That the completion of the Panama Canal will mean millions of dollars annually to the fruit growers of the Pacific Northwest was the statement of J. N. Teal in an address to the State Horticultural Society at its annual meeting. He believes the fruit grower will profit more by the opening of the canal than the man engaged in any other industry, with the possible exception of the lumberman, although producers generally will be much benefited.

Mr. Teal told of the reduced freight rates to the markets of the world that will follow when the canal is opened, while at the same time better rates will lower the cost of almost everything the horticulturist uses. Markets for fruit will be widened greatly because of cheapening of transportation and Mr. Teal estimates a saving of approximately $20,000,000 in freight charges to growers of the Northwest each year.

The garnering time for this year has almost ended. The farmers have full granaries and are prosperous and happy in our vicinity. A few potatoes are yet in the ground, but most other products are stored or have been marketed. The apple crop has not been as good this year as usual with our farmer friends, but they have plenty of vegetables and other good things to eat. The farm life may be irksome and laborious, but contentment and plenty to eat with the comforts of the simple home life that is in contrast with the excesses and nerve racking possibilities of the great city life, is, after all, reward enough in a farmer's life that he can forgo some of the luxuries that his city neighbor enjoys.

Legislation that will give the buyer of clothing the same protection as the pure food law gives the purchaser of provisions is to be sought as the result of the recent convention of Oregon woolgrowers. "Pure Wool" may be demanded and those making and selling goods of poorer quality must label their product, showing how much wool and how much shoddy the goods contain, if the proposed measure is made a law.

Hood River's Commercial Club wants 306 new families to settle there next year and will carry on a more extensive publicity campaign to attract them. The Ashland Commercial Club is in good shape, being out of debt, with money in the treasury. Springfield business men have just held a house warming in their new Commercial Club quarters and they look forward to an active year.

Oregon will have a creditable exhibit on board the Governors' Special train that leaves St. Paul Nov. 27 for a three weeks tour of the East. Various communities have contributed products and the exhibit has been sent forward. It is believed such a showing will have a good effect in attracting settlers to this state.

A deal is now being negotiated for the title to hop lands near Independence whereby Krebs Bros. and Pacific Coast brewers will combine yards with an aggregate of 1000 acres. The company will have a capital stock of $250,000 and this farm will be the largest in the world given over exclusively to hop growing.

Seattle, Wash., after a continuous storm period of fifteen days, in which it has rained almost constantly is having a water famine. It is said there will be no relief from it until the end of this week, when it is expected the main will be repaired. Boys are selling water on the streets at forty cents a gallon.

Louise L. Bahr, Plaintiff vs.
John Bahr, Defendant

To John Bahr, the above named defendant. In the Matter of the Estate of George W. Lockerby, deceased, you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled cause on or before the 4th day of December 1911, and if you fail to appear and answer for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief sought in her said complaint, to-wit:

For a decree of this Court dissolving the marriage contract now existing between plaintiff and defendant and for such other and further relief as may seem meet and proper in the premises.

This Summons is published by order of the Hon. J. U. Campbell, Judge of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for the Fifth Judicial District made and entered on the 17th day of October 1911, in and by which order it is so provided that this Summons be published once in each week for six consecutive and successive weeks in the Estacada Progress, a newspaper published weekly at Estacada in Clackamas County, Oregon.

The date of the first publication of this Summons is October 19th, 1911, and the last publication is November 30th, 1911.

Dated October 17th, 1911.

Notice for Publication

Departments of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Portland, Oregon, November 10, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Judith M. Joy, whose post-office address is 1189 Taylor St., Portland, Oregon, did, on the 14th day of June, 1910, file in this office Sworn Statement and Application, No. 02662, to purchase the SW 1/4 Section 4, Township 5 South, Range 4 East, Willamette Meridian, and the timber thereon under the provisions of the act of June 3, 1878, and acts amendatory, known as the "Timber and Stone Law" at such value as might be fixed by appraisement, and that, pursuant to such application, the land and timber thereon have been estimated, and valued by the applicant the timber estimated 200,000 board feet at $300.00 and the land $100.00; that said applicant will offer final proof in support of her application and sworn statement on the 30th day of January, 1912, before the Register and Receiver of the United States Land Office at Portland, Oregon.

Any person is at liberty to protest this purchase before entry, or to initiate a contest at any time before patent issues, by filing a corroborated affidavit in this office alleging facts which would defeat the entry.

RAINED ICY BULLETS.

A hailstorm in the Pyrenees is a Berlin Matter.

In a letter to the London Times a traveler tells of a hailstorm that came upon his party in the Pyrenees. "It was as if night was devouring day before our very eyes—a night, too, of tempest and torn and trailing clouds, of storm, smoke and thunder." Midway in the darkness was "the clear cut straight line of cloud which invariably tells of hail." Except for the shelter of a small tree the travelers were exposed to the storm's fury, and when they examined the hailstones they found they were of the average size of marbles, with a scattering here and there of much larger stones, "as large as golf balls."

This, however, was merely the prelude. The real storm came after they had reached their tents. "Suddenly the whole land was bombarded by great hailstones as large as lawn tennis balls." These fell with deafening roar on the canvas of the tent, and "it seemed only a matter of a few seconds for us to be battered into the tent, earth and all." An India rubber bath in front of their shelter, "with its sides beaten down in places, was half full of things like white cricket balls."

When the storm had finally passed the mountains around were white with the hailstones. The hail was weighed. "Six stones went to the kilo." The size was that of "a tennis ball and almost uniform." Seventy sheep were killed on the heights above the travelers' shelter, and in a neighboring valley thirty-five cows and some mules and the body of a child that had been wandering in the mountains "were brought down by a stream."

THACKERAY AS A TALKER.

A Grand Oratorical Display That Did Not Take Place.

Thackeray was terribly self-conscious and usually presented a very poor appearance when he attempted to deliver a speech. "Why can't they get Dickens to take the chair?" he grumbled when he had to preside at the general theatrical fund. "He can make a speech, and a good one. I'm of no use. They little think how nervous I am, and Dickens doesn't know the meaning of the word."

An amusing story is recorded of the occasion when, with Mr. Fields, the well known American publisher, Thackeray traveled to Manchester to make a speech at the founding of the Free Library Institution in that town. The would be orator declared that, although Dickens and Bulwer Lytton and Sir James Stephen were to precede him, he intended to beat each of them on this occasion. He insisted that Mr. Fields should be seated directly in front of him so that he should not miss a single word.

Later, as he rose, he looked at his friend as much as to say, "I'll show you what speaking is." He began fluently, was excellent for two minutes and then in the midst of a most earnest sentence stopped suddenly, gave a look of comic despair and sat down.

"My boy," he said when the meeting was over—"my boy, you have accidentally missed hearing one of the finest speeches ever prepared by a great British orator."—"Some Aspects of Thackeray," by Lewis Melville.

What He Wanted to See.

It cannot be denied that the saddest thing in the world is a man trying to buy in a department store a garment for a woman. Discouraged before he begins, a walk through acres of garments which are none of his business depresses him still further. Saleswomen are pitifully tolerant, even kind, but his sense of inferiority grows. One unfortunate who tried to buy a sweater for a wife who was out of town did at last rebel. His first mistake was in language. "Thirty-six chest," he said. "Thirty-six bust," corrected the young woman. At last in a helpless tangle he bought meekly what he was told to buy. Then she asked, "Is there anything more I can show you?"

"Yes," he said solemnly, "the quickest way out."—New York Sun.

A New Way to Religion.

A clergyman recently said: "If I were to start a new religion, do you know what I would do?"

"You'd go out and preach, wouldn't you?" I asked.

"I'd do something else first," he replied. "I would go to the popular song writers, writers of words and writers of music, and I would get them to write songs expressing the spirit of the new religion. If we can only make people feel religion, if we can make them realize that it is already there in their hearts, make them love it, we can move the world."—San Francisco Bulletin.
