneath the float is a fine keel, to keep the float in an upright position. Journalled in the sides of the float are two adjustable arms, carrying disks or balls of cork, which raise the arms when the float is lowered into the water, this operation moving the lever to which they are secured, causing the pin or stop to disengage, from the perforations of the wheel, allowing the motor to drive the shaft. This shaft rotates a propeller at the rear end of the float, the bait being suspended from a rod at the stem of the float. A key winds the motor when it is run down. The adjustable arms have connections which enable the float to be driven in a circular path, depending on the adjustment of the arms; if the arms are displaced symmetrically the motor will propel the float in a straight path, the fishing line being attached to a stud at the top. The operation is as follows: The motor having been wound up, the float is lowered into the water. When the float comes in contact with the water, the adjustable arms that carry the balls of cork are raised, thus causing the pin to disengage from the wheel, allowing the motor to drive the propeller shaft and thus moving the float to which the bait is attached. If the float is withdrawn from the water the weight of the arms and balls will bring the pin into engagement with the gear wheel, arresting its further rotation.

Healthy Children.

Without good health life is not worth living. Sickly, peevish children are a source of endless trouble and anxiety to their parents, yet the children's condition is frequently due to their parents' ignorance or thoughtlessness, or both.

To make children healthy and to keep them in that condition it is necessary to feed them proper food and to see that they get plenty of exercise and fresh air. Meat is very bad for children. It should be avoided and food rich in phosphates, such as Pillsbury's Vitos, should be given in its place.

This food is truly the "meat of the wheat." It is made by the world's greatest millers and it is free from artificial coloring or adulteration. It is not especially a child's food. Your whole family will enjoy this common sense cereal. It makes a wholesome, substantial breakfast or an appetizing desert, and can be prepared in one hundred different ways.

Every good grocer will supply you with Pillsbury's Vitos. Large package—enough to make twelve pounds of strength-building food, 20c. Ask your grocer about it today.

Something Different.

"I suppose that old chap with the long white whiskers over there is one of your old drummers, isn't he?" said the grocery drummer.

"I reckon he's that yew might call a old resident," rejoined the village merchant, "but he ain't no old settler. He's been a-owin' me for nigh onto thirty years."

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Pillsbury's Vitos is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Pillsbury's Vitos is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE CENTURY IN 1906.

The lavish promises of a year ago were splendidly fulfilled in The Century during 1905—its verse and essays, its pictures and fiction, its articles of timely interest and permanent value, went beyond all promise and expectation. The feast in 1906 will be even richer than in 1905. There will be the new novel by Mrs. Humphry Ward, "Fenwick's Career," a new humorous serial by the creator of "Susan Clegg," and short stories by the ablest and most popular writers of the day. There will be authoritative accounts of such wonderful work as our construction of the Panama canal. W. S. Harwood will tell of "Saving California's Crops." The director of Cornell's School of Agriculture, Professor L. H. Bailey, will discuss the important problem of the young man and the farm. There will be many other articles of kindred value and interest.

RHEUMATISM

BODY RACKED WITH PAIN

No other bodily suffering is equal to that produced by the pain of Rheumatism. When the poisons and acids, which cause this disease, become entrenched in the blood there is hardly any part of the body that is not affected. The muscles become sore and drawn, the nerves twitch and sting, the joints inflame and swell, the bones ache, every movement is one of agony, and the entire body is racked with pain. Rheumatism is brought on by indigestion, stomach troubles, torpid liver, weak kidneys and a general inactive state of the system. The refuse matter instead of passing off through nature's avenues is left to sour and form uric acid, and other acid poisons which are absorbed into the blood. Rheumatism does not affect all alike. In some cases it takes a wandering form; it may be in the arms or legs one day and in the shoulders, feet, hands, back or other parts of the body the next. Others suffer more seriously, and are never free from pain. The uric acid and other irritating substances find lodgment in the muscles and joints and as these deposits increase the muscles become stiff and the joints locked and immovable. It matters not in what form the disease may be the cause is always the same—a sour, acid condition of the blood. This vital stream has lost its purity and freshness, and instead of nourishing and feeding the different parts with health-giving properties, it fills them with the acids and salts of this painful and far-reaching disease. The cold and dampness of Winter always intensify the pains of Rheumatism, and the sufferer to get relief from the agony, rubs the affected parts with liniments, oils, lotions, etc., or uses plasters and other home remedies. These are desirable because they give temporary ease and comfort but have no effect on the real trouble which is in the blood and beyond the reach of such treatment. S. S. S. is the best remedy for Rheumatism. It goes into the blood and attacks the disease at its head, and by neutralizing and driving out the acids and building up the thin, sour blood it cures the disease permanently. While cleansing the blood S. S. S. tones up the stomach, digestion and every other part of the system, soothes the excited nerves, reduces the inflammation, dissolves the deposits in the joints, relieves all pain and completely cures this distressing disease. S. S. S. is a certain cure for Rheumatism in any form; Muscular, Inflammatory, Articular or Sciatic. Special book on the disease and any medical advice, without charge, to all who write.

This vital stream has lost its purity and freshness, and instead of nourishing and feeding the different parts with health-giving properties, it fills them with the acids and salts of this painful and far-reaching disease. The cold and dampness of Winter always intensify the pains of Rheumatism, and the sufferer to get relief from the agony, rubs the affected parts with liniments, oils, lotions, etc., or uses plasters and other home remedies. These are desirable because they give temporary ease and comfort but have no effect on the real trouble which is in the blood and beyond the reach of such treatment. S. S. S. is the best remedy for Rheumatism. It goes into the blood and attacks the disease at its head, and by neutralizing and driving out the acids and building up the thin, sour blood it cures the disease permanently. While cleansing the blood S. S. S. tones up the stomach, digestion and every other part of the system, soothes the excited nerves, reduces the inflammation, dissolves the deposits in the joints, relieves all pain and completely cures this distressing disease. S. S. S. is a certain cure for Rheumatism in any form; Muscular, Inflammatory, Articular or Sciatic. Special book on the disease and any medical advice, without charge, to all who write.

S. S. S. PURELY VEGETABLE.

Really and truly it is disgraceful how quickly the average widow braces up and begins to get better looking.

RHEUMATISM

BODY RACKED WITH PAIN

No other bodily suffering is equal to that produced by the pain of Rheumatism. When the poisons and acids, which cause this disease, become entrenched in the blood there is hardly any part of the body that is not affected. The muscles become sore and drawn, the nerves twitch and sting, the joints inflame and swell, the bones ache, every movement is one of agony, and the entire body is racked with pain. Rheumatism is brought on by indigestion, stomach troubles, torpid liver, weak kidneys and a general inactive state of the system. The refuse matter instead of passing off through nature's avenues is left to sour and form uric acid, and other acid poisons which are absorbed into the blood. Rheumatism does not affect all alike. In some cases it takes a wandering form; it may be in the arms or legs one day and in the shoulders, feet, hands, back or other parts of the body the next. Others suffer more seriously, and are never free from pain. The uric acid and other irritating substances find lodgment in the muscles and joints and as these deposits increase the muscles become stiff and the joints locked and immovable. It matters not in what form the disease may be the cause is always the same—a sour, acid condition of the blood.
