Norcross's New Bird.

When Charles P. Norcross, now a well-known Washington correspondent, began his newspaper career he was sent to "cover" one of the courts. His business was to look at the docket and find the facts about any case that seemed to him to warrant him in writing about.

One afternoon he discovered an entry that said one William Burns had been arrested and fined $10 for stealing a martingale from James Jones, a neighbor.

He recited these facts in an introductory paragraph, and then went on: "This criminal was justly punished for the pretty little martingale he stole for the joy and comfort of the wife of James Jones. She kept it in a cage in her parlor, and when, tired with the work of the day, the martingale began to pour forth those strains of melody for which our Pittsburgh martingales are famous, she found great pleasure. Such miscreants as this man Burns should not be allowed at large, especially when they descend so low as to steal harmless and melodious martingales."—Saturday Evening Post.

Bad, Bad Kitty!

The scientist makes out a good case against the house cat, who, with all her charming and lovable qualities, is shown to be an agent of disease, and a wholesale destroyer of bird life. Dr. Caroline A. Osborne, who has been conducting experiments at Clark University, has found that cats have diphtheria, whooping cough, tuberculosis, eczema and ring-worm. Even when cats do not actually contract these maladies they may carry the contagion about with them. As airbirds they are responsible for the death of about fifty birds a year, according to E. H. Forbush, State Ornithologist for Massachusetts, not including the suffering they inflict by their mangling of birds, squirrels and rabbits.—Philadelphia Press.

Bargain Day.

The fresh cream puffs in the Italian baker's window looked inviting, and the interested housekeeper stepped inside the shop to ask the price.

"Fifteen cents a doz," replied the smiling proprietor, wiping his hands on his apron, preparatory to wrapping the cakes.

"Why," exclaimed the lady, unable to conceal her astonishment, "that's very cheap for cream puffs! I usually have to pay thirty. I don't see how you can make them at that price."

"Him cheap all right," confided the baker. "Da health' office telephone I gotta close da shop right off. My girl, Antonie, gotta da measles."

A Late Edition.

Julius Kahn, representative from San Francisco, was in Washington when the earthquake came and was nearly frantic, because his wife and children, including a baby a few days old, were directly in the path of the fire.

Kahn spent two days trying to telegraph and then took a train and went out, and finding his family safe, stayed a week or so in the ruined city.

On his return he found a letter from a constituent, written eight days after the shock, which began:

"Dear Julius: 'No doubt you will be surprised to learn from me that we have had a terrible earthquake out here.'—Saturday Evening Post.

Told by Their Buttocks.

The minister's wife was busily engaged one afternoon mending the family clothes when a neighbor called for a friendly chat. After a few moments of news and gossip the caller remarked, as she began to inspect a basket of miscellaneous buttons:

"You seem to be unusually well supplied with buttons of all kinds. Why, there is one like my husband had on his last winter's suit."

"Indeed," said the minister's wife, with a slight smile. "All these buttons were found in the contribution box, and I thought I might as well have some use out of them. Well, must you go? Well, good-by. Come again soon."

Just What He Wanted.

"These eggs aren't fresh, are they?" queried the stranger.

"Well," replied the grocer, cautiously, "these eggs will make a ham omelet or any kind of eating. I've been in at that show at the opera house, and what I want—"

"As I was saying, sir, these eggs will make a ham actor feel like a last year's bird's nest."—Philadelphia Press.

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Pimples, eruptions are then absorbed into the blood, instead of being removed from the body daily as nature intended. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills, liver pills. All respectable druggists sell them.

TAFT WINS CUBANS

Believe He has Come to Uplift Fallen Republic.

SPEAKS AT HAVANA UNIVERSITY

Refuses to Evict Poor From Barracks to Make Room for Soldiers—Amnesty for Prisoners.

Havana, Oct. 2.—Governor Taft's acts today have gone far to win him a warm place in the hearts of the people whose destinies have been placed in his hands. Presiding this morning at the opening exercises of the University of Havana, he declared his mission here was solely for the purpose of uplifting the fallen Republic and restoring it to the path of prosperity, an announcement which was received with demonstrations of delight by an audience representative of the highest society in Havana.

Following this it became known that Mr. Taft and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon had cabled for their wives to join them here, a step which cannot but be most agreeable to the Cuban people and which will strongly cement the bonds of affection between them and the American provisional administration.

Still another act of Mr. Taft is warmly commended as illustrative of his thoughtful consideration of the humbler classes. Learning that many poor families occupying the temporarily disbanded barracks at Camp Columbia were about to be summarily evicted by order of the Cuban authorities in preparation for the occupation of the quarters by the brigade of marines, Mr. Taft went to Camp Columbia in an automobile, explained that he had not been aware of the conditions and rescinded the order. He left the camp amid cheers and warm expressions of gratitude from the people. The news of this act of humanity spread rapidly and received the highest praise.

Much of the Governor's time today was occupied in receiving officials of the various departments and judges of the courts. With the members of the Supreme Court he held a long conference concerning the drafting of a proclamation of general amnesty. This decree is of the most importance, in view of the fact that at many points on the island, notably Cienfuegos, many persons are in jail awaiting the disposition of political charges.

Bible Not the Word of God.

Detroit, Oct. 2.—Bishop Charles D. Williams, of the Episcopal diocese of Michigan, in an address to Y. M. C. A. members here on "The Bible and the Word of God," declared that the Bible was not the word of God and that the teachings to the contrary are the most prolific sources of unbelief the church has to contend with. The Bishop said: "Nowhere does the Bible declare itself the word of God. Yet we are told we must take it in its entirety. It is a venerable book and visitors are requested not to touch it, as it is the direct word of God, there is no other. 'Take the young man just out of college. He reads Genesis and finds impossible geology, astronomy and ethnology. His teacher, when questioned says: 'Manipulate it until it fits your sciences.' If too honest to handle the word of God craftily, the young man gives up the Bible. He refuses to stultify his reason.

Another Typhoon at Hongkong.

London, Oct. 2.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Hongkong, dated September 29, says:

"The observatory signals gave warning of an approaching typhoon Friday afternoon, and by midnight a terrific storm was raging. The violent gale was accompanied by a phenomenal rainfall and was still blowing Saturday afternoon. The devastation by the typhoon of the 18th has been completed. The entire water front is again heaped with wreckage."

Taft's Advice to Cubans.

Havana, Oct. 2.—The flower of Havana society was present at the opening of Havana University. After the annual address Governor Taft presented the diplomas to the successful students and then made a notable address, the spirit of which was that the intervention of the United States was undertaken solely to assist Cuba and Cubans and that her future was dependent upon her young men. Mr. Taft spoke in English, pausing at every sentence for its interpretation.

Afraid of Thermometer.

Constantinople, Oct. 2.—A report that the Sultan is so ill that he has only six months to live is untrue. His ailment does not threaten any immediate serious results. The only danger consists in Abdul Hamid's objection to ordinary medical precautions. Under no consideration will he have his temperature taken, as he is afraid of having a thermometer put in his mouth or under his arm lest the instrument explode.

Kansas to Quiet Standard.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 2.—Suits were instituted in the Supreme Court today by Attorney-General Coleman under the state anti-trust act to oust the Standard Oil Company and the International Harvester Company

TROOPS OFF FOR CUBA.

Mobilization of Forces at Newport News Where Transports Are Ready.

Washington, Oct. 1.—American troops are now moving toward Cuba. Mobilization of the forces will be at Newport News, Va., for the most part, although a part of the expeditionary force to Cuba will be sent from New York and Tampa, Fla. Advances received at the departments of the military today indicate that all is quiet in Cuba and that the insurgents intend to lay down their arms.

The probability is the United States forces in the island will be landed only as a precautionary measure. So far as officials are advised no trouble of a serious kind is anticipated, but in accordance with instructions from President Roosevelt hurried preparations are being made for the sending of an expeditionary force of the army to Cuba.

The first American troops will be landed at Havana next Saturday. Meantime the marines and bluejackets from the American fleet in Cuban waters will protect American interests and support Secretary Taft, the Provisional Governor of Cuba, in the preservation of order and the protection of life and property.

In official circles here American intervention was regarded as inevitable. How long it may continue it is impossible to foretell. The nature of the intervention and the preparations for it indicate a supervision of Cuban affairs on the part of the American government for an indefinite period. Arrangements have been concluded not only for the expeditionary force to Cuba of about 5,600 men, but for a second force of equal numbers.

No orders for the mobilization of the second force, of course, have been issued, but if the men are needed all arrangements have been completed for hurrying them to Cuba at the earliest possible moment. Whether more troops than are included in the first expedition will be sent to Cuba will depend upon the developments in the island during the next ten days.

It is certain, however, that a sufficient force of American troops will be maintained in Cuba to support the provisional government and to insure security to life and property pending the establishment of a stable government by the Cubans.

WIRELESS CONVENTION.

Delegates From Thirty-one Countries Meet at Berlin.

Berlin, Oct. 1.—Delegates representing 31 governments will assemble October 3, by invitation of the German government, with the object of reaching a common agreement for the exchange of messages by the use of various wireless telegraph systems, and to define the basis on which private wireless telegraph companies may operate with the consent of the governments.

The conference is a result of the Marconi Company having refused to allow its stations to do business with persons using other than Marconi apparatus. This controversy began soon after the Marconi Company, in 1901, set up stations for public telegraph purposes. The refusal of these stations to take messages sent in by the Slatby-Arco (German) apparatus brought about the international wireless telegraph conference, also by the invitation of Germany, in 1903. Eight governments took part, as follows: The United States, Germany, France, Great Britain, Italy, Spain, Russia and Austro-Hungary.

The delegates of six governments agreed in the final protocol to a series of recommendations looking toward the co-operation of all users of wireless. The delegates of Great Britain and Italy, because their governments had contracts with the Marconi, did not sign the recommendations. Little has come of these recommendations. The Marconi Company has continued to set up stations and to refuse the messages of rival systems.

The most important act in the controversy in the conference was that of the United States in 1904 directing the Marconi Company to remove its apparatus from the lightship Nantuxet.

Germany will propose to the conference that an international bureau shall be established for the control of wireless telegraphing; that each wireless station must be connected with the ordinary telegraphs by special lines;

Funston's Plans Indorsed.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Acting Inspector-General Galbraith of the army, in his annual report, says that the general condition of the army has improved during the year as regards military construction, and that the troops are in a fairly satisfactory state of efficiency and readiness for field service. The plan suggested by General Funston, that the term of enlistment be limited to one year, is favorably regarded in the report, because practically it would remove the blight of desertion.

Troops From Fort Sheridan.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Brigadier-General W. E. Cater, commander of the Department of the Lakes, received orders from Washington today, directing two battalions of the Twenty-seventh Infantry and the Fourteenth United States Field Battery, at Fort Sheridan, to proceed immediately to Newport News, where they will embark for Cuba. Colonel W. L. Pitzer, in command of Fort Sheridan, ordered two special trains of 12 cars each for Tuesday morning, and it is expected the troops will leave for Newport News

Railroads to Be Sued.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Attorney General Moody has directed that suits be brought against a large number of railroad companies to recover penalties for violation of the safety appliance law through failure to keep their equipment in proper condition. The largest number of violations attributed to any road is that of 51, against the Delaware & Hudson Company. The total number of violations is 181.

A LITTLE LESSON IN ADVERSITY.

Salmon Portland Chase, American statesman, is an example of the industry of the large body of men who rose from obscurity to the heights of national eminence.

When he was still a boy he was thrown on his own resources by the failure of the family fortunes.

His people had invested all their money in a glass factory just before a revision of the tariff ruined the glass business in the United States.

Immediately following this catastrophe the father of young Chase died, leaving the family entirely dependent on the efforts of the boy.

Chase set to work at once, and was able to take care of the family until an uncle in Ohio sent to New England for the boy and made arrangements whereby the rest of the family would be provided for. Chase went to Ohio, where he took up the schooling that he had been forced to give up when he went to work in order to provide funds.

The habits of industry that he had learned in this time, however, served him well not only in his school work, but in his later legal career. Although his life as a struggling attorney in the western country was beset with difficulties at first, he managed to overcome them one by one until at last he attained the paths of greatness.

BEAUTIFYING A BAYOU.

Boat Owners Plan Improvement of Waterways Near New Orleans.

The proposition of placing a new steel and electrically operated draw-bridge over Bayou St. John at Esplanade avenue has brought the boat owners of the city to the front with a petition to Mayor Behrman that this bridge be manned with a day and a night watchman, so that craft of all kinds may pass through, as is the case with the bridge of the New Orleans Terminal Company, about half a mile or more farther toward the lake.

At present Bayou St. John has a great deal of natural beauty, as well as natural ugliness, and it is proposed to improve on the former and eliminate the latter, particularly near the city, where it is desired that ornamental boat landings be erected, especially for yachts, motor boats and canoes. Canoeing, within the last year, has taken a big impetus in New Orleans, and scarcely a night passes but a number of these graceful bateaux are to be seen gliding silently over the surface of the bayou. Nearly every week new motor craft are added to the already large fleet in these waters, and some of the handsomest and most costly pleasure craft of this kind are to be found in New Orleans as their home port.

The New Basin is congested with commercial traffic, and the demands of commerce are such as to give the small boats little opportunity for navigation. For this reason the owners of such boats have turned naturally to the historic Bayou St. John, and but for the stoppage of headway by all except the very smallest motor boats, by reason of the closing of the bridges, there would be twice as many plying the stream.

Lacking long stretches of roadway for vehicles, New Orleans is superabundantly supplied with navigable streams and big water ways, and a very little encouragement would give a strong impetus to motor boating hereabouts, this being the most available form of outdoor recreation in the matter of locomotion.—New Orleans Picayune.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

The right of local self-government in Rhode Island, which has been strongly urged in view of the peculiar origin of that State, is denied, in Horton v. Newport (R. I.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 512, as against a statute regulating the police force of the State.

The power of a court of equity to prevent majority stockholders from exercising their statutory power to reduce the capital stock in order to relieve defaulting stockholders from meeting their obligations is asserted in Sheis vs. Durr (Wis.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 571.

The distinction between private and public functions of a municipality is considered in Dickinson vs. Boston (Mass.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 664, which denies municipal liability for negligence of the city superintendent of the lamp department in respect to an unsafe lamp-post.

A company manufacturing and bottling a beverage is held, in Watson vs. Augusta Brewing Company (Ga.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1178, to be liable to one injured by swallowing pieces of glass while drinking from one of such bottles, which he procured from a merchant, who had purchased the same from the manufacturer.

The violation of a municipal ordinance as to the manner of stringing the electric light wire which charged a broken telephone wire, or the imperfect insulation of the wire, is held, in Stark vs. Muskegon Traction & L. Co. (Mich.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 822, not to be the proximate cause of an injury to a boy who seized the broken telephone wire to receive a shock.

An exception to the rule that equity will not specifically enforce, as between parties in part delicto, a contract which is opposed to public policy, is applied in Seattle Electric Company vs. Snoqualmie Falls Power Company (Wash.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1032, by restraining the breach of a contract to furnish a supply of electricity to a street-car and electric-lighting company upon the ground that such breach would result in a great public inconvenience.

A limitation upon the right of one to use his own name in his own business is declared in Morton vs. Morton (Cal.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 660, holding that one who had established a business under a particular name, which he placed on the hats of his agents to induce customers that were his representatives, could enjoin another of the same name, engaged in the same business, from using such name as a hat label in substantially the same way as the former, so as to deceive the public.

Jenkins Followed Directions.

William Allen White, the Kansas editor, tells in Harper's Weekly a tale of the trials of a young reporter. His editor had given him instruction in the first principles of making a newspaper story: "Tell in the first few lines what your story is about. Give the substance at once. Then follow with a recital of the facts, and conclude with interviews with the people concerned. That is the only orderly way of writing your story."

The new man gave close attention to this lesson, the result of which was that he handed in that night a news item which read as follows:

"Rufus Jenkins, a carpenter, slipped and fell in Vine street yesterday, and sprained his ankle badly.

"Mr. Jenkins was walking along Vine street, when suddenly his feet slipped from under him and he fell, spraining one of his ankles."

"When seen by a reporter he said, 'I was walking along Vine street, when in some way my feet slipped from under me, and I fell heavily to the sidewalk, spraining one of my ankles.'"

"Mr. Frank Fuller said, 'I was walking behind Mr. Jenkins on Vine street, when I saw him slip and fall to the sidewalk. When I assisted him to arise he told me that he had sprained one of his ankles.'"

"Dr. Thomas Rich, who attended Mr. Jenkins, said, 'Mr. Jenkins had a badly sprained ankle, due to a fall in Vine street. He will be laid up for some time.'"

"Mr. Jenkins could not attend last night's meeting of the carpenters' union. The president, in convening the meeting, expressed regret that Mr. Jenkins could not attend, as he had slipped and fallen in Vine street, spraining one of his ankles."

His Tribal Descent.

Congressman Llewellyn Powers of Maine, beside being a millionaire, is a man of striking appearance. Being tall, lean, with high cheek bones and wearing his coarse, black hair long, he bears some resemblance to the aborigines of the continent. One day while traveling on a Maine railroad, where "Indians and ministers" ride for half fare, Mr. Powers met a member of the Passamaquoddy tribe in the smoking car and started in to question his copper colored constituent as to his manner of living and how he liked the tribal relations in Maine. After some minutes of talk Mr. Powers asked: "By the way, which of the two tribes do you belong to?" "Myself 'n all Passamaquoddy," replied the Indian. "What tribe was you bin?"

Before the Boston drummers who sat in adjoining seats had finished laughing Mr. Powers discovered that he had urgent business which called him to the Pullman.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Games Out of Reach.

Many stories have been told in New York to illustrate the supposed slowness of Philadelphians, but probably the prize winner of them all is one which is now going the rounds.

Philadelphia visiting in New York ordered some snails in a restaurant. They pleased him.

"These are very fine snails," he said to the proprietor. "They are delicious. I wish I could get them often."

"Don't you have them in Philadelphia?" asked the New Yorker, in surprise.

"Oh, yes, we have plenty," said the other, "but we can't catch them."

It was the small brother of pretty Margaret who opened the front door in response to Mr. Goodyear's ring, and his face took on a singularly alert expression as he surveyed the caller.

"No, she isn't in," said Margaret's brother. "Are—are you Mr. Hamlin?"

"No," said the young man, "I am Mr. Goodyear. Does that make any difference about her being at home?" and he looked searchingly at the boy.

"Course not!" said Bobby, indignantly. "I don't tell stories, nor Margaret doesn't. But if you'd been Mr. Hamlin, I was to tell something about her coming home, and get ten cents if I did it right and didn't tell the wrong one. I need that money, and so, you see, I didn't want to make any mistake. Good-by!"

CURED OF GRAVEL.

Not a Single Stone Has Formed Since Using Doan's Kidney Pills.

J. D. Daughtrey, music publisher, of Suffolk, Va., says: "During two or three years that I had kidney trouble I passed about 2½ pounds of gravel and sandy sediment in the urine. I haven't passed a stone since using Doan's Kidney Pills, however, and that was three years ago. I used to suffer the most acute agony during a gravel attack, and had the other usual symptoms of kidney trouble—lancinating headaches, pain in the back, urinary disorders, rheumatic pain, etc. I have a box containing 14 gravel stones that I passed, but that is not one-fourth of the whole number. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a fine kidney tonic."
