A NEW YEAR GREETING

The Progress extends most cordial greetings to all its subscribers and patrons. As the New Year dawns brightly, may Kind Providence smile upon and bless you. Our wish is for your prosperity in business, happiness in your homes and good health. May peace and plenty abound. This is the first issue of the Progress for 1914. The present editor has only been in charge four months, but we are pleased with the courteous treatment received by the business men of Estacada and our valued subscribers. Have we measured up to the full requirements of a local newspaper? Probably not—but we have tried to serve everybody fairly. We may do better in the future months if we can have your aid and co-operation. As we bid the old year farewell, this is our resolve: To try to do better in the future.

Holiday trade in Estacada was good this year, exceeding that of last year by some of our merchants.

The water wagon arrived this morning at 7 o'clock, but as yet we have heard of no one "getting aboard."

To a tenderfoot in Oregon, it would seem that the ushering in of a New Year, receives more of a demonstration than the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The Progress office has received many Christmas greetings and the wish for a happy and prosperous New Year, from those whom we transact business with in Portland and other places, all of which we appreciate very much.

HUMOR OF A CANNIBAL.

He Enjoyed It Himself, but It Didn't Tickle the Victim.

A number of natives came to greet us when we landed at Bau, a Fiji island, among them a few whom the consul seemed to know. They volunteered to act as escorts for us and by various expressions tried to convey the idea that they were glad to see us.

A school forms one side of the square. Across from this stands the council chamber, built on the trench where the bodies were roasted for their former feasts. The old headstone against which Crook used to dash the brains of his victims still stands, and the anchor and rudder of a French ship wrecked near Bau lie beside it.

Beneath a picture of Queen Victoria I saw an old sword swinging. I examined it and found it was a French weapon, no doubt the arm of the unfortunate French vessel's commander.

During the time this was going on Jim, Ratu Kadavu's servant, who is a particularly good type of a large, muscular race, approached me, ran his hand around my waist and slowly down my thigh and snatched his lips with a wicked smile. I laughed at this display of abnormal humor, but not very heartily, for the sword of the French captain still swung before my eyes.—Christian Herald.

Time For the Actor to Stop.

On the subject of playing the same part over an indefinite number of times David Wardell says:

"There is no such thing as playing a part too long. The mellowing process should never come, but if it does, if spontaneously falls, if the actor feels that he is becoming at all mechanical in the part, he should abandon it at once—for his own salvation.

"The surest danger signal is half hearted applause. From this the actor knows that he has lost an essential quality of the character, and the tragedy of it is he cannot tell what that quality is or how he lost it. An actor may talk a jolly thousand times and provoke laughter, but suddenly it falls of response. That's the time for him to stop."—American Magazine.

Peccans and Their Pouches.

The peccan is not an attractive bird. He offends both the eye and the nose. But he is commendably regular in his habits. The parent birds catch fish and after eating their fill deposit the others in their pouches under their bills and carry them to their young. These pouches will hold from three to eight pounds of fish. They are elastic and when distended to their utmost nearly touch the ground. When empty the pouch ties close up under the big bill and is merely a mass of wrinkles. It is this pouch that gives the peccan his characteristic and disagreeable odor, caused by particles of decaying fish. The peccan's legs are short and strong, and its feet have large webs. It is a fast swimmer on a rapid river, but it is practically useless in both air and water. On land it is awkward and unsteady.

Somemore Local News

School was opened again Monday. There will be a vacation on New Years day.

A shooting match will be given on the afternoon of Jan. 3, 1914. Shotgun, rifle and revolver shooting.

L. G. Smuckler was here from Portland Saturday and gave the exclusive agency for French Veneer, a piano and auto polish, to the Estacada Furniture Co.

As yet the Progress has heard of no couple who kissed under the mistletoe hung under the large bell at the Christmas dance. Cruel fate! It should not have been in such a conspicuous place.

The Progress is in receipt of an anonymous communication, but such letters are beneath our notice. When people are afraid to sign their name to a letter, it looks bad and shows they are not sincere.

Someone turned on the lights on the incline on Terrace Addition Saturday night. As this is a private line owned by Messrs. Will Cary and W. S. Pyle, and both families are away, the party that turned on the lights exhibited considerable nerve.

Just to show what a little printer's ink will do: Last Thursday J. P. Woodie had an estray notice inserted in the Progress. The next day parties at Garfield telephoned him that his lost Jersey was out there. The same day he brought the animal home, taking just two days to locate the lost property, with a 25 cent ad.

POLARIZED LIGHT.

Why the Rays of the Moon May Chemically Affect Foodstuffs.

Moon rays are said to make men go blind and mad, and to turn foodstuffs bad. There is even quoted by the London Lancet a death of the cause of which was officially stated to be exposure to moonlight. Apparently the food lost seriously affected by the moon's radiations is fish, and seemingly trustworthy statements have been made as to the ill effects produced in persons who had partaken of fish which had been freely exposed to moonlight.

E. G. Bryant, writing from Port Elizabeth, South Africa, suggests that a possible explanation might lie in the well known fact that the light of the moon, being reflected light, is more or less polarized, and possibly polarized light may exert a peculiar chemical action. Polarized light was obtained by him from a powerful metallic filament lamp, the light being polarized by means of a pile of sheets of plate glass backed with silver and placed at the correct angle.

The experiments showed certain marked results when fish were submitted to this light. When two silvers cut from the same fish were hung, one in the direct light and the other in the polarized beam of light, the latter invariably began to decompose before the former, though the temperature of the polarized beam was several degrees lower than the direct light.—New York Press.

TWO FACED RONCONI.

He Could Depict Tragedy on One Side and Comedy on the Other.

In "The Memoirs of an American Prima Donna," by Clara Louise Kellogg, there is a good story of Ronconi, who played second cobbler in "Crispino e la Comare." We are told that he was one of the finest Italian baritone tenors that ever lived and succeeded in getting a degree of genuine high comedy out of the part that has never been surpassed.

"He used to tell of himself a story of the time when he was singing in the Royal opera at St. Petersburg. The czar—father of the one who was murdered—said to him once:

"Ronconi, I understand that you are so versatile that you can express tragedy with one side of your face when you are singing and comedy with the other. How do you do it?"

"Your majesty," rejoined Ronconi, "when I sing 'Maria de Rohan' tomorrow night I will do myself the honor of showing you."

"And accordingly the next evening he managed to turn one side of his face, grim as the death mask, to the audience, while the other, which could be seen from only the imperial box, was excessively humorous and cheerful. The czar was greatly amused and delighted with the exhibition."

EAGLE CREEK

Miss Anna Greenwell went home to spend the holidays, returning last Sunday.

The Sunday School gave a short Christmas program last Wednesday evening. The school-room was very prettily decorated as was also the tree. One pleasing feature, which delighted the little folks, was the appearance of Santa Claus.

Mrs. Brasch is on the sick list.

GARFIELD

Walter Lemon and family are visiting relatives in Eugene, Ore.

Deep snow made it necessary for W. Dwyer, owner of the Kreger ranch, to move back to the Clutch ranch.

A very appreciative and entertaining program was enjoyed by all present at Nora Memorial church, Christmas Eve. The congregation was favored with recitations by Eva Epperson, Everett Krigbaum, John Epperson, Conrad Krigbaum, Clarence Palmetter, Arthur Duncan, Aneta Davis, Laurel Reid, Margaret Perry and William Shearer. Other numbers were a violin solo, Mr. Rees; vocal, W. Steiner of Portland and P. F. Standish; quartette selection by the church choir, also song by little girls. Although a little delayed, Santa Claus and his reindeer kept his promise by appearing long enough to distribute candy and good cheer. Every participant is deserving of special commendation. The success of the program is largely due to Mrs. H. G. Trowbridge. The church decorations were elaborate.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Whitcomb had as Xmas guests L. Davidson of Weiser, Idaho, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whitcomb of Portland, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Bundy and R. O. Deming.

Grange officers for the ensuing year were elected at the last meeting of the Grange. Herman Davis was elected to the Master's chair.

Jerome Schultz and Wm. Holland enjoyed Xmas dinner with W. R. Reid and family.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Stokes of Portland, with Mr. and Mrs. R. Carv, visited Harry Stokes and family Sunday.

Garfield extends to its sister districts, wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year.

It doesn't necessarily follow that if your good, you'll be happy, but rather if your happy you will be good. Resolve to be happy.

Married Man's Progress.

The first year after marriage man holds his wife fondly, the second year he holds the baby awkwardly, and every year after that he holds his tongue sensibly.—Dallas News.

The Best Light At The Lowest Cost

ELECTRIC LIGHT is the most suitable for homes, offices, shops and other places needing lights. Electricity can be used in any quantity, large or small, thereby furnishing any required amount of light. Furthermore, electric lamps can be located in any place, thus affording any desired distribution of light.

No other lamps possess those qualifications, therefore it is not surprising that electric lamps are rapidly replacing all others in modern establishments.

A Cure For Mosquitoes.

The people of London have learned of an agreeable way to keep their houses free from flies and mosquitoes. They burn sandalwood, which has a pleasing odor, but one that the summer pests much dislike. The idea comes from the orient, where it has long been practiced.

The sandalwood can be bought at almost any Turkish or Japanese importing house. You prepare it for burning by cutting it into pieces about half an inch thick and three inches long and then bake or dry it in a slow oven for twenty-four hours. You light a piece of the wood and put it in a metal urn or saucer. After it has ignited well blow out the flame and leave the red ember to smolder until the wood is wholly consumed.
