An old military dictionary tells us that rats were sometimes used in war for the purpose of firing powder magazines by means of lighted matches tied to their tails. We cannot offhand re call any historical instance of this, bu presumably it did occur, seeing tha Marshal Vauban laid down special rules for counteracting it. Anyhow the dodge is as old as Samson, who you may recall, used foxes in a similar way for a somewhat similar purpose As to the royal rat catcher, we may add that he had a special official livery According to Pennant's "British Zoolo gy," it consisted of a scarlet costume embroidered with yellow worsted, in which were figures of mice destroying wheat sheaves. By the way, rats were not the only animals honored with a special catcher. Liecester, for instance used to pay a yearly salary of £1 11s 6d to its municipal mole catcher. London Standard.
