New Methods. Our methods of fighting the drink evil have changed and improved as much as our methods of travel and communication.

A few years ago the long faced temperance agitator lectured in our churches and the burden of his theme was abuse of saloon keepers solemnized by a few distressful tales of murder, etc. done by drunkards and enlivened by a few funny stories of the man intoxicated.

Then the good brethren went home thanking God that they were not as these and at the very next election voted for the candidate of the good (?) old Republican or Democrat party as the case might be, whether he was a temperance man or not.

Now we are learning to leave the much abused saloon keeper alone and place the blame on the voter where it belongs.

Is the saloon keeper as much to blame as the voter? Let us see. In the first place we find very few educated, enlightened men keeping saloons. Can you say the same of those who do not vote against saloons? Then the saloon keeper's excuse for doing wrong is much greater than the voter's because his profit is so much greater. Then also, he receives his punishment as he goes along because he is shunned by nearly every one and cannot help but know that he is constantly being demoralized by his business. Is this true of the voter?

Take for instance the voters in a little town which is trying to become "dry." Listen to your good (?) citizen who cries. "Oh! we must have the saloon or we cannot run the town." If the town goes wet he takes the saloon keeper's money and then hurts his business all he can by restricting it in every way, such as not allowing screens or seats in his saloon. If this fair? It doesn't look so to mere woman. Then there is another kind who say the saloon is all right if it is only made respectable, I can as easily imagine a nice refined, respectable saloon as I can a fraudulent poison, a good vice or a fragrant skunk.

No. Mr. Good Citizen, you will find it a hard matter to make a place respectable where vile poisons are sold that excite all that is low base and mean in those who drink them. God grant that all of Oregon's newly made voters may vote as they pray.

Boost the Town—Boost Yourself Subscribe for the PROGRESS. L. N. Vallen had the misfortune to loose a calf in the mountains last week. It became fast in a barb wire fence, dying from exposure. There was a telephone meeting at the school house Saturday night but as usual only about one half of the members were present which makes it difficult to conduct the business in a satisfactory way. GARFIELD Clyde English is again at home after a seven month's trip through Kansas. John Dunlop of Chicago is visiting his brother Sam Dunlop. Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Cook of Portland were out over Sunday. Miss Helen Bartlett of Estacada was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Dunlop. Miss Nellie Cohill of Portland will spend a few days with Miss Belle English. Invited and not invited guests made a large gathering at the barn dance given by Jerome Schultz last Saturday. Walter Snuffin met with an accident while helping on the telephone line. His axe glanced, striking his ankle and cutting a deep gash in the bone. It is thought that the wound is not serious. It will put him on the disabled list however for some time.
