SESSION WILL BE BUSY.

Congress May Make Changes in Sev

Washington, Nov. 27.—The indications are that the short session of congress that opens December 3 and expires by limitation March 4 next, will not go down in history because of any particular achievement. It will be a busy session; all short sessions are, for three months is none too much time in which to perfect and years the regular which to perfect and pass the regular appropriation bills. Aside from this legisltaion, little of national importance is likely to result.

Following out recommendations made by the president in his annual message, the house may frame, and possibly pass, some sort of bill limiting inheritances; some bill proposing changes in the rate law, the pure food law and the anti-trust law may be proposed and dis-cussed, but nothing of this character is likely to get through the senate.
