Dairymen and butter and cheese makers will gather in Portland December 6, 7 and 8 for the annual convention and special plans are under way to make this year's gathering the largest and most interesting ever held. Experts from the East will be in attendance to judge the different exhibits, of which there will be many, and well known authorities on various topics of interest will deliver addresses. There will be more and better prizes offered than ever before.

Governor West's prison policy, so far as it affects the services of the prisoners, is approved by the Progress, as outlined in a former issue. We, at that time, said in as much as the tax payers had to pay for their keeping, they certainly were entitled to the profits of their services. We have not changed our mind yet and see no reason why we should.

An apple tree near Albany has been sold for $600. It is everbearing, maturing fruit at all seasons of the growing period, with buds, blossoms and apples on the tree at the same time. A nursery company has bought the tree and will try to establish a new everbearing variety.

The joint line of the Oregon Trunk and the Deschutes Railroad will be opened to passenger and freight traffic to Bend from the Columbia River on November 1. The new lines are now operating to Opal City.

We are in receipt this week of the yearbook of the Department of Agriculture, for 1910. It contains a report of the work of the department for the year, etc., and is of very great interest.

Mr. Turrel Makes Explanation

Mr. Turrel, of Dodge, requested the Progress to make this statement concerning certain rumors being circulated in his neighborhood of Dr. Steiner's treatment of his wife in her recent illness. That his wife is now well and that he is accordingly happy. In case he needed a doctor again that he would call on the same man. The parties who are so much interested in spreading the reports reflecting on Dr. Steiner's integrity will confer a favor on the doctor if they will kindly leave their home address at his office, is the statement from Dr. Steiner. This incident happened in this wise. When Dr. Steiner arrived at the Turrel home he found Mrs. Turrel very ill. Haste was necessary and naturally confusion existed at the bedside of the sick woman. He had two bottles of medicine placed close to use, one being carbolio acid. Thinking he had the other bottle the contents of the carbolio acid bottle was placed to the sick woman's lips, but the error was discovered at once and the only trouble was the acid burn on the lips.

Attorney C. W. Devore and John Ely were Oregon City visitors on Monday.

Morris Bros. of Garfield, received several crates of thoroughbred chickens on Wednesday.

J. R. Cassidy made the Commercial Club a present of the sign on the Secretary's office, on Wednesday.

On next Tuesday night the spirit of Halloween will be properly displayed throughout the country. The many foolish pranks which are usual upon this evening may be expected. The event will be celebrated in Estacada by several parties and gatherings, at which the nerve-tripping ghosts will be in prominence. The city officials are taking steps to see that the revelers do not overstep their rights and impose on others.

Death Of Emma J. Yeakey

Mrs. Emma J. Yeakey, of Portland, died on Tuesday evening. She is the mother of James Yeakey and a sister of Mrs. C. W. Wisner, of our city. A couple of years ago her husband died suddenly, just shortly after he had purchased the Park Hotel. The body was brought to Estacada on Thursday afternoon and interment was made in the Lone Oak Cemetery.

A party composed of R. G. Palmater and wife and son Richard, W. M. Wade, Henry Heiple, Lester Hale, Charley Duncan and L. J. Palmater made an overland trip to Pacific City on Nestsucca Bay. They report an enjoyable trip and plenty of fish.

The Commercial Club's band of business men who made the trip through the George country on Wednesday was, Al Lindsey, R. W. Cary, J. R. McCurdy, E. F. Cruise and Mr. Jellison. They met most of the people throughout that neighborhood and found them very enthusiastic about the proposed route. The men also said that our country friends "sure do set some table", as they were treated like princes on all the trips they have taken. (Roger City is res. o-sible for the latter part of this item.)

COMFORT IN CONGRESS.

Free Baths and Shaves and Massage and Other Things as Well.

Every member of congress has the free use of the congressional bath and the barber shops under the capitol. He can take a nifty Turkish bath, a Russian bath, a Roman bath, a needle shower or the plain, old fashioned Pike county style of bath, lying down in a tub with both faucets going, and it doesn't cost him a cent.

As often as he pleases he may have a shave, a hair cut, a facial massage and be manicured all around, as they say in parts of Iowa when shoeing a horse. Every other day he can have the back of his neck shaved, just as if he were going to some large social function back home. Uncle Sam pays for the attendants and provides the whole outfit.

We mustn't overlook the notion counter at the capitol either. The members don't, so why should we, especially as the notion counter is a genuine and enduring loan to stationery, their wives, families, heirs and assigns.

It contains everything you can think of that would properly come under the head of notions and a great deal besides—all kinds of stationery, all kinds of typewriter and desk supplies, pocket knives, scissors, fountain pens, card cases, purses, wrist bags, visiting cards, business cards and—oh—hundreds of other things which run fifty-two to a set and may be used for playing old maid and other harmless games.—Munsey's Magazine.

FAKED PAINTINGS.

An American Who Was Fooled and an Artist Who Was Insulted.

M. Henri Rochefort was being interviewed one day on bogus picture collections, says the Paris correspondent of the Kansas City Journal. He is as good an expert as any on the question. The subject always interests him. "Sit down, my friend," he said to the journalist. "I will tell you a good story. It happened not long ago either. An American one day rushed in and begged me to say what I thought of the pictures he had just bought. 'They are here at your door,' he said. 'I brought them along in a cab.'"

There were Rembrandts, Corots and Harpignies.

"The Rembrandts are false," I said. The Corots ditto, the Harpignies ditto. The American was horror-struck. He said they had cost him $10,000.

"Then, I said, let us leave the Rembrandts and Corots aside. These masters are dead, but Harpignies is not. Here is a note for him from me. Ask him yourself if he signed these pictures." My American disappeared. I never heard from him again, but I got a letter from Harpignies some days later. He said: "My dear friend—if I were not ninety-two years of age I would have sent you my seconds for seeing that American to me to ask if those worthless dubs were mine. Yours, Henri Harpignies."

Kept His Head.

An ambassador of the great Charles who was visiting a court in the east, ignorant of a law of the king but condemned to death any one who moved a dish at table before the tyrant was served, committed this offense. "Great king," said the ambassador, "I die without a murmur; but, in the name of the great emperor whose servant I am, I beg of your majesty one favor before I die." The request was granted. "Give me the eyes of every man who saw me commit the crime." "It is well," said the king. "Their eyes shall be plucked out for thee." But no one admitted he had seen the ambassador move the dish, not even the king. "Then why should I die, great king?" "Then why should I die, great king?" asked the ambassador. "The deed cannot be proved against me." The king was pleased and forthwith pardoned the ambassador.

Might Be Right.

"Edie," said the timid highland lover, "I wad kiss ye, but I'm feart ye wadna let me."

She blushed as red as the sunset, but did not answer.

"Edie," he repeated timidly, a little later, "I said I wad kiss ye, but I'm feart ye wadna let me."

At the third repetition she asked: "Dae ye min, David, yesterday I couldna lift a bag of potatoes into the light an' ye lifted them for me?"

"Oh, aye!" he replied.

"Weel, that shows, David," she murmured, "that ye're far stronger than me!"—London Answers.

On the Right Road.

"Our daughter puts on too many airs," observed Mr. Spillikins.

"She does, does she?" sneered Mrs. S.

"What's the trouble?"

"She seems to be too aristocratic and haughty."

"What do you want her to be?"

"I'd rather have her to be a good cook."

"And did you ever know anybody as haughty as a cook?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Usual Preference.

"What kind of meat have you this morning, Larry?" asked the board of trade operator.

"Well, sir," said the butcher, "I've got some fine bear steak and some beef that's just bully."

"Humph! Give me some lamb!"—Chicago Tribune.

Unnecessary.

"Does your course of home reading include the profane authors?"

"No, I don't need 'em. I belong to a golf club."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
