The correct way to pronounce it is Es-ta-ca-da, accent on the third syllable, a having the sound of a as in ah in the two last syllables.

The Portland business men returned from their visit to thirty Oregon points intensely enthused Aside from the splendid welcome extended to them everywhere, some of the more homely features appealed to them specially—for instance the luscious asparagus, toothsome new potatoes and strawberries which were sent to the excursion diner by different communities. The scenic side was not overlooked, either, and at several points the excursionists found upon returning to their train that it had been converted into a bower of roses or other blossoms.

A goodly number of Eagle Creek people were here Sunday to see the ball game and proved themselves enthusiastic fans, taking the defeat of their home team in a sportsman like manner. A very small minority, however, considered it the proper thing to be scrappy. This should not be so as it gives good argument to those who do not favor an innocent sport to easily show that it leads to harm. The individual who can take defeat good naturedly and in a physiological manner is always popular and has a well balanced judgment that can always be depended on.

That the National Government does a great injustice to the public as well as to the printer by compelling all to help pay for the printing done on stamped envelopes; it favors the big firms that can afford to pay and burdens the public who do pay, kills competition and promotes monopoly, has been an evil endured for twenty years. A bill to prevent this evil is before Congress now and every taxpayer should be interested in it. Write to your representatives and tell them you are opposed to paying for the printing for the big users of envelopes.

The Youth's Companion is not only so in name but reality. We remember it personally at least forty years ago, how we enjoyed its stories. It has been much improved since and the price has been raised, but it is worth to any boy or girl much more than its subscription price and many of the men and women who learned to read it in boy and girlhood days cling to it as one does to an old friend. The price is $1.75 per year Subscriptions taken at this office.

Business had little attention in Portland Friday and Saturday of last week, for the census was the engrossing subject. Large business interests volunteered their best men as special enumerators to assist in the work without compensation, and every effort was made to get a fair count, the whole to be carefully checked over for accuracy.

Notice To Water Consumers

It has been the desire of the Council that all water rents be paid monthly at the office of the City Recorder, because it is the business way to do it also for the additional reason the city needs the money to meet its obligations. Some consumers, through neglect, have failed to do this and at their last meeting it was made imperative for the water to be paid promptly and the Recorder instructed to enforce this rule. In accordance with these instructions all arrearages for water must be arranged for at once and hereafter any consumer that does not have the water rent paid the 20th of the month the water will positively be shut off.

By order of the Council.
E. S. WOMER, Recorder

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

RAVENOUS EATERS.

Gluttony of Soliman and the Appetite of Louis XIV.

Touching the matter of eating, the stories told by the old chroniclers and historians of the abnormal appetites of certain Roman and oriental men of note fairly stagger belief.

Gibbon tells of Soliman, a caliph in the eighth century, who died of acute indigestion in his camp near Chalcis, in Syria. Just as he was about to lead an army of Arabs against Constantinople. He had emptied two baskets of eggs and figs, which he swallowed alternately, and the repast was finished with marrow and sugar. In a pilgrimage to Mecca the same caliph had eaten with impunity at a single meal seventy pomegranates, a kid, six fowls and a huge quantity of the grapes of Tayef.

Such a statement would defy belief were not others of a similar character well avouched. Louis XIV. could hardly boast of an appetite as ravenous as Soliman's, but he would eat at a sitting four platefuls of different soups, a whole pheasant, a partridge, a platefuls of salad, mutton hashed with garlic, two good sized slices of ham, a dish of pastry and finish this ample repast with fruit and sweetmeats.—London Saturday Review.

Victorian Gods.

If Thackeray, with a brain weighing fifty-eight and one-half ounces, had the biggest head among Victorian writers who had the best features? The choice would seem to lie between Tennyson and Henry Taylor. "That man must be a poet," remarked one of his Cambridge contemporaries when he first saw Tennyson come into the hall at Trinity, and another friend describes him in his undergraduate days as six feet high, broad chested, strong limbed, his face Shakespearean, with deep eyelids; his forehead ample, crowned with dark wavy hair; his head finely poised, his hand the admiration of sculptors. But time dealt none too gently with Tennyson, whereas Henry Taylor, always a distinguished looking man, seems to have grown singularly majestic with years. Grant Duff, meeting him when he was over eighty, notes that "Taylor looks more like Jupiter than ever," and contemporary memoirs are full of references to his Jove-like appearance.—London Standard.

No Chance In History.

Mazzini said that he did not believe that chance existed in history. "A cause must necessarily underlie every event, although for the moment it may appear as the result of apparently accidental circumstances. An Alexander, a Caesar, a Napoleon, are not the results of accident, but the inevitable product of the time and nation from which they spring. It was not Caesar who destroyed the Roman republic. The republic was dead before Caesar came. Sulla, Marius, Catiline, preceded and foreshadowed Caesar, but he, gifted with keener insight and greater genius, snatched the power from them and concentrated it in his own hands. For there was no doubt that he was fitter to rule than all the others put together. At the same time, supposing he had appeared 150 years earlier, he would not have succeeded in destroying the republic. When he came the life had already gone out of it, and even Caesar's death could not restore that."

Nicely Graded.

It is still a tradition that the people of Manchester, England, should gibe at Liverpool with the proverb, "A Manchester man, a Liverpool gentleman;" but, it is said, classification is not so strongly marked in Lancashire as in the old days. When stagecoaches were running a guard was once asked, "Who has tha' getten inside, Billy?" Billy consulted his list and replied, "A gentlemon fra Liverpool, a mon fra Manchester, a chap fra Owdham and a fellow fra Wigan."

Words of Different Size.

"Did they exchange words?"

"Yes, but it wasn't an even exchange. One spoke in English and the other in Russian."—New York Press.

I hardly know so true a work of a little mind as the servile imitation of another.—Greville.

EAGLE CREEK

By a Freshman

With an apology to the editor and his subscribers for our long silence we come again this week with a few news items. Where are the correspondents from Garfield, Springwater and Currinsville?

Mr. Charles Murphy, after looking over various parts of Oregon, taking a trip to the Sacramento Valley, Cal., and another several years ago to Missouri, has decided that Clackamas Co. suits him very well and recently bought 20 acres from his son-in-law, Ray Woodle. He will build on his new property and make it his future home.

Mr. W. N. Holland, who moved to Portland nearly two years ago on account of the death of his wife, sold his place recently to a Mr. Taylor of Portland. Consideration 883. per acre. It was almost a new ranch with few improvements.

Alsa Freeman and wife moved into Mr. Stidle's house last week. He expects to work for the Gold Medal Shingle Co.

Wm. Douglass is hauling ties from the Sellwood Lumber Co's. mill to Eagle Creek.

The Grangers are clearing out the grove and building a fence around the grange hall. They hope to have the grounds in fine shape for their May picnic.

We may truly say "beautiful Oregon" now as everything is in fine condition. Crops of all kinds look well and we were not touched by the blizzards that recently made such havoc in Central and Eastern states. No doubt, that fact alone will help to swell the numbers of homeseekers in Oregon. We have room for many honest, industrious, enterprising citizens of all trades.

The health of our community is very good at present. We sympathize with our neighbor Currinsville in her affliction and hope the measles will not cross the creek but you never can tell. Well, it's a good time of year for them, anyway.

The Eagle Creek baseball team suffered a defeat (and oh! how they hate to be beaten) on the Estacada grounds last Sunday. It is reported, however, that it was not the Estacada team but players imported from Portland who "did the bad deed." Now boys, you spoil the sport if you don't "play fair" and "keep your tempers."

Mr. Wm. A. Baker of the Peoples' Pulpit Association of Brooklyn, New York, will deliver a free lecture at the Pleasant Hill school house (Dist. No. 50) next Sunday May 8th at 11 o'clock A. M., Subject, "The two Salvations —From what to what?" All are invited.

Mr. Elsworth Chester has sold his interest in the wood business here, to his brother Tracy and will move over near Sandy. He will haul ties from Olson's mill to Boring. Mr. Scott will "batch" here with Trace and Charley.

Rivalry Lends Interest To Game

The game of ball between Eagle Creek and the home team on Sunday had been anxiously looked forward to for the reason that Manager Haskins had something up his sleeve, if it did cost money. The one ambition that possessed him was to beat Eagle Creek and he did it and now he seems satisfied. Eagle Creek, for the most part took it good naturedly as it was simply a game they had played at themselves and have won. We like to see friendly rivalry between the two clubs as it lends interest to the game and adds to the gate receipts. A few, and we are glad to say they are very few, who allow their rivalry to go to the extreme of bitter and unfriendly words and feeling, don't do it again. The player who takes defeat good naturedly is the most thought of by all.

John Jones and family have gone to Portland temporarily while he is working there. He stored his household goods here. He is working with C. G. Reisner, who is building a house for Mr. Dubois.
