Heart Disease Claims Another Victim

P. T. Davis, a pioneer of Clackamas County, suddenly stricken by Death while sitting on a chair at the Stubbe home in Garfield on Thursday last.

P. T. Davis, who in company with his son-in-law Mr. Webster operate a saw mill about two miles east of Estacada, had gone from his mill over to the Stubbe ranch, which is only a short distance from the mill, and while sitting on a chair fell over unconscious. He had heart trouble and at other times had taken fainting spells, but would soon rally and be all right again and while a strong, robust looking man of his age his friends were expecting just such termination of his affliction.

Mr. Davis was born in Madison Co., Ind., March 20, 1844. In 1862 he enlisted in Company D 29th Iowa Infantry and was honorably discharged Aug. 15, 1865. He came West overland by ox team about 1868 and settled in Clackamas County and has been a resident here ever since, living at Milwaukee at the time of his death.

He was married to Jennie B. Hays by whom he is survived, also the following children: Chas. R., of Newport; Mrs. Hattie E. Webster and Arthur C., of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Emma Talbert of Clackamas. Wm. Davis Sr. and J. J., of Garfield, Ike M., of Grants Pass, Joseph, John and Mrs. Rachael Johnson, in the East, Mrs. Daniel Palmateer of California, and Robt. of Washington, are brothers and sister, one sister, Mrs. Jane Tate, having preceded him to the grave. The deceased has a very large family connection throughout this section.

The body was sent from the mill on Friday morning to his home in Milwaukee from where he was taken Sunday to the Evangelical church where religious services were held after which interment was made at the Clackamas Cemetery in charge of the I. O. O. F., assisted by the members of the G. A. R., of which the deceased was a member.

"Man-bird" Flies In Portland

Daring Aviator Has Perfect Control Of Machine; Flies Down In Front Of Racing Automobile

As we watched Chas. K. Hamilton, the aviator, at the Country Club grounds manipulate the Curtiss bi-plane, sending it against or with the wind, ascending in space or descending to earth, alighting with the lightness of a bird with not a single jar or jerk when the surface of the ground was reached and with such precision, always the same place or nearly so on the track in the midst of a great throng of people that were on all sides of the aviator as he made his descents, led us to believe that "Darius Green and his flying machine" had lost some of its grotesqueness and that "Darius Green" had the correct idea even if he did not have the right kind of flying machine.

It was estimated that over fifty thousand people witnessed the daring fetes of Hamilton on Sunday afternoon. The machine is a very ordinary and common looking device, just as the photographs of it show it to be.

In the first event Hamilton simply sent the machine up and made a circle or two to show that it would fly and landed on the race track a few feet from where he had started. The next event was a race with two automobiles. They raced six times around the course and Hamilton flew as many times around it, sometimes low and at other times higher, just as he chose to do. Twice, while racing, he lowered the machine until the wheels on it touched the ground on the track in front of the racing auto and then lifted again at the will of the aviator as easily as the swallow skirts the surface of the water and then rises again. He also flew across the country toward Mt. Hood, all the time being in sight of the crowd and returned and made his famous "Hamilton glide" among the spectators to the track. We watched the aviator through an opera glass and could see his every movement while following the oblong race track and he seemed to be no more concerned than if he were sitting in a sulky and guiding a horse on the course so accurately and unconcernedly did he do it. He was first in the race with the autos.

An Up-to-date Farming District

Garfield Citizens Contemplate Having Electric Lights Soon; Show Wish To Have Conveniences

The Garfield ranchers adjacent to Estacada are taking advantage of all the modern conveniences obtainable. The impetus given the district by the new and old settler alike entering heartily in the movement to make this a great fruit and berry district as well as the regular agricultural products that can be raised on our soils of which we have a great variety, has led early to another desire, which is: to be supplied with all the modern conveniences possible.

They already have several rural telephone lines that connect with the Estacada central, a rural free mail delivery daily, and now they want electric lights. They are consulting with the P. R. L. & P. Co. with a view of establishing electric lights in their homes.

These are certainly great privileges to be enjoyed and when it is possible for the rancher to have all these it ought to aid in solving the difficult problem of how we can manage to keep our boys and girls on the farm contentedly. The brightest and best talent of our ranching districts become dissatisfied with conditions of country life and they leave the "old farm" in numbers so great every year that the business and office man of our great cities find it easy to secure good talent at a low price. Young women especially, also young men, leave their homes in the country not always because they can make more money in the cities but the difference between the comforts of life to be obtained. So the more of these we find possible to make use of on the farm the less will be the desire to get away from it.

Those who are conferring with the company about the lights inform me that it will be secured and that a line will be run through Garfield and request all desirous of securing the light to make application for it, as the more lights sold the cheaper the proposition can be secured.

above Welches, on the Mount Hood road, about a month ago, were taken to Oregon City March 7 by Deputy Game Warden J. L. Green and will be given a preliminary examination on Tuesday of next week before Justice of the Peace Samson.

They were all released on their own recognizance except Goluke, who was required to give bonds amounting to $1000. E. E. Sleret, also of Gresham, pleaded guilty last week to the same charge in the Justice Court and paid a fine of $100 and costs.

Gives Shooting Exhibition

W. A. Hillis, of Portland, representing the Remington Arms Co. and the U. M. C. Cartridge Co. gave an exhibition of his skill in the use of the Remington at Estacada on Tuesday afternoon. The big game of our forests would certainly look like a sieve in about thirty seconds if they attempted to charge on Mr. Hillis, especially if he were in Estacada. His ability to shoot with the light and heavy rifles, shot gun or revolver led us to believe that if he had his favorite make of gun and ammunition, which is the Remington and the U. M. C. and sold by the Estacada Mercantile Co., that he would tackle a grizzly even if he was in the woods.
