Gleaned By the Wayside

There was an orange party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Currin on the evening of decoration day. The friends who gathered there spent a delightful evening. The oranges were brought by Mr. and Mrs. Currin from California when they visited that state recently.

On May 30th the Snyder family and Mrs. Rawlins and Ben came down to decorate the graves of their departed ones who are sleeping in the Zion cemetery. Mrs. Rawlins remained till Friday evening visiting Mrs. A. Demoy.

On Wednesday the whole male population of the Garfield school disappeared after the morning session. It looked much like a strike. Miss Pruner, the teacher, was very much worried and parents were heard expressing themselves as in favor of applying the rod.

Tommy, a little son of W. R. Oatfield, was kicked the other day by a horse. He was very place for awhile, but is now getting better.

Parties can be seen going up into the hills frequently to look at land now in dispute between the government and the R R Co.

With rural free delivery and the telephone in their homes, besides speedy access to the city by fast and comfortable electric cars, the farmers at Currinsville and other neighborhoods near there can laugh at their country cousins, they have decidedly the best of the latter so far as healthful living is concerned.
