UNDERTAKERS

A jolly birthday party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eleck Baker of Barton last Sunday afternoon in honor of their son George. About a dozen young friends participated in a "Taffy-Pull" and later congregated in the oak grove for refreshments.

Want to Rent Little Pigs

The P. R. L. & P. Co. intend to make the coming East Clackamas exhibit at the Manufactures & Land Products Show a practical one and along different lines from routine exhibits.

While the space allotted for this display is limited, it will contain not only vegetable products, but livestock also. The management wishes to rent, borrow or steal a litter of pigs, also one or two weaned calves, some good looking ducks, turkeys, chickens and possibly an Airedale pup.

A good showing of butter, eggs, bread, honey, canned fruit and like manufactured farm products will be on exhibition, along with maps, photographs and other descriptive matter relating to this part of the county.

If you have any livestock or other material suitable for this exhibit, which begins October 25th, which you will loan, advise R. M. Standish of Estacada or Roy Meyers of Eagle Creek.

Outside Attractions Drawing

Probably not less than one hundred of the local people have already attended the famous movie film now being shown in Portland, entitled "The Birth of A Nation" and many more are planning to witness it this week.

This photo play is undoubtedly one of the greatest ever staged and is well worth many times the admission price asked. Aside from its historical value the scenes depicted are awe inspiring and exceedingly entertaining for children or grownups alike.

Many residents have also visited the Multnomah County Fair at Gresham and this week many parties are attending the Clackamas County Fair at Canby. Eastern Clackamas is especially interested in the county fair this year, as Estacada is exhibiting for the district prize and if it does not win, it will be because competition is stronger than ever before.

Black Wolf? Killed

A call for hounds and hunters was received in Estacada last week from John Howland, whose place lies along the Clackamas above the North Fork, to help trail a wounded black wolf which he had shot.

Bill Underwood's car, resembling a dog catcher's outfit, started for the scene loaded with the Jones' hounds and their master. The sportsmen returned later, reporting the dogs as having taken the trail and captured the wolf within a short time after obtaining the first scent.

Black wolves are more or less rare and besides bringing a $25. bounty are worth as much more for their hides. To date no item of the bounty has been noticed in the county clerk's records, but there has been an Injun around looking for his black dog.

The 1915

Manufacturers and Land Products Show

Will take place at the

Armory Bldg. in Portland

October 25th to November 13th

The Portland Railway Light & Power Company

has reserved an exhibit space 50x15 feet, in which will be shown a display of the land products grown in CLACKAMAS COUNTY, along the Estacada inter-urban line.

The company will spare no expense to make this exhibit of value to this district, with an agricultural display, supplemented by a monstrous map of the country tributary to the Estacada line, with photographs and other concise information.

We ask the help and co-operation of every resident of this section. Sort out a display of your best agricultural products for use at that time, as the exhibits from the county fairs will not be in good condition for this display and fresh produce will be needed.

If you will help make this exhibit a success, save up your prize products now and feel free to offer suggestions.
